ENGLAND KEEPS SWETTENHAM'S REPLY SECRET

Jamaican Governor Makes Explanation for Sending Americans Away.

AMERICANS REFUSED AID

Refugees Make Charges of Inhumanity Against Britons in Ruined City.

DENIED FOOD AND WATER

Injured Ordered From Ship to Make Room for British Guests.

LONDON, Jan. 23.—The Government here has heard from Gov. Swettenham of Jamaica concerning the incident involving the withdrawal of the American warships from Kingston. Last night a good many telegrams were received from Mr. Swettenham, some of which deal with the incident. These, it is understood, confirm the main features of the affair as already known.

It is not the present intention of the Colonial Office to make the telegrams public, the official view being that it is a personal affair. The authorities incline to the view that general interests will best be served by having the replies appear in a blue book at some distant period, meantime being dealt with through the usual diplomatic channels.

BRITISH WOULDN'T AID AMERICANS IN KINGSTON

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—Charging the British of Kingston, Jamaica, with gross inhumanity during the reign of terror following the earthquake and conflagration in the stricken city, 112 Americans, mostly tourists, came into port late yesterday afternoon on the steamship Prinz Eitel Friedrich.

The ship, with the refugees on board, about forty women, sixty men and a dozen children, left Kingston last Thursday before the break between Gov. Swettenham and Rear Admiral Davis. But none of the refugees was surprised by the news of the sudden departure of the American warships due to the behavior of the British Colonial Governor. The attitude of the colonial office from the time of the earthquake Monday to Thursday afternoon, when the refugees left Kingston, was beyond the comprehension of the Americans.

Most important was a statement made by the Rev. John O'Donovan, pastor of the Roman Catholic Church of the Immaculate Conception of Boston, and vouched for by other Americans who were present and heard what passed, as described by the priest. He said that Colonial Secretary Anderson of Jamaica requested the United States naval officers in his presence to send men from the American warships ashore to recover the dead, pull down toppling buildings and preserve order.

Some of the United States naval officers were opposed to having the blue-jackets dig out the bodies from the ruins, but put aside their prejudices and gave their consent. Father O'Donovan's statement disproves absolutely the contention that the American naval men "butted" into the Kingston situation without consent of the Jamaica officials.

Charges Against Governor.

Resolutions which were adopted by the refugees during the voyage home show how they feel. The meeting was held in the saloon of the Prinz Eitel on Monday and was presided over by Percival Gable of Morristown, Pa. The resolutions follow:

"To the general public and the international press:

"We, a company of American refugees of Kingston, Jan. 14 to Jan. 17, on board the S. S. Prinz Eitel Friedrich, herewith utter emphatic condemnation of the conduct and behavior in that period of certain officials of rank, especially Capt. Parsons, Commander of the British S. S. Port Kingston, lying in the harbor of Kingston, and aboard which was Sir Alfred Jones, his superior, and other officials, basing our contentions on the following counts:

"1. That Capt. Parsons declined to furnish food for one meal to the small number of Germans, led by Capt. Vashel of Hamburg-American Line, who prevented four docks from burning on the night of the 14th, among them the Port Kingston's own wharf.

"2. That such American and other refugees as the small boats manned by Capt. Vashel and others, gathered and lodged on Monday on board the Port Kingston, were summarily ordered ashore at 4 p. m. Tuesday to make room for English refugees, though women and children tearfully pleaded that they had neither food nor clothing on shore.

"3. That the wounded of mixed nationalities were taken ashore at the same hour and left in a crude situation on the railway wharf until cared for by American naval authorities on Thursday, except such as were removed by train to Spanish towns or by relatives who found them.

"4. That Father O'Donovan of Boston, Galvin L. Payne of Indianapolis, and the Rev. H. F. Auld of Hatboro, Pa., took a petition to Sir Alfred Jones and Capt. Parsons from the refugees sleeping on trunks, sacks of coffee and the cargo-fouled planks of the Hamburg-American dock, to allow the said refugees to go on board the Port Kingston, then at her dock, and sleep on her bare, clean decks, where they should be safe from recurrent earthquake shocks. Capt. Parsons refused with great incivility and coming to the Hamburg-American dock showed the party further discourtesy.

"5. That in the three days, though Sir Alfred Jones and his party on the Port Kingston had all the comforts of a large, well-equipped steamer, no tender was made either of food, coffee, bedding or medicines.

"6. That the three days, save for

BLAND SAYS DESMOND WILL NOT BE FIRED

Vice-President of Board Says There Are No Charges Against Detective Chief.

JOYCE AND WILSON TRADE

Chief Creecy Sends Officer Who Has Resigned to Magnolia Avenue.

PATROLMEN ACCUSED

Investigation of Manchester Avenue District Causes Charges.

Police Commissioner Bland told a Post-Dispatch reporter Wednesday that so far as he knew, Chief of Detectives Desmond would not be asked to resign. He said there were no charges of any kind against Desmond, and that the statements that the Chief had not been consulted regarding certain changes that have been made in his department was partially true only.

Commissioner Fristoe, while not going as far as Commissioner Bland, said that Desmond's resignation had not been asked for. As to what might happen in the future in police affairs, Mr. Fristoe said that his forecasts would be of no more value than a guess at what one weather will be next week.

"So far as I know," said Commissioner Bland, who is Vice-President of the board, "Desmond's resignation will not be asked for by the board. There are no charges against him.

"Desmond has been consulted by the board to some extent regarding changes in his department. It would hardly be supposed that he would be given the prerogative of saying altogether how the department shall be conducted. The board has some ideas on the subject."

Commissioner Fristoe said: "Desmond has not been asked to resign. There are no charges against him, but I cannot presume to say what the Police Board is going to do in the future."

Joyce Incident Painful.

Commissioners Bland and Fristoe both say that one of the most painful duties they have had to perform since their connection with the board was in calling Capt. Peter Joyce into executive session of the board and asking him for his resignation.

"It was almost brutal to call that old man into the board room and ask him to tender his resignation," said Mr. Fristoe. "The manner in which Capt. Joyce accepted the edict of the board won the highest esteem of the members. He has grown old in the department and did not realize that his infirmities incapacitated him for active service as a police captain. I should say that he has been Osslerized.

"He told us that he did not wish to hamper the board in any way, and that he would resign whenever we suggested. His attitude so completely won the board that he was told to fix his own time. It was at first suggested that he retire March 1, but he said that he would appreciate it if he could hold over until April 1. Of course his request was readily granted."

"Capt. Joyce never batted an eye when he stood up before the board and heard the demand for his resignation," said Commissioner Bland. "He told us that he had been in the department for 39 years, and that prior to that he had been a soldier and knew what it was to obey orders. I cannot understand how a man of Capt. Joyce's caliber, during such a long service, has failed to become Chief of Police.

Men Deceived Capt. Joyce.

"We regretted very much to ask him for his resignation. His district is one of the hardest in the city to manage. I am satisfied that he has been imposed upon by his men. He has infirmities which have unfitted him for active duty, but it is a hard matter to call a veteran like that and tell him that his resignation is desired. He will, if he so desires, be retained in the department in some capacity. His inability to see and hear well has been his greatest handicap. On account of these disabilities the men under him have been able to deceive him. A younger and more active man was needed in his place."

The statements of Commissioners Bland and Fristoe that Desmond's resignation has not been asked for, and probably will not be, is taken to mean that James H. Smith will remain in the Department as a captain, at least for the time being. Desmond's commission does not expire until next September, and it is not likely that he will be asked to retire before that time, if then.

One of the members of the board said Wednesday that when the commissioners wanted a man removed from the Department they would not resort to any whitewashing tactics. If charges were preferred against any member of the force, high or low, they would be heard and he would not be permitted to resign. The board, he said, did not believe in "whitewashing."

Commissioner Bland said that the board thought the Department was now in fair working shape. Under the law there are but 12 captains, while there are 13 districts. He said the Department was short of captains, and had frequently to impose the duties of that office upon a sergeant.

Capt. Wilson Transferred.

Capt. John Wilson of the Magnolia Avenue District was transferred Tuesday evening to the Manchester Avenue District and Capt. Joyce, whose resignation was requested and accepted by the board Monday, was ordered to take charge of the Magnolia Avenue District, until April 1, when his resignation takes effect. This is the first action taken by Chief Creecy in carrying out his plan to transfer several captains.

The Magnolia Avenue District comprises what the police consider the quietest territory in the city.

SLEEPER'S WOES WERE NOT DREAMS

THOUGHT IT WAS MONDAY

Second Nap Landed Him in Jail, Then Jury Acquitted Him.

Sleep does funny things to the brain of Theodore Fink, a saloon keeper at 1402 North Fourteenth street. When he wakes up he is muddled. One nap caused him to be arrested for violating the Sunday law and another mixed him up so that he spent 22 hours in Jail after he had been acquitted by a jury.

Fink was arrested a week ago for selling beer at his saloon on Sunday. When he was arraigned in the Court of Criminal Correction he asked for a jury. To the 12 good men and true, he told a remarkable story which ran like this:

"Honest, I didn't want to break the Sunday law. It all happened because I took a nap. Sunday is a mighty dull day for a saloon keeper now. I looked at the funny papers and read the news and then there wasn't anything for me to do but go to sleep. So I went to my room and lay down.

"When I woke up I looked at the clock. It was 5:30. The street lights were all lit. Somebody was pounding on the door of my saloon downstairs. I went down and opened the door. There was a negro man there. He said he wanted three bottles of beer. I sold them to him, but honest, I didn't know it was Sunday. I thought it was Monday morning. I was getting my bar ready for the day's business, when a policeman walked in and arrested me. I thought he was joking.

His Clock Needed Fixing.

"'Ain't this Monday?' I asked.

"'Not in Missouri,' he said; 'your clock needs fixing. I guess you'd better come with me.'

"I couldn't believe until I got out on the street. When I din't see any milk wagons I knew the policeman was right."

Fink's arrest was only the beginning of his troubles. His case came to trial last Monday. After the arguments were completed the jury went out to deliberate.

When the foreman announced that a verdict had been reached Fink was not in the courtroom and efforts to find him were vain. Judge Taylor believed that Fink had jumped his bond and he issued a warrant for his arrest. The verdict remained sealed.

Tuesday afternoon three deputy sheriffs went to Fink's home. He was not in his saloon. The bartender said he was upstairs taking a nap. The deputies went up and pounded on the door at intervals for half an hour. Then they put their shoulders against the door and forced it open.

Fink's nap was still in progress. He did not wake up until they shook him. He looked up drowsily and asked:

"What's the matter, is it Sunday again?"

"Get on your clothes and come with us," said the deputies, in chorus.

"Gee, did I walk in my sleep and sell some beer?" asked Fink.

"No," said the deputies, "but we're going to take you to court, just the same."

When the party reached the Four Courts Judge Taylor had left the building. There was nothing to do with Fink but to put him in Jail.

There he remained until Wednesday afternoon, when he was taken to court.

Was Found Not Guilty.

"Stand up," said Judge Taylor sternly as he tore the envelope from the verdict. A smile spread over the Judge's face as he read the verdict:

"We, the jury, find the defendant not guilty."

"So much trouble for an innocent man," murmured Fink. "I thought that the case was all over when the jury went out. I didn't mean to jump my bond. I just went home to take a nap."

"You may go and finish it now if you will hand the clerk $1.50 to pay the costs of waking you up with an alias warrant," said Judge Taylor.

"I never had an alias in my life, but I'll pay the money all right," replied Fink. "From the way those fellows yanked me out of bed I thought I had been sentenced to hang."

SEVERAL HURT IN WRECK.

Entire Train on Southern Pacific Turns Over.

OGDEN, Utah, Jan. 23.—Western express No. 2, westbound, on the Southern Pacific Railroad, was ditched at Deeth, Nev., 194 miles west of here, shortly before 11 o'clock last night. The entire train of eight cars was hurled from the track and turned over.

A number of passengers were injured, but the railway officials claim that none was seriously hurt. The accident is supposed to have been caused by a defective brake hanger.

charges of neglect of duty should not be placed against them. Sergeants have also been ordered to make reports on the subject.

Three members of the Manchester Avenue District, Policemen Walter Cotton, William McDonough and Andrew Lawrence, were charged with neglect of duty in papers drawn up against them Tuesday. They will be tried by the board Friday. They walk in the neighborhood of Grand and Laclede avenues. In addition to neglect, McDonough is charged with being intoxicated and Lawrence with entering a saloon.

Drank in Social Club.

Patrolman Nicholas Barr of the Angelica Street District will also face the board. He was charged with drinking a glass of beer. Sergt. Fleming says he saw Barr drink two glasses of beer in the Bachelors' Social Club, Prairie avenue and Emily street. Barr says he was sent into the club by Fleming. He admits the charges in a written report.

Patrolman McDonough is charged with drinking and Patrolman Cotton with neglect of duty in not reporting McDonough.

According to the charges McDonough grew playful when found eating in a saloon at 29 South Compton avenue, Jan. 9. He is said to have slid the dishes about playfully and to have playfully taken Cotton's stick from him and thrown it to the back of the saloon.

McDonough and Cotton say they had been ordered to go into the saloon to see that all was right.

Lawrence admits he went into the saloon at Laclede and Ranken avenues, but he says he did not take a drink. He says he had had no opportunity to eat supper, and had gone into the saloon and bought 5 cents' worth of beans, which he ate standing fully 10 feet from the bar.

LAWYER'S VIEWS ARE DIVERSE ON BRIDGE BONDS

City Counselor Bates and Attorney Crow Think They Are Valid.

MR. JUDSON DOUBTS THEM

Believes Law Does Not Allow City to Borrow for Maintenance.

CITES CHILLICOTHE CASE

Mr. Crow Points to Special Law Giving St. Louis Wide Powers.

Comptroller Player told a Post-Dispatch reporter Wednesday that Judge John F. Dillon of New York, an authority on the legal phases of bond issues, who was consulted by St. Louis officials in regard to the bond issue voted on here last June, had suggested to him that it would be wise to file a friendly suit to determine the legality of the free bridge proposition.

As City Counselor Bates drew up the original bond issue bill, Player said, there was no mention of maintaining the bridge. The wording of proposition 1 was taken from the bill presented by the free bridge advocates, and contained the words "and maintenance," which now seem to threaten the validity of the issue.

Frederick N. Judson, a widely known attorney, explained, as exclusively told in the editions of the Post-Dispatch Tuesday, that a Missouri Supreme Court decision handed down recently in the Chillicothe Waterworks case may prove fatal to the bridge clause of the bond issue.

Mayor Wells said that he asked City Counselor Bates several days ago to render an opinion as to the bearing of the decision on the bond issue. The Mayor does not know just what bearing it will have, he said, but he expressed the belief that a bond should be issued only to acquire some permanent asset, which could be used as security for it; and that maintenance could not be regarded as an asset. For this reason, he said, he questioned the validity of the clause providing for maintaining the bridge.

The decision in question held that a $100,000 bond issue at Chillicothe for a waterworks and electric light plant was void because the ordinance authorizing it provided for maintaining the plant, as well as for constructing it. The Supreme Court, in banc, all judges concurring, held that the city could not borrow money to construct the plant, but could not borrow money to maintain it. The provision of the bond issue in St. Louis is for the construction and maintenance of a free bridge.

The heart of the difficulty confronting St. Louis, Mr. Judson says, is a question as to whether the city has any authority to borrow money to pay for the maintenance of he bridge as distinct from the cost of constructing it.

The city charter does authorize the city to borrow money for the construction and reconstruction and extension of bridges, and the purchase of land therefor, but Mr. Judson says this is entirely separable from any authority to borrow money for maintaining them. It was the lack of such authority that was held fatal in the Chillicothe case.

Crow Quotes Special Law.

An act of the Legislature, April 6, 1905, passed specially for the benefit of St. Louis but couched in general terms in order to render it constitutional, authorizes cities of more than 100,000 inhabitants to acquire bridges or tunnels and to maintain them.

Former Attorney-General E. C. Crow believes that this enabling act entirely covers the bond issue and legalizes it, but Mr. Judson says it does not confer the power to borrow money for the purposes named in the act.

It is a well-established law in Missouri, repeatedly upheld by the Supreme Court, that a city can only exercise such powers as are granted in EXPRESS words.

City Counselor Bates believes with Mr. Crow that the legality of the bridge bond issue is not affected by the Chillicothe decision, but he bases his belief on different grounds. He thinks the premises in the waterworks and bridge cases are not similar.

The cases are not parallel, in the opinion of Mr. Bates, for two reasons, the first being that the Chillicothe bond issue is under a constitutional provision distinct from the St. Louis bridge bond issue; and the second that Chillicothe falls under a statute affecting towns of from 2000 to 30,000 inhabitants, whereas St. Louis acts, he says, under a general law permitting bond issues for municipal purposes.

The constitutional provision under which Chillicothe acted is an amendment in 1902, embodied in Section 12, Article 10, and reads:

"Authorizing cities of 2000 and under 30,000 inhabitants to become indebted for a larger amount than is now permitted, for the purpose of constructing waterworks and electric light plants."

St. Louis acted under Section 11 of Article 10, which reads: "Authorizing the City of St. Louis to levy for municipal purposes, in addition to a rate now allowed, a rate not exceeding the rate which would be allowed for county purposes were the city part of the county."

Mr. Bates holds that, since this section says nothing about construction and maintenance, but merely authorizes action "for municipal purposes," the Chillicothe decision does not affect the bridge case.

The legality of the various other provisions of the bond issue voted last June is not called into question.

Mr. Judson in a preliminary opinion said he thought the bridge bond issue valid. He has since passed separately on its provisions, with the exception of that relating to the free bridge, and has expressed opinion that all the others are legal.

Judge Dillon now has the question of the bridge bond issue under consideration. The bonds will not be salable until their legality is decided.

The Joint Free Bridge Committee Friday inspected five of seven sites suggested for the free bridge, visiting those at North Market street, Mullanphy street, Cass avenue, Rutger street and Cheuteau avenue. The East Side terminal sites are to be inspected next week. An ordinance is before the Municipal Assembly appropriating $10,000 for sounding the river bed at the various points.

STANFORD WHITE'S SLAYER, WE[illegible] WENT ON TRIAL FOR LIFE TOD[illegible]Y

HARRY K. THAW.

NEUDECKER TRIAL FOR ASSAULT IS ON

Saloon Keeper Who Is Charged With Wounding Polish Politician Faces Court.

John Neudecker, a saloon keeper at 1504 Cass avenue, was placed on trial Wednesday in Judge Williams' court on a charge of assault to kill, growing out of a duel Oct. 15 at Twelfth street and Cass avenue, in which Louis Kozlowski of 1948 Cass avenue, a young Polish politician, was struck by a "stray" bullet and mortally wounded.

The work of impaneling the jury was not concluded until nearly noon. Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Williams made the opening statement, in which he outlined the events leading up to the tragedy.

Important witnesses in the trial are Felix Brandt of 2121 Cass avenue and William Otto of 1546 North Fifteenth street, who were with Kozlowski; Mrs. Jessie White of 1618 North Eighteenth street, Neudecker's companion; William Devaney of 1446 North Fourteenth street, and Agnes Cross of 2105 Franklin avenue, who were just behind Neudecker and Mrs. White when they encountered Brandt.

As the two couples walked along the street laughing and singing at 2 a. m., Neudecker took offense at what he considered Brandt's stare, and made a remark which precipitated a quarrel. After several blows had been struck both men began firing. It has not been satisfactorily determined whose bullet killed Kozlowski.

Met Foes on Way Home.

Felix Brandt, the prosecuting witness in the case against Neudecker, said on the witness stand:

"On the night of the shooting I was on my way home from the headquarters of a Polish Republican Club with Kozlowski and William Otto. Kozlowski has just been nominated for the Legislature. At Tenth and Cass avenue we saw Neudecker and Mrs. White and Devaney and Miss Cross. They had their arms around each others' waists and they were swaying from one side of the pavement to the other. We passed them and walked on ahead of them.

"When we reached Twelfth street I looked back. This seemed to anger Neudecker. He called out:

"'Take a good look while you're at it.' Then he called me a name. He was only a few feet behind me at that time.

Six Shots Were Fired.

"I turned away from him and an instant later he jumped on my back and threw me to the ground.

"We both drew our revolvers. I fired two shots and he fired four. One of the shots killed Kozlowski, who took no part in the fight. Before knocking me down Neudecker struck me twice, cutting my ear and scalp. I thought he meant to kill me and that is why I used my revolver."

MUSEUM ON LAKE FRONT.

Field $5,000,000 Project Causes a Wrangle.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Jan. 23.—Plans for the erection of the $5,000,000 Marshal Field Museum on the Lake Front have been approved by the trustees and will be favorably acted upon by the Park Commissioners.

The building, when completed, will have a frontage of 1,200 feet facing Michigan avenue, with the main entrance on Congress street. The depth of the plot it will occupy is 800 feet, midway between the Illinois Central right of way and the shore line.

Montgomery Ward, "watchdog of the lake front," has given notice that he will exhaust all law, and the law is with him, to keep the building off the lake front.

ANTI-BASEBALL BILL LOST.

Measure Introduced to Stop Candidates' Treating.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Jan. 23.—The House Committee on Criminal Jurisprudence today recommended that the bill prohibiting the charging of admission to baseball and other sports on Sunday do not pass.

Representative Vitt of Franklin County introduced a bill today disqualifying from holding office any candidate who 10 days before a primary or convention or 60 days before an election treats any person to liquor, entertainment or food for the purpose of influencing his vote.

The carrying of concealed weapons is made punishable by imprisonment in the Penitentiary for not more than five years in a bill introduced in the House by Representative Crossley of Johnson County. The bill prohibits the carrying of weapons into a church, schoolroom, courtroom or other place of assemblage of persons and also prohibits the sale of weapons to minors. As deadly weapons are classed firearms, bowie knives, dirks, daggers, sling shots and metal knucks.

THURSDAY TO BE FAIR AND WARM

Minimum Temperature Wednesday Night Will Be 30.

St. Louis is to experience Thursday its thirteenth variety of weather since the year was born. This will be the common or garden variety, resembling California winter, tempered by a breeze from the south, with no trace of bitterness in it. The snow that fell Tuesday night was only a flurry, and the Weather Man doesn't anticipate any more of it soon, nor of the rain and sleet that have helped to diversify January's map.

The official forecast Wednesday: "Fair and warmer tonight and Thursday; southerly winds. The minimum temperature tonight will be about 30 degrees."

The minimum Tuesday night was 18 degrees. In the Northwest it is generally warmer, and from the Ohio and Mississippi valleys east is is generally colder. It is freezing as far south as Mississippi, Alabama and Georgia. White River, Ontario, sent out a waiting report Wednesday of 58 degrees below

LEASES CATLIN BUILDING.

Blackwell-Wielandy Co. Makes Important $25,000 Deal.

The Blackwell-Wielandy Stationery Co. closed a lease Wednesday, through the Junior Realty Co., for the massive seven-story and basement building of Daniel Catlin, at the southeast corner of Eighth street and Washington avenue, at a rental of $25,000 per annum plus the taxes, the taxes being around $10,000 a year. The amount to be paid by the Blackwell-Wielandy Co. will approximate $35,000 a year.

The term of the lease is withheld, but it is understood to be for 15 years. The rental is on a basis of four per cent net on a valuation of $625,000.

An officer of the Blackwell-Wielandy Company stated that the ground floor, which is now occupied by this company, would be sublet, negotiations for which are now pending with an important retail concern, whose identity will not be disclosed until they have been completed.

The six upper stories will be occupied by the Blackwell-Wielandy Company, about $50,000 being expended on them in alterations and improvements. They will be accessible from the main entrance on Eighth street.

The building occupies a frontage of 108 feet on both Washington avenue and St. Charles street by a depth of 150 feet on Eighth street.

The transaction is significant as marking the expansion of the retail district of Washington avenue, which, in turn, is forcing westward the wholesale houses of the thoroughfare.

GASOLINE AUTOS WINNERS.

Ideal Weather Marks Racing at Ormond, Fla.

ORMOND, Fla., Jan. 23.—The same ideal weather and excellent beach conditions, which marked yesterday, prevailed again when racing in the second automobile tournament was resumed today. Five events were scheduled, all touring car races. These included two 29-mile events from standing starts, a 10-mile event, a special 10-mile match between two touring cars, and the five-mile club championship.

The 29-mile touring car event was won by L. H. Perlman in a 50-horse-power gasoline car in 22 minutes and 32 4-5 seconds.

The 10-mile event, standing start, for all classes and power, was won by Blakely in a 70-horse power gasoline car. Time, 7 minutes 42⅘ seconds.

Seven Hurt in "L" Crash.

CHICAGO, Jan. 23.—A rear-end collision of Metropolitan elevated trains on the surface tracks in Oak Park last night wrecked two cars and injured seven persons. A westbound train ran into a train which was stalled at Maple avenue. Carelessness on the part of the motorman and conductor, who were in charge of the second train, is said by one of the injured passengers to have been responsible for the accident. The men at the time of the collision are said to have been wrestling at the front end of the motor car.

PRISONER'S WIFE AND MOTHER SIT BESIDE HIM

Other Members of the Family in Court—Jerome Examines Talesman on the "Unwritten Law"—Thaw Smiles as He Answers Clerk's Call to the Bar.

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—Deming B. Smith, a retired umbrella manufacturer, the second talesman examined, and Frank P. Hill, a baker, the fourth talesman, were accepted by prosecution and defense and sworn today as jurors in the trial of Harry Kendall Thaw for the murder of Architect Stanford White. It was a matter of general comment that neither was questioned, except indirectly, as to his attitude on the "unwritten law," for it is almost certain that Thaw will base his fight for life on that plea.

Mr. Smith said he would rely upon the Court upon questions of law. He felt he could render a fair verdict.

After having answered a few questions asked by Mr. Hartridge for the defense, Smith was accepted as a juror and sworn.

John C. Graul, the third talesman, was quickly excused.

During the examination of Frank P. Hill, a baker, the fourth talesman, Mr. Jerome asked if he would be guided wholly by the law in reaching a verdict.

"Yes, sir."

"I mean the actual law," said the District Attorney, "not something that might be termed law."

"I understand that I would follow the law as laid down by the Court."

"As to insanity now, would you, in arriving at a conclusion, import into the case some sort of insanity you might have in your mind, and which is not recognized by law?"

Thaw's counsel objected strenuously and the question was withdrawn.

Hill said he had formed a strong opinion in the case, but not so strong as to preclude his reaching a fair verdict. He was thereupon accepted by both sides.

William F. Aldrich, called as the fifth talesman, said he had formed a decided opinion, but he felt he could be guided wholly by the evidence and the law.

Mr. Aldrich declared his sympathy or emotion would not affect his judgment.

"Would you be influenced by a so-called higher or unwritten law to the exclusion of the actual law?" asked Jerome.

"No, sir."

"You have expressed an opinion?" asked Attorney Hartridge.

"Yes."

"And discussed the case?"

"Yes."

"It would take some evidence to remove your opinion?"

"I should think it would."

"Challenged for cause," said Thaw's counsel.

Justice Fitzgerald again came into the examination and told the talesman he must understand that the law presumes a man innocent until he is proved guilty.

"Now can you determine this case upon the evidence, uninfluenced by any previous impression or opinion?" asked the Court.

"I believe I can."

Challenge for cause overruled.

"We challenge peremptorily," said Thaw's counsel.

The talesman was excused.

Morgan M. Clifton was called as the sixth talesman and was excused after giving his business as that of an architect. He had had business relations with Stanford White.

Oliver Jones, the seventh talesman, was excused by Justice Fitzgerald after a whispered conversation. The reason given was disqualification.

A recess until 2 o'clock was then announced.

Riotous scenes marked the opening today of the trial. The courtroom was charged by a veritable mob of newspaper men, and when the police attempted to keep them back the trouble began.

A big squad of bluecoats—there were as many policemen as there were reporters, and there were as many reporters, apparently, as could get within the fighting zone—battled with the scribes at the doors until it looked for a time as though a riot call would have to be turned in. The billy proved mightier than the pen, however, and only about fifty newsgatherers gained admission to the room.

The remainder of the space in the courtroom was reserved for the 200 talesmen summoned on the special jury panel.

The trial began before Justice Fitzgerald in Part One trial term of the Supreme Court, and was scheduled for 10:30 o'clock. Before that time the police lines had been extended from the corridor adjacent to the courtroom to include the entire first floor of the Criminal Court's building. The public had been warned in advance not to attempt to get into the courtroom, and few appeared.

The quarrels with the police which had filled the hour preceding the trial were quickly forgotten at 10 o'clock, when Mrs. William Thaw of Pittsburg, the mother of the defendant, appeared in the courtroom. She was dressed in her customary black, and was veiled.

Following her came the Countess of Yarmouth and Mrs. George Lauder Carnegie, and her daughters. Mrs. Evelyn Nesbit Thaw, wife of Harry, came next and was closely followed by May McKenzie, the actress to whose home Evelyn Thaw fled the night of the tragedy on Madison Square Roof Garden, June 25 last.

The party of relatives was completed by Edward Thaw, Harry's brother, and George Lauder Carnegie, his brother-in-law.

The Countess of Yarmouth wore a modest brown cloth gown, a brown fur hat and brown veil. Mrs. Evelyn Thaw was dressed all in gray with a hat and veil of the same color. The veils were worn throughout the morning.

District Attorney Jerome appeared in court at 10:20. At this time most of the talesmen had arrived and the room was crowded. Justice Fitzgerald took his seat at 10:26 o'clock, and the trial was on.

There was a decided stir in court when two prominent alienists, Doctors Charles McDonald and Austin Flint, were escorted into court and given seats inside the clerk's rail, where they consulted with Mr. Jerome. These same doctors represented the District Attorney when the trials of Josephine Teranova, the "girl slave," was stopped in order that a test might be made of her sanity.

When the rollcall of the jury panel was begun there were several absentees and the court imposed a fine of $100 on each. When the rollcall had been completed, Mr. Jerome moved that the trial proceed.

Justice Fitzgerald admonished the throng in the courtroom that absolute order be maintained.

"Harry K. Thaw to the bar!" shouted the clerk, and there was a hush of expectancy.

Thaw Before the Bar.

The prisoner appeared almost instantly from the jury room. He walked somewhat nervously at first, but when he caught sight of his mother and wife and the other members of his family, his somewhat solemn face lighted into a smile. He bowed as he passed to his seat beside his counsel.

Thaw carried a plaid ulster coat on his arm. It was rather chilly in the courtroom, and he threw his coat about his shoulders.

Without further ado the task of selecting a jury was begun.

Charles W. Bryden, an engineer, was the first talesman. In response to the usual questions by the District Attorney he declared he had no conscientious scruples against capital punishment, but had formed an unalterable opinion as to the defendant's guilt or innocence.

Mr. Jerome, after subjecting the talesman to a searching examination, made his first reference to the "unwritten law." He said: "There is a so-called higher law, an 'unwritten law' would you allow such a law to enter into your judgment?"

Counsel for Thaw objected to the question.

Justice Fitzgerald said the witness had already replied that as to points of law he would be guided by the Court.

The selection of the jury will be one of the important features of the case, and during the examination of the talesmen it is expected that the line of defense will, in a measure, be indicated. Criminal lawyers generally have taken an interest in the case, and it is their opinion that the "unwritten law" and "emotional insanity" will play a large part in the efforts of Thaw's lawyers to obtain freedom for their client. It is expected that Thaw's counsel will endeavor to obtain only such jurymen as would be influenced by the pleas indicated.

Thaw has been studying up criminal trials during the last few days. It is understood that he intends to take a very active part in the selection of the jury. He intends to see, it is said, that no juror is selected unless it is with his approval.

Mr. Garvan will attend mostly to the selection of the jurors. Mr. Jerome will cross examine the defendant's witnesses and conduct the direct examination of the people's witnesses.

Great preparations have been made for covering the Thaw trial. A telegraph company has strung wires into the court and a telegraph office has been erected temporarily on the main floor.

Many of the out-of-town newspapers have reporters at the trial, and even far-away London and Paris have sent correspondents, so widespread is the interest in the remarkable tragedy.

MRS. MARX KEEPS CHILD.

Court Refuses to Grant Divorced Husband's Plea.

In the Circuit Court Wednesday Mrs. Anna Marx of 912 West Pine boulevard was awarded the custody of her daughter, Lillie, aged 11.

The decision was given in a habeas corpus suit, in which the child's father, George Maisch, Mrs. Marx's former husband, sought to obtain possession of the child.

The Judge said that he was unwilling to set aside the ruling of Judge Taylor in awarding the custody of the child to the mother at the time she obtained a divorce from Maisch.

Both Maisch and his former wife have since married again, and Mrs. Marx is now suing her second husband for a divorce.

DREAM FARM LURES OLD MAN TO QUEST

Longing to See Again the Home of His Youth Overcomes Wanderer.

The relatives of L. Perry Ryan, an aged man, are blaming themselves for having humored him in a childish fancy, which they now believe has led to his unexplained disappearance. Mr. Ryan lived with his nephew, Thomas M. Ryan, and his family, at 4638 Maffitt avenue.

The old man is over 75 years of age and feeble. Ten years ago he was living alone on a farm in Prarie, Ill., where he had passed the best years of his life and where one by one his children and relatives had left him. His nephew, who is a boilermaker here, sold the farm for his aged uncle and brought him to the home on Maffitt avenue.

At the home of his nephew he did little else than wander around the neighborhood, talking of his youth. But in the last year or so he seems to have grown more childish and his mind seems to have become weak on the subject of his old farm in Prairie.

He would walk down the street and if he met anyone he knew he would stop and say, "I'm going down to my farm," pointing down the street. Then he would bend over his stick again and stumble away.

Wanders Away at Last.

Sometimes policemen would bring him back home, still talking of his farm. At other times he would come home himself, tired out and saying petulantly that he couldn't find his farm.

Because of this his relatives have watched him closely. They never argued with him about the farm and always agreed that it "was down the street," but they kept close watch on his movements.

But two weeks ago Mrs. Ryan was taken ill with a bad attack of paralysis, and her husband and children forgot about the old man in their anxiety for their mother.

A week ago last Sunday the old man wandered out into the yard unnoticed. He walked to the front gate and stood there a moment, shading his eyes as he looked down the street. He must have seen something encouraging, for he opened the gate quickly and tottered off down the street.

A neighbor saw him go and this was the last seen of him by anyone who has since communicated with the anxious family. The disappearance of the old man has had a very bad effect on Mrs. Ryan and Tuesday she was taken to St. John's Hospital. Ryan and his sons, who were with him at a boiler works, are making every effort to find the old man, who may still be looking for his farm. They believe that he, perhaps, met someone who gave him money to go to Prairie.

LEAVES FAMILY OF 14.

The funeral of Charles Scheldt, who is survived by a widow and 13 children, took place Wednesday from his home on the Tesson road near Affton, St. Louis County. The interment was in St. Lucas Cemetery, Sapington. Mr. Scheldt was a gardener and owned considerable property. He was 69 years old.

Mrs. Louisa M. Scheidt, formerly Miss Rott, is the widow. The surviving children are Otto C., Emil L., Gustave P., George J., Charles F., Christian M., Robert W., Louis T., William H. and Miss Julia H. Scheldt, and Mrs. Alvena Schuetz, Mrs. Emma M. Vasel and Mrs. Louisa D. Ruder. Six of the sons are married.

GOVERNOR SWETTENHAM AND WIFE WHO AIDED EARTHQUAKE SUFFERERS

HOW AMERICAN SUFFERERS WERE TREATED BY KINGSTON'S BRITISH

Following are the charges made against the British in Kingston by the American refugees who have reached New York:

That all persons except British subjects aboard the Port Kingston, commanded by Capt. Parsons, the only vessel in the harbor, were ordered to leave the ship to make room for British refugees; that the captain even refused a request that they might sleep on the decks of the steamer; that during the three days they remained on the wharf the British authorities never so much as gave them food, water, bedding or medical assistance; that they were left on the dock for three days, until cared for by the American naval authorities; that Capt. Parsons declined to furnish food for one meal to a small number of German refugees; that in many minor ways they were made to feel the "superiority" of the British.

CAPITAL GAME "DEAD EASY," SAYS SLUPSKY

Col. Abe Is Glad Governor Doesn't Prowl Around Jefferson City Streets at Night, for He Got a Mortgage on One Sport's Wardrobe and Won $20.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Jan. 23.—The electric lights in the lobby of the Madison House resembled so many tallow candles when Abe Slupsky, the St. Louis political celebrity, appeared on the legislative scene today. Abe was literally covered with "rocks." The sparkler in his cravat was almost the size of a Sandow hand. No wonder the tavery illuminations flickered in the sight of their brilliancy.

And the moment Abe put his No. 10 E last on the tavern keeper's floor a dozen representatives looked up in amazement.

"He's a lobbyist," said one.

"That ain't no dream," echoed a Southeast Missouri member.

"Do you think he is going to give some of them stones away," remarked a third.

"Who is he?" kept resounding through the corridors until Abe turned around with a smile and said softly:

"Folk's detective!"

The answer almost shattered the window panes and one or two of the more credulous made a dash for the exit.

"It's funny," said Abe to a Post-Dispatch reporter as he threw two trunks on the floor and called for a quill to inscribe his name on the hotel blotter, "how some of these 'guys' will bite.

"Here, I have been in town for two days and there ain't a soul that knows it. Even my friend, Joe Folk, don't know I've come, and I hope nobody will tell him, because it wouldn't do me any good to have him send any sleuths on my trail.

"What I am here for? Why that's easy. On business before the Supreme Court. Of course I protected myself before I left St. Louis. In the first place, I bought me a rain coat to avoid some of these orators who have a habit of sprinkling your chin every time they make a proposition.

"But as I was about to say," continued Abe, his eyes twinkling merrily, "I thought the game was hard here, but I find it dead easy. Only in town an hour when a sport gets me into a game of freeze out. It was a sure enough case of freeze-out, for before I got through with him I had won $20 and taken a mortgage on his wardrobe.

Glad Folk Doesn't Prowl.

"Who said there ain't no gambling going on here? Now I am not a snitch, but everything looks good to me, and I am awfully glad Gov. Joe doesn't prowl around these capital streets at night.

"I met a St. Louis member coming up the street and he wanted to know what was doing. I took an oath that I didn't know a thing, and had left most of my bankroll in St. Louis. 'Don't gimme none of that,' says he, and then he whispered confidentially: 'You needn't be afraid of me, I am all right.'

"I put my fingers to my ears to let him understand I was deaf. He then made signs to me and I moved away.

"These legislators are certainly a fine looking body of men. Missouri ought to feel proud of them. If the Tubbs bill was now a law, I would have saved about $3.75 today. Everywhere I have gone somebody has taken me for a lobbyist. A bootblack shined one of my shoes and refused to touch the other until I handed him a quarter.

"Honestly, though, if that anti-lobby law was in working order, I think there would be plenty of work for 'Billy' Desmond up here. I never saw such a lot of big-mitt men in my life trying to steer legislation. There ain't nobody hiding the shells and nobody will famish for want of a free drink.'

Abe says Gov. Folk has promised him a renewal of his legislative license and that he will remain here another 30 hours.

GOUDIE DIES IN CHICAGO.

Was One of First Advocates of International Peace.

CHICAGO, Jan. 23.—David R. Goudie, conspicuous as an advocate of international peace, and for many years a public character, died last night at his residence here, aged 62 years. He is said to have been one of the first to discuss the subject of international peace and it was he who is believed to have urged the subject to the extent that it was taken up internationally.

BROKER SLAUGHTER DIES.

Had Held Rank of Lieutenant in Confederate Army.

CHICAGO, Jan. 23.—A. O. Slaughter, one of Chicago's pioneer brokers, died in San Antonio, Tex., of heart disease last night. Several years ago Mr. Slaughter retired from active business life and the old firm of A. O. Slaughter & Co. became the present firm of A. O. Slaughter Jr. & Co. Since early in the fall Mr. Slaughter had been traveling in the South.

Mr. Slaughter was born in Scott County, Kentucky, in 1840. When the Civil War broke out he enlisted in the Confederate army and rose to the rank of Lieutenant. He participated in the capture of the Irish brigade at Lexington, Mo.

THOMSON FAST RECOVERING.

William H. Thomson, cashier of the Boatmen's Bank, who has been ill for a week at his home, 3806 Lindell boulevard, was reported by his daughter Wednesday morning as having improved since Tuesday. Mr. Thomson's family feel now that unless complications supervene he will be fully recovered in a few days. Dr. W. F. Kier, who has been treating Mr. Thomson, did not see him Tuesday night or Wednesday morning, and this fact was taken as indicating that the physician did not regard his patient's condition as alarming.

Mr. Thomson's ailment is pronounced kidney trouble superinduced by gout. The report that he had suffered from an attack of grip two weeks ago was denied by members of his family. They say he had not been ill until a week ago. Although nearly 70 years old, Mr. Thomson is still active and vigorous, and seemingly much younger than he is. His exceptionally strong constitution is expected to withstand the present attack.

Farmer Freezes to Death.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

PAXTON, Ill., Jan. 23.—Fred Swanson, a farmer residing near Wellington, was found frozen to death in the mud near his home Sunday morning. He left Wellington at 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon on horseback and was last seen alive on his way home. He carried $2000 insurance in the Maccabees' Lodge

THREE TO SELECT RACING BALLOONS

Local Aero Club Hopes to Enter "City of St. Louis."

CONTEST OF AEROPLANES

Millionaire Said to Be Ready With $200,000 Prize Offer.

The St. Louis Aero Club plans to enter the balloon "City of St. Louis" as one of the three balloons representing the United States in the international balloon races here next October.

At the meeting of the club Tuesday at the Noonday Club it was decided to order the "City of St. Louis" at once, and work on the immense air craft will begin at once. The balloon will be one of the largest ever seen in America.

Courtland Field Bishop, president of the Aero Club of America; Augustus Post, secretary of the club, and Samuel H. Valentine will select the three American defenders in the races. Mr. Bishop made this announcement Tuesday, according to dispatches from New York.

He also said there would be no elimination contest. The three balloons selected from the American entries in the race will defend the Bennett Cup, now in the United States, against foreign aeronauts.

Mr. Bishop said he had received word from the Business Men's League of St. Louis that the amount of the three extra prizes to be given in the international cup races would be deposited with a trust company in St. Louis by July 1. He said a millionaire, whose name he withheld, had promised a prize of $200,000 for an aeroplane contest, intended to develop scientific aerial navigation.

Articles of incorporation and bylaws were accepted and a tentative Board of Governors was selected at the Aero Club meeting Tuesday.

The officers will be selected by the Board of Governors, which includes L. D. Dozier, J. E. Smith, David R. Francis, E. G. Cowdery, F. D. Hirschberg, G. H. Walker, A. B. Lambert, A. A. Busch, D. R. Calhoun, Alexander Euston, T. H. McKittrick, Dan C. Nugent and Col. R. K. Evans.

The following list of 31 charter members was made up at the club Tuesday: E. H. Bowie, Col. R. K. Evans, Col. J. A. Ockerson, George S. Johns, H. N. Davis, C. P. Walbridge, Robert Aull, D. R. Francis, Rolla Wells, J. E. Smith, D. C. Nugent, L. D. Dozier, Murray Carleton, E. G. Cowdery, A. B. Lambert, A. A. Busch, Nathan Frank, Charles W. Knapp, William H. Lee, George M. Wright, G. H. Walker, D. R. Calhoun, C. H. Huttig, Alexander Euston, Robert McCulloch, Thomas K. Niedringhaus, Elias Michael, T. H. McKittrick, George O. Markham, D. M. Houser and John Schoers.

DENEEN WINS FROM SENATE.

Has Berry Ousted as Insurance Chairman.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Jan. 23.—Gov. Deneen won the first round in the Senate today when he succeeded in having Lundberg appointed chairman of the Insurance Committee, instead of Berry, who has headed the Insurance Committee and controlled insurance legislation for many years. The Senate standing committees were announced this morning following a caucus of Republican members. The ousting of Berry from the head of the committee was one of the few things demanded from the Senate combine by Gov. Deneen. Lundberg comes from Deneen's district and is a Deneen man. The chairman of the House Insurance Committee will be equally as friendly to the Governor. Gov. Deneen is conducting an investigation into past administrations of affairs in the office of the State Superintendent of Insurance.

Lieutenant-Governor Sherman arbitrarily postponed action on the report of the Rules Committee until he can have time to examine it. Evidently the presiding officer doubted the statements that no changes were made in the rules of two years ago. Later in the day the Senate combine retaliated by adopting a resolution providing that contingent expenses shall be paid upon vouchers signed by the chairman of the Committee on Contingent Expenses and the President Pro Tem of the Senate. In the past such expenses have been signed by the Lieutenant-Governor. Although bad feeling has existed for some time between Sherman and the combine that controls the Senate, this is the first open rupture.

THREE CONVICTS TO HANG.

Second Jefferson City Trial Results in Conviction.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Jan. 23.—Harry Vaughan, George Ryan and Edward Raymond, the three convicts who made a desperate break for liberty from the Penitentiary more than a year ago, killing two guards, have been sentenced to death in the Cole County Circuit Court for the second time.

At a trial a year ago the men were convicted and sentenced to hang. The case was reversed by the Supreme Court on a technicality and they were given a new trial. Each of the three has been in solitary confinement in a dark cell for 14 months.

WOULD PROBE TREASURER.

Illinois Representative's Request Causes Uproar.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Jan. 23.—Hruby, a Democratic member from Cook County, created a scene in the House today following the joint session which re-elected Shelby M. Cullom to the United States Senate, in his efforts to introduce a resolution providing for an investigation of the office of State Treasurer. Speaker Shurtleff refused to recognize the member of the minority side and adjourned the House while it was in an uproar.

The resolution seeks to determine where Treasurer Small has kept the State funds for two years, what interest he has received on them and whether he, or Treasurer-elect Smulski, are directly or indirectly interested in any bank in the State.

WRECK; 1 DEAD, 25 HURT.

Southern Pacific Express Train Ditched at Deeth, Nev.

OGDEN, Utah, Jan. 23.—Epress No. 5, west bound, on the Southern Pacific railroad, was ditched at Deeth, Nev., 195 miles west of Ogden, late last night, the entire train leaving the track and turning over. One passenger was killed and 25 others were injured, none fatally. None of the crew was injured.

S. Hoskins, residence unknown, was killed.

Among the seriously injured was G. J. Roberts of Pennsylvania, who suffered severe cuts on the head. A number of others received minor cuts and bruises, but all save one were able to resume their journey.

The body of Hoskins was taken to Elko, Nev., where an inquest will be held.

AID REFUSED TO AMERICANS IN KINGSTON

the above unplesant visit of Capt. Parsons, no official visit was paid either by the police, military or colonial authorities to the large body of American refuges on the Hamburg-American docks, the known center for American refugees in Kingston, to offer succor or protection in any degree, or even to ascertain the condition in which they were.

"7. That in individual cases and minor ways we were made to feel the superiority and first claim of the English and found the much talked of 'bonds of blood and language,' when tested, to be a mockery and a diplomatic phantom.

"Therefore, we declare our resentment and condemnation, this utterance being the joint expression of the passengers in common assembly on board the Prinz Eitel Freidrich, Jan. 21, 1907."

Priest's Heroic Work.

When the Prinz Eitel reached her wharf in Hoboken late yesterday afternoon the passengers crowded around Father O'Donovan and showered thanks and good wishes upon him. Many of the women present wept when they bade the priest good-by. He had worked ceaselessly for their comfort from the time of the earthquake, Monday, until they embarked Thursday. All of this time they had lived on the dock of the Hamburg-American line at Kingston, sleeping on bags and boxes of freight, getting little or nothing to eat and part of the time being even without drinking water.

Right at the next dock was the great steamship Port Kingston, laden with supplies of all kinds, from which the Americans were debarred. During the trying three days and nights the passengers said that the energy and good nature of the priest never failed and that he was always busy cheering up the disheartened ones.

Father O'Donovan made this statement:

"On Tuesday morning, the day after the earthquake, the Americans on the Hamburg line dock appointed a committee consisting of the Rev. Henry F. Auld of the Episcopal Church of Hatboro, Pa.; G. L. Payne of Indianapolis, and myself to see what could be done for the women and children. I was made chairman of the committee and we decided to appeal for aid to the British steamer Port Kingston. We went on board that vessel and saw Capt. Parsons, the commander, and presented a petition in which we asked that the women and the injured men be taken on the ship.

"We assured Capt. Parsons that our people would make no disturbance on the steamer and would gladly accept any part of the vessel, even down to the privilege of sleeping on the bare decks. We gave him every assurance that nothing would be done which would discommode the Englishmen on the ship, and we also pledged ourselves to submit to any conditions that Capt. Parsons saw fit to impose.

"Capt. Parsons replied very gruffly: 'I can't protect you against earthquakes.' I told him there would be little danger from earthquake on the boat, and also pointed out that the women and children on the dock were in need of protection and food. We told him it was a very great strain on them to be in constant fear and terror following the experience through which they had passed. We told him that our women were sleeping on sacks of freight; that they were without water or anything else to drink.

Capt. Parsons then made this extraordinary declaration: 'I have guaranteed the Governor that there will be no danger from earthquake on the dock and that ought to satisfy you.' We told him that such a guarantee did not relieve our women of the nervous strain and discomfort they were suffering.

Refused Drinking Water.

"His whole manner soon became so unbearable that we saw further pleading was useless, and we left. Later that day a request was sent over to the Port Kingston for some drinking water and it was refused.

"On the dock our people fared most precariously. There were some cases of fruit and barrels of crackers among the piles of freight and these we broke open and passed around the contents. This is all we had to eat."

"Chaplain Gleason offered the aid of the Americans. The Colonial Secretary, Mr. Anderson, seemed dazed. At first he refused all proffers of aid in point-blank style, and then, right on top of that, asked that the officers of the Missouri send some men to the penitentiary, where, he said, an outbreak of the inmates was feared. He also asked that men be assigned to help the Director of Public Works to tear down toppling buildings and recover the dead. He also said that it would be a good thing if the American ships would send men into the city so that they would be seen by the natives. He said the presence of the Americans would have a deterrent effect upon that portion of the native population which might attempt robbery and crime.

"Mr. Caldwell turned to the American naval officers and said he did not believe it was fair to ask our seamen to dig over the ruins for the dead, and some of the officers agreed with him, but they nevertheless promised to grant the request of the Colonial Secretary.

"Following that visit the marines were landed. That same afternoon Gov. Swettenham and the Colonial Secretary had a conference and the Governor apparently revoked the order calling for American aid. The Governor then began to send contradictory messages to the American fleet. These telegrams are probably the most amazing thing in the history of American diplomacy, and if they are ever given to the public nothing but wonder will follow. The naval officers were naturally very reticent about them.

Believes Governor Crazy.

"In one message the Governor would ask for assistance in the most urgent way and then right on the heels of that appeal would come a message saying that the Americans were not wanted. It really seemed as if he had gone crazy."

Mr. Caldwell, who is in business at 4 West Twenty-Ninth street, said:

"The first we saw of the Governor was the second day after the earthquake, when he drove about the streets of the town in a well-appointed carriage with a party of ladies. He had a coachman and footman who wore a brilliant red and gold livery, which made a queer spectacle amid the ruins and misery.

"The Governor's ride was seemingly a sight-seeing trip designed for the amusement of the ladies who were with him. He would stop the carriage every few minutes and point out some curious freak of the earthquake to show what it had done. Up to this time absolutely nothing had been done by the officials. The streets were filled with suffering people and great disorder was on all sides."

John Field of 246 Devonshire street, Boston, was one of the injured Americans who was put off the steamship Port Kingston to make room for the guests of Sir Alfred Jones. He was in the Myrtlebank Hotel when it went down with a crash.

"I crawled out with two ribs broken," said Mr. Field, "and made my way down to the water front, where I spent the night on the dock with the other American refugees. I did not know just what happened to me, but I could not lie down because of the pains which shot through me. I had to keep on my feet all night. Tuesday morning early I got into a launch which took me over to the Port Kingston. I got aboard the ship, but remained there hour after hour without getting any medical attention.

"At 4 p. m. Tuesday one of the ship's officers came to me and the other injured Americans and told us we would have to go ashore as the ship was going to sail immediately. We asked where and he said 'under sealed orders.' This was merely a subterfuge to get rid of us as the ship did not sail and was there the next day. We were all bundled out of the ship back to the dock.

"Capt. Parsons came over to the dock Wednesday and asked me what my trouble was. I told him that I could not say, as no doctor had treated me. At that time I did not know my ribs were broken. He tapped me on the chest and said I was all right, as I could walk around. I told him I could not lie down because of the pain."

In contrast to this was the treatment given Arthur G. Symonds of London, an English tourist. He was taken on board the battleship Missouri and given surgical attention and later, when he came ashore, was invited on the Port Kingston and offered the hospitality of that ship.

Herman Struller, a wealthy resident of Montclair, N. J., was on the Kingston dock with his wife and two little daughters, the youngest of whom became very ill Monday evening. Mr. Struller hunted up the first officer of the Port Kingston and told him of the plight of his baby. The first officer said that he had a baby of his own and would do everything he could for the little one. He took the Struller family on the ship and assisted them in many ways.

"I heard the Americans come aboard and plead for assistance," said Mr. Struller, "and they were rebuffed so brutally it was all I could do to restrain myself. The only thing that made me hold in was my sick child. I knew if I made a row we would all be put ashore and I did not want to endanger the life of my baby."

OVERRULE BURTON, URGES BUSINESS MEN'S LEAGUE

WHEREAS, It is reported from Washington that Chairman Theodore E. Burton of the Rivers and Harbors Committee has determined to report the rivers and harbors bill, which will abandon the plan for the permanent improvement of the Mississippi River between St. Louis and Cairo, made by the United States engineers in 1881 and prosecuted by the United States Government ever since, and that he will report in this bill an appropriation of only $250,000 a year for dredging the channel; and whereas

CHAIRMAN BURTON has also refused to recognize the demand for the lakes-to-the-gulf deep waterway by inserting in the bill any appropriation whatever for the beginning of the work, on the ground that it is necessary first to survey the river from St. Louis to the gulf, because engineers have suggested that the canal paralleling the river might be necessary; and whereas

THE idea of a canal paralleling the river is scouted by engineers, and has occurred, so far as can be ascertained, to no one except to Chairman Burton, and is believed to have been brought forward by him merely for the purpose of confusing the public mind; therefore be it

RESOLVED, That the Business Men's League respectfully requests that the congressmen from St. Louis, when the rivers and harbors bill is reported, introduce two amendments to it:

FIRST, an amendment making an appropriation for $1,000,000 a year for four years for the permanent improvement of the Mississippi River between St. Louis and Cairo, to continue the plan of 1881.

SECOND, an appropriation of $3,000,000 to begin work on the deep waterway from the lakes to the gulf.

RESOLVED, That the Business Men's League requists all representatives in Congress who desire the commercial prosperity of the Mississippi Valley to vote and work for these two amendments.

CLUES TO MISSING GIRL.

Cabrilliac Disappearance Held to Be Family Agreement.

Mrs. Mamie Wolff, sister of Mary Rosaline Cabrilliac, the 12-year-old girl who disappeared Monday night from her home at 1412 North Thirteenth street, says that the girl was taken from home by prearrangement with her father and was not kidnaped at all.

Mrs. Wolff lives in another part of the house at 1412 North Thirteenth street from that occupied by the Cabrilliacs. She told a Post-Dispatch reporter Wednesday that Cabrilliac thought the surroundings were not proper for a very young girl, partly on account of a nearby saloon and that it would be better for her to go to the home of an aunt who lives on a farm near Belleville. Mrs. Cabrilliac, who is his second wife, wanted the girl to remain at home, Mrs. Wolff says, and she gives this as an explanation why Cabrilliac wanted the little girl taken away secretly.

Edward Irvine and Irvie Schumann, who live in a rooming house at Center and Market streets, are relatives of the girl, and Mrs. Wolff says they were chosen by Cabrilliac to take Mary Rosaline secretly to the aunt's farm.

Mrs. Cabrilliac denies this explanation of the girl's absence. She says Mrs. Mollie Hausmann, the aunt who lives near Belleville, arranged to have her taken secretly to the farm, without Cabrilliac's knowledge.

QUARREL OVER FAIRBANKS.

Ohio Lawyer and Judge Come to Blows After Court.

STEUBENVILLE, O., Jan. 23.—A reference made to the recent indictment of Fred C. Fairbanks, son of the Vice-President, on a charge of perjury in obtaining his marriage licenes, started a fight in the courtroom yesterday afternoon, which was resumed on the outside a few minutes thereafter.

There was some formality to go through with in court and Prosecuting Attorney W. N. Alban and ex-Probate Judge F. H. Kerr met with Mayor Scott and others. Prosecuting Attorney Alban, during the proceedings, charged Judge Kerr with unfair dealing in the case and also intimated that Kerr had profited during his term as Probate Judge by illegal marriage licenses.

Judge Kerr retorted that the statements of the prosecutor were not only untrue, but that he was "only making a grandstand play in this Fairbanks case because the defendant is a son of the Vice-President of the United States."

By this time friends were between the angry ex-Judge and the Prosecuting Attorney. However, when court adjourned and they met outside, each tried to get together, landing sevtral blows apiece. Mayor Scott and others succeeded in stopping the fight.

ROOSEVELT LETTERS GONE.

Illinois Representative Would See Insurance Data.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Jan. 23.—Representative Walter I. Maury of Quincy, who two years ago introduced in the House the Illinois Central investigation resolution, has framed another inquisitorial resolution, which will be introduced within a few days. Maury wants to know what has become of letters written to the Illinois Insurance Department by President Roosevelt and Insurance Commissioner Drake of the District of Columbia.

The missing letters oppose legislation limiting the salaries that may be paid officials of life insurance coompanies. Similar letters are said to have been sent to governors and insurance superintendents of 15 states. Representative Maury has made repeated efforts to see the Roosevelt and Drake letters, but has been told by officials in the Insurance Department that both are missing from the files.

FOUR PAY AUTO FINES.

All Plead Guilty to Speed but J. W. Shevlin.

Uniform fines of $10 and costs were imposed on four violators of the automobile speed ordinance in the City Hall Police Court Wednesday. Harvey G. Dunham of 5237 McPherson avenue was fined for driving his machine from 15 to 19 miles an hour in Forest Park Tuesday at 5 p. m. F. S. Taggart of 4604 Delmar boulevard was arrested for driving 14 miles an hour on Washington boulevard, between Sarah street and Newstead avenue, at 6:30 p. m.

Valle Reyburn, former Judge of the Court of Appeals, who was stopped while in his automobile Tuesday at Olive street and Channing avenue, appeared in court and paid a $10 fine of his chauffeur, James Bernard, a negro. Policeman Cooney said that the machine was being driven at 20 miles an hour.

John W. Shevlin of 3722 Cook avenue, former Chief of Detectives of Hot Springs, Ark., was the only one of the defendants who did not plead guilty. He was arrested Tuesday at 4:30 p. m. for speeding on Locust street, between Garrison avenue and Twenty-second street. Policeman Stinger testified that he was going twice as fast as the law allows. Shevlin said that he had no speedometer, but was confident that he was running slowly. He paid the minimum fine.

BOY TEMPER MASTERS MAN.

Divorced Wife Blames Woes on Husband's Early Life.

To her husband's bad temper, which always became more ungovernable on Saturday, Mrs. Margaret Agnes Fritsche attributed most of the unhappiness which she testified had come of her marriage to Arthur Fritsche, from whom she was divorced in Clayton Wednesday. The decree was granted by default.

Mrs. Fritsche and her mother, Mrs. N. J. Steber of St. Louis, were the chief witnesses against Fritsche. They said that after the marriage of the Fritsches, April 6, 1904, they lived at the Steber home on Tower Grove avenue, St. Louis, where Mrs. Fritsche was employed as bookkeeper by her father. Fritsche objected to his wife's working and agreed to take her position. This he did, Mrs. Fritsche testified, but failed to learn bookkeeping.

Fritsche, according to his wife, indulged in fits of violent anger, and on Saturday would be particularly irascible. Mrs. Fritsche testified that her husband explained this peculiarity by saying that as a boy he had frequently been locked in a shed on Saturday and was unable to overcome his temper afterwards. On one occasion, after Christmas, 1905, Mrs. Fritsche testified that her husband destroyed many of her gifts.

Mrs. Fritsche at last removed to Kirkwood, St. Louis County. They had lived there just six weeks or until May 15, 1906, she testified, when she was compelled to leave her husband.

MAPLEWOOD HOME BURNS.

St. Louis Firemen Quell Blaze; Owner Is Absent.

In the absence of the family of Mrs. J. Daukin, Tuesday evening, a two-story house at Elm and Walter avenues, Maplewood, caught fire and was damaged to the extent of $400. The blaze was discovered by Walter A. Trask of 3104 Walter avenue, whose attention was attracted by the bright glow in the front windows. Several other persons, who had noticed the light, attributed it to a fire in the grate.

Trask called neighbors and then ran to Maplewood Station to telephone an alarm to the St. Louis Fire Department. A hose wagon and three firemen were sent and managed to extinglish the flames before the house was entirely destroyed. Mrs. Daukin built the house two months ago. The cause of the fire was not ascertained.

MAN THROWN, CAR RAN ON.

Passenger Who Fell Says He Was Left Lying in Street.

Keirans Moran, who was thrown from a westbound Market car to the pavement within a few feet of his home Tuesday evening and seriously injured, declares that although the motorman saw the accident he refused to stop.

Moran's collar bone was broken, one rib on his left side was fractured, his left lung was cut and a deep wound was inflicted on his head. He is at his home, 4398A Chouteau avenue, under the care of Dr. J. B. Devereaux.

Moran was about to leave the car at Newstead and Chouteau avenues, he said to a Post-Dispatch reporter Wednesday, and was standing on the front platform. He says that the car slackened its pace for an instant, but as he was in the act of stepping to the ground started again with a jerk. He clung to the handrail for a short time, but was finally compelled to let go. Meantime, he says, the car had attained a good rate of speed and his fall was violent. He says he was unable to learn the number of the car or to find a witness to the accident.

Moran is 52 years old and is employed as a packer by the Merrill Drug Co.

Hebrew Society Election.

Following are the newly elected officers of the Young Men's and Ladies' Hebrew Charity Society: President, J. Barnett; vice-president, Miss Ida Heyman; recording secretary, M. Kellner; financial secretary, Miss Etta Levy; treasurer, L. Rudman; conductor, S. Goldman; inside guard, J. Weissman; trustees, Gus Gellerman, W. H. Goldman, George Albert, Misses Margaret Fleischman, Annie Schwartz and Bessie Jacobs. The meeting was held in Harugari Hall Monday night.

"INTERESTS" REAL FOE OF WATERWAY

League Report Treats Burton As Only a Temporary Obstruction.

SMITH AGAIN PRESIDENT

City's Progress in Manufactures and Building Shown at Meeting.

Determination to fight for the lakes-to-the-gulf deep waterway, in the face of the opposition of Chairman Burton of the House Rivers and Harbors Committee, and of powerful Eastern interests, was forcibly brought out in the report of the Executive Committee of the Business Men's League. The report was presented at the meeting of the league at the Mercantile Club Tuesday night.

The report refers to Burton as too much occupied in writing books to want to be disturbed about a matter of importance, and as willing to take advantage of the sudden illness of Congressman Lorimer, head of the waterways movement in Congress.

The report adds that there have been other men like Burton and that "the mills of the gods have ground them exceeding fine."

The two men who stand in the way of the fulfillment of the deep waterway project, says the report, are Burton and Speaker Cannon. Ironical reference is made to the "peculiar machinery" of Congress that enables these two men to distribute the millions set aside for river and harbor improvements.

"Interests" Opposed.

The Executive Committee, through the report, says that the chief opposition to the building of the waterway will come from the powerful Eastern water transportation interests, which are competing with St. Louis for the Southwestern trade.

The report further gives a review of the progress of St. Louis during the past year. It points out the reduction of the bridge arbitrary, the gain of nearly $50,000,000 in manufacturing capital, the choice of St. Louis as the starting point for the next international balloon races, the establishment of a separate freight bureau, the increase in the number of mercantile firms by 1757 and the erection of new buildings costing nearly $30,000,000.

The dinner and meeting of the league were attended by about 400 members. No long speeches were made. Secretary W. F. Saunders read the report of the Executive Committee, which called forth applause. At the business session President James E. Smith was re-elected by acclamation. The other officers elected are:

First vice-president, O. L. Whitelaw; second vice-president, William K. Kavanaugh; third vice-president, Murray Carleton; fourth vice-president, Elias Michael; fifth vice-president, Edward Devoy. The result of the voting for 24 members of the Executive Committee was not announced.

A resolution endorsing the deep waterway movement was introduced by George D. Markham and adopted unanimously. Another resolution, introduced by E. H. Boehnken, asks the members of the Legislature to defeat the bill endorsed by Gov. Folk, which aims to prohibit one corporation from owning stock in another. It was adopted without dissent.

MISS BINGHAM THE GUEST.

The St. Louis Elks Lodge has completed arrangements for the banquet and entertainment to be given by them in honor of Miss Amelia Bingham at the Planters Hotel, Thursday evening, Jan. 24. Edwin S. Puller will preside as toastmaster and chairman, and addresses will be made by Miss Bingham and C. Porter Johnson. Anton's quintette has been engaged.

The participants in the entertainment that will follow are: Miss Bessie Morse, elocutionist; Miss Lillian Kaufman, soprano; John A. Rohan, baritone; Master Carl Taylor, soprano; Mrs. R. M. Day, violinist; Miss Elizabeth Parks, pianist; G. H. Schollmeyer, in witticisms; A. R. Schollmeyer, raconteur; William T. Lawrence, John A. Dauer, Joseph Buse and Leslie Cash of Hot Time Minstrel fame. The evening's entertainment will conclude with the Elks' famous "Schnitzelbank" song.

Withdraw Reward for Slayer.

A reward of $500 for the arrest and conviction of the murderer of Harry Clements on March 4, 1904, has been withdrawn by the St. Louis Undertakers, Embalmers and Liverymen's Association. Clements was a carriage driver for the Kurrus Livery Co. of East St. Louis. He was killed with a baseball bat during the carriage drivers strike in East St. Louis. No clew to his slayer has ever been found.

Farmer Slain With Rail.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BURLINGTON, Io., Jan. 23.—The body of John Gavin, 50 years old, a well-known farmer living four miles west of New London, was found in the road a mile west of that place this morning. His head had been beaten to a pulp with a fence rail. Gavin attended a hog sale in New London yesterday and started home about 9 p. m.

THE PANAMA CANAL

IN A NUTSHELL

This most wonderful engineering project and gigantic undertaking of modern times is a subject of vital interest and a current topic among the people of all nations of the globe. Large volumes could be written about it and many newspaper columns have been filled, describing the canal and telling of its progress. But the substance of it all, the salient facts, together with the important Canal Commission data, have been condensed for ready reference into two pages of the World Almanac and Encyclopedia for 1907. And this is only one of a thousand of equally interesting current topics fully covered in this handy volume

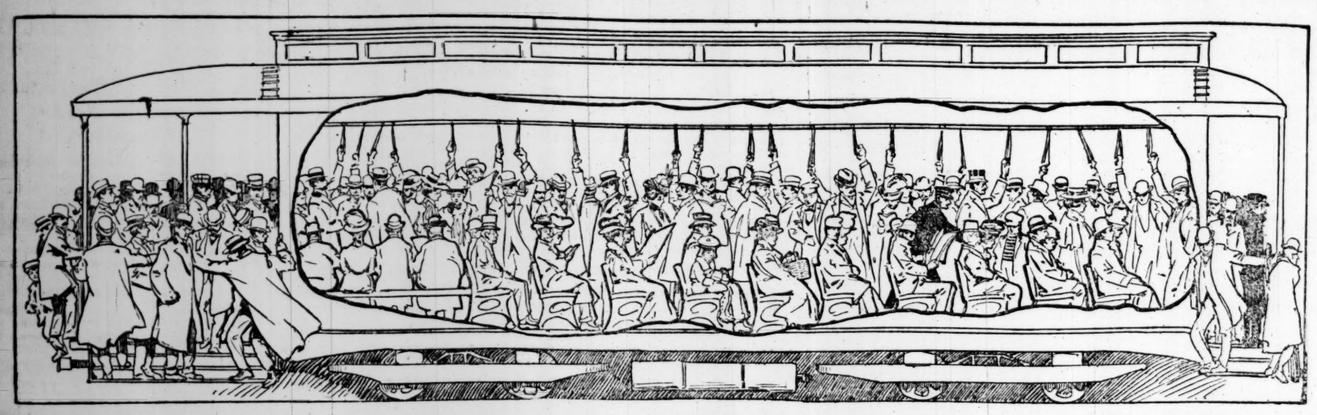
TROLLEY LINES INADEQUATE OR NEGLECTED; SEATS FOR ONLY ONE IN THREE AT RUSH HOUR

AN EASTON AVENUE CAR, SHOWING CONGESTION COMMON ON TROLLEY LINES



Examinations of Post-Dispatch Investigators on Seven Divisions of United Railways Co. System Show That Lines Having Fullest Possible Equipment and Efficiency Fail to Meet Traffic Demands, While Company Makes Conditions Worse on Others by Failing to Do What It Might.

THE POST-DISPATCH today concludes a series of articles designed to show the exact conditions which prevail in street railway traffic of St. Louis.

For a week trained observers have been throughout the city at all hours, noting the manner in which the United Railways Co. handles the men and women from whose nickels it derives its revenue.

The numbers and the register records of crowded cars have been taken, and waiting men and women have been carefully counted on street corners.

The investigation has shown that the present transportation system of St. Louis does not afford adequate accommodations for those who have to use it daily in going to and from their work.

No Comfort for Workers.

The toilers of the city are the greatest revenue makers for the United Railways Co., yet they find the least comfort on the street cars.

Conditions on seven important through lines operating between the residence and the business districts have been covered in this investigation, and conditions have been shown to be much the same on all.

The observations, extending over eight days, show that cars of the United Railways Co. carry an average of 125 passengers each half trip during the busy morning and evening hours.

The largest cars seat 50 and the smallest 36 passengers, an average of 43 seats to a car.

On the average, 43 passengers obtain seats and 82 are forced to stand, the number of those seated being thus hardly more than one-third of the total number riding during the rush hours.

No passenger who boards a car more than three blocks from the end of any of the through lines, either morning or evening, can hope to obtain a seat. The cars are filled five minutes from the time they start, and after that few passengers have an opportunity to clamber aboard, and many are forced to stand on corners and watch the crowded cars go by.

The first of the Post-Dispatch series of articles, published Tuesday, Jan. 22, showed the conditions which prevail on the Hodiamont line. This, until the recent consolidation, was the main line of the St. Louis and Suburban system.

Here the conditions for handling heavy traffic are the best in the city. The cars are the largest in the company's service, and the line has a private right of way from the city limits at Wellston to Vandeventer avenue and Morgan street. There is no delay from ordinary street traffic on the western half of the division. Everything makes for speed and facility.

Yet the passengers on this line protest that the service is not adequate.

Post-Dispatch observers found that many persons daily walk to the western terminus of the line to get seats in the Suburban cars. That is their only chance.

Before the cars reach De Hodiamont on the downtown trip they are crowded, and by the time they cross Union avenue the aisles and platforms are filled. From that point to Grand avenue only a few of those who wait are able to squeeze onto the platforms.

The Olive line has received more attention from the company than any other division. Yet the article published last Wednesday showed that even there the passengers are not properly handled. On the morning when the observations were made, 2000 women, on their way to stores and offices, were forced to stand in cars on the three divisions of the Olive line. Yet the cars were on short space, and traffic was in no way delayed. The cars have seats for 50. Those observed carried from 119 to 135 passengers.

An investigation of the Broadway line, the result of which was published Thursday, demonstrated that three cars a minute are not enough for the great north and south transportation artery of St. Louis. From 5 to 7 p. m. every car that ran north or south through the business portion of the city was crowded to the limit of its capacity. Conditions were no better in the morning. Thousands hurrying to their work were unable to board the cars until the rush was over. Among these were hundreds of women.

Friday it was shown that the Page line could not meet the demands made upon it. Since the Delmar line was diverted to Olive street the Page division has borne the entire burden of through traffic on Washington avenue. The cars, though large and run on short space, are greatly overcrowded in the busy hours.

Cars Badly Spaced.

Saturday's article contained the results of observations on the Manchester line, which until the consolidation was the Maplewood division of the Suburban system. It was shown that the cars were badly spaced, that hundreds of women were unable to board them during the rush hours, and that many of those who did were forced to stand for a distance of nearly seven miles. A change in the routing of this line has added danger to inconvenience, as the cars now pass over a dangerous grade crossing at Vandeventer avenue.

Monday it was shown that the Bellefontaine line cars are so overcrowded that many passengers ride home astride the drawbar which juts out under the platform back of the rear dashboard.

Tuesday's article demonstrated that the Easton avenue line is in some respects the worst in the United Railways system. The cars are infrequent at all hours, and are crowded in the evening at a block from the downtown terminus at Fourth and Morgan streets.

Passengers on this line have become so desperate that they ride not only on the drawbar, but on the iron fender support under the rear platform.

FRANCIS DEMANDS THAT TEXAS RETRACT OR GIVE HIM HEARING

The following telegram was sent by David R. Francis:

TO the President of the Senate and Speaker of the House of the General Assembly of Texas, Austin, Tex.: I see from St. Louis papers received at Parsons, Kan., today, that one of the charges against Senator Bailey is that he was influenced by myself and my brother in the interest of the Waters-Pierce Oil Co., and at variance with his proper course as a Senator from Texas.

I deny with emphasis and resent with indignation any imputation or charge that my brother or myself has at any time ever sought by money or other means to influence Senator Bailey or any other member of the National Legislature, or of any legislative body, to act otherwise than in the line of his highest duty to the country and to his constituents, and demand that the charges referred to be either withdrawn without prejudice to me or my brother in the slightest degree, or that I be summoned before the Texas Legislature, or a properly constituted committee thereof, to answer any questions that may be asked of me.

Am en route home from Mexico. Shall arrive in St. Louis tomorrow; just passed through Texas from Laredo to Denison and should have been glad to stop at Austin had I known of the charge. My brother is in Tucson, Ariz., and will go to Austin if requested.

DAVID R. FRANCIS.

FRANCIS CALLS ON TEXAS TO RETRACT

Tells Legislature to Withdraw Bailey Charge Involving Him or Let Him Testify.

David R. Francis, who returned to St. Louis Wednesday from a tour of Mexico, told a Post-Dispatch reporter at his home, Maryland and Newstead avenues, that his entire connection with the Bailey-Pierce affair in Texas consisted in introducing Senator Bailey to H. Clay Pierce.

"I have demanded of the Texas Legislature that the charges that my brother and myself entered into an agreement with Bailey and Pierce by which the Texas Senator was, in consideration of his services in behalf of the Waters-Pierce Oil Co., to be financially assisted in the purchase of the Gibbs ranch, be withdrawn," said Gov. Francis. "If the charges are not withdrawn without prejudice to me and my brother then I have demanded that I be summoned to appear before the Texas Legislature, or a properly constituted committee thereof, to give my testimony.

"Pending the action of the Texas Legislature upon my demand, I do not deem it prudent for me to discuss the matter, further than to say that I am not now, and never have been, in any way, directly or remotely interested in the Waters-Pierce Oil Co. or the Standard Oil Co.

Francis Just Introduced Bailey.

"My entire connection with this matter consisted merely in introducing Senator Bailey to Mr. Pierce. Any financial transactions I had with Senator Bailey relative to the purchase of the Gibbs ranch had no connection whatever with the Waters-Pierce Oil Co. or its business.

"There is nothing more I care to add to my demand for the withdrawal of the charges which I sent to the Texas Legislature Tuesday."

Gov. Francis first read the formal charges against Bailey at Parsons, Kan., Tuesday while he was on his way home. The charge was filed in the Texas Legislature Monday, and stated that in 1900 Bailey entered into an agreement with David R. Francis and his brother of St. Louis, as well as with H. C. Pierce of the Waters-Pierce Oil Co. of Missouri, in consideration of which agreement for services rendered by Bailey he was to be assisted in the purchase of the Gibbs ranch in Dallas County.

TUMBLE IN CEREAL PRICES PREDICTED

Discovery of Method for Extracting Nitric Acid From Air the Cause.

CHICAGO, Jan. 23.—A tumble in the prices of cereal foods all over the world and a vast increase in the crops of farmers in all lands is the result foreseen by Chicago experts in agricultural chemistry as the sequel of Prof. Sir William Crookes' discovery in London of a method by which to extract nitric acid from the atmosphere.

Local authorities declared yesterday that if the cablegrams were correct in saying that the method was sufficiently perfect to be of value commercially, then a most important effect would be had on the raising of cereals.

It is prophesied that farmers will be enabled to get a far greater yield from their land than has been the case in the past if nitrates are cheapened so that they can be used to a larger extent for fertilizing.

When New York scientists read yesterday the cabled report of Sir William Crookes' discovery of a commercial method of extracting nitric acid from the atmosphere, they said there was no longer any fear of a scarcity of food from over-population because the result of the discovery would be a doubling of the world's crops. Nitric acid adds greatly to the productivity of the soil.

Nitrate of soda used for that purpose now, has grown so scarce, it is said, it soon will be exhausted. At present the cost of extracting nitric acid from the air is expensive. Prof. Charles F. Chandler, head of the department of chemistry in Columbia University, explained but said that with the cheapening of electricity which is employed in the process nitric acid manufactured by the new method would be cheaper than nitrate of soda.

"When a practical working process is perfected," said Prof. Chandler, according to a New York dispatch, "every waterfall in the country will be available for the production of the atmospheric fertilizer. Scientists have been working on this problem for a hundred years, but real headway has been made only recently."

NEGROES REFUSE TO WORK.

Virginia Clubs Are Organized Against White Employers.

RICHMOND, Va., Jan. 23.—All over Virginia younger negroes are organizing clubs, whose members take oath not to work for white persons. The movement ostensibly is meant as a protest against substitution of immigrants for shiftless blacks, but in reality it is thought to mean the negroes will not work at all. The better class of negroes denounce the clubs. Colored pastors of Richmond have issued an open letter to the race, saying:

"We hope to reach that class of the negro race who will not come within reach of the pulpit nor with the circle of culture and elevating social life. It is in this foul nest that those vampires are hatched that are sucking the blood from the negro race, bringing to the race contempt, seclusion, shame and a constant foreboding of an awful culmination of a series of provocations that we hope to avert."

MISS HOYLE PLAY AUTHOR.

St. Louis Woman's Clever Sketch to Be Staged.

Mildred Hoyle of 4485 Forest Park boulevard, a Wellesley graduate, is the author of a one-act sketch entitled "Miss Tabitha Slats' Academy," which is to be presented by the Young Ladies' Guild of the Grace Church, Crystal City, Mo., for the sake of sweet charity, on Feb. 11, at the Opera House at Festus, Mo. Mrs. Louis Phillippi has the affair in charge.

The scene is laid in a schoolroom. Some of the clever witticisms told in the play during the recitation of the geography class and the English grammar class are:

Teacher: Percy, give me the boundaries of the United States.

Percy: The United States is bounded on the north by the Bering Sea question, on the south by the Panama Canal and infernal revolutions, on the east by the Monroe Doctrine, on the west by the Philippine controversy.

Teacher: What is the capital of the United States, Percy?

Percy: Washington.

Teacher: Spell it, Percy.

Teacher: Willie, tell me what a sentence is.

ULSTER AS ANCHOR SAVES MAN'S LIFE

Caught Under Car Fender, James S. Duffy Is Dragged Fifty Feet.

A heavy ulster worn by James S. Duffy, 61 years old, a mill hand, living at 3636 Lucky street, prevented him from being ground to death beneath the wheels of a southbound Bellefontaine car when he was struck and knocked down by it about 7 a. m. Wednesday. The accident happened at East Grand avenue and Twentieth street and excited the passengers, who crowded the car.

Duffy was on his way to work. He endeavored to pass the corner in advance of the swiftly moving car and paid no heed to the repeated sounding of the gong by Motorman E. D. Smith. When Smith saw that Duffy was not going to stop he dropped the fender, but instead of picking the man up it fell on top of him, but his overcoat caught on it.

Duffy was dragged around the corner about fifty feet before the car was stopped. The crew and passengers did their best to extricate him, but their efforts were without avail until Dennis Collins, a car repairer for the United Railways, who has a little shop near the scene of the accident, appeared with jack-screws. The car was lifted from the tracks and Duffy was carried to the sidewalk.

He was taken to a sanitarium at 2009 East Grand avenue and from there to the City Hospital.

Duffy's head was cut and his body bruised and the physicians say that it is probable that he was internally injured.

DENEEN NAMES WILLOUGHBY

Belleville Man Is New Railroad Commissioner.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Jan. 23.—Gov. Deneen yesterday caused a shakeup in the Illinois Railroad and Warehouse Commission, when he appointed Bernard A. Eckhart of Chicago and Hon. James A. Willoughby of Belleville to succeed members whose terms have expired. The retiring commissioners are A. L. French of Chapin and Col. Isaac Elwood of De Kalb. The Governor has requested Mr. Eckhart to remain on the Park Board of Chicago until the plans which he has inaugurated are fulfilled.

Col. Willoughby was formerly a member of the State Senate and is Recorder of St. Clair County. He is also one of the publishers of the Belleville Advocate. Mr. Willoughby and Gov. Deneen are personal friends. They were born at Lebanon and are graduates of McKendree College.

The Board of Trustees of the Asylum for Feeble-Minded Children elected Dr. Harry Godfrey Hardt, first assistant physician at the Northern Hospital for the Insane at Elgin, superintendent of the Lincoln Institution. The Governor also announced the appointment of U. J. Albertson of Pekin as one of the trustees of the Asylum for the Incurable Insane at South Bartonville, vice S. O. Spring of Peoria, resigned.

Dreadful Ulcer on the Ankle Bad Humor from Childhood

One More Wonderful Cure by Hood's Sarsaparilla.

For all troubles or diseases arising from or promoted by impure state or low condition of the blood, Hood's Sarsaparilla is the best remedy. It cures where others fail. Has a record of success unequaled in the history of medicine. The following letter comes from a reliable man and is worthy of your careful reading:

"C. I. Hood Co., Lowell, Mass.

"Gentlemen:—I believe it will be nothing more than justice to you for me to write a few lines in praise of Hood's Sarsaparilla, as it has been a great blessing to me and to my wife. I was laid up a whole year with an ulcer on my ankle, which I supposed came from a humor in my blood, which has troubled me from boyhood. I went to the Massachusetts General Hospital in Boston for treatment twice a week during a period of three months. The attending surgeon advised me to give up work and take all the comfort I could. It was said that my case was the worst one of the kind they had treated at the hospital, and the doctors advised that I have my leg amputated. I would not consent to this, but began to take Hood's Sarsaparilla for my blood. I have taken a dozen bottles, and now am as well as ever. The sore has all healed up, and I am working all the time. My health never was better. I shall always speak well of Hood's Sarsaparilla."—Cyrus G. Upham, Needham, Mass.

VANDIVER WANTS SIX-YEAR INQUIRY

Folk Supports Plea for Investigation of Republican Campaign, Too.

From a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Jan. 23.—It appears there was a string tied to State Insurance Commissioner Vandiver's proposition to have the House of Representatives investigate the charge that as chairman of the Folk Campaign Committee in 1904 he collected from John H. Carroll, attorney of the Burlington Railroad, and the representatives of other public service corporations the sum of $10,000.

Mr. Vandiver is not willing that the inquiry should be confined to his work as chairman of the Executive Committee of the Democratic State Committee, but says that if an investigation is made its scope must be broadened so as to include subscriptions made to the Republican and Democratic campaign funds between 1900 and 1906.

Why, ask Mr. Vandiver's opponents, should the Legislature thresh over again the history of former campaigns? It will be recalled that the Republicans were subjected to the most searching investigation of the $21,000 beef contribution and other matters relating to their campaign two years ago.

At the time process servers were searching mainly for Mr. Vandiver. When it became known that he was in Washington attending to his congressional duties telegram after telegram was sent to him there daily by the Sergeant-at-Arms, advising him that he was wanted in Jefferson City.

Gov. Folk is supporting Mr. Vandiver in his pleas for a six-year campaign inquiry. Of course, this means, if it means anything, that there will be no inquisition at all.

Representative Frank Farris of Crawford said that he thought a committee should be appointed at once to sift the Vandiver charges. He said:

"I should prefer nothing better than to serve as chairman of such a committee. If such an investigation is ordered, I guarantee that no whitewashing will be done. We will get all the facts. It seems to me this is fair to Mr. Vandiver. Why, other legislators are asking, should a reform official hesitate to exonerate himself from the charge that he is not a reformer?

1903 Investigation Recalled.

"The reason why the Carroll matter is causing such discussion in legislative circles is plain to those who recall the memorable investigation into legislative boodling in 1903.

"William H. Phelps, attorney of the Missouri Pacific Railroad, and John H. Carroll, attorney of the Burlington Railroad, were the king pins of the legislative lobby here for upwards of 20 years. When Lieutenant-Governor John A. Lee turned State's evidence he furnished Gov. Folk, then Circuit Attorney of St. Louis, with valuable information concerning the operations of Phelps and Carroll. Subpenas were issued for the two railroad attorneys, but they fled the State. When Carroll returned, after an absence of three weeks, he was taken before the St. Louis grand jury. He refused to answer certain questions propounded by Gov. Folk, claiming they would incriminate him. He was then taken before Circuit Judge Ryan, then presiding in the criminal division, to whom the Circuit Attorney's questions were referred.

"One of them dealt with the charge Carroll had paid $1000 to name Railroad Committee of the Senate. Ryan held that, as Carroll had the stand on his constitutional in refusing to answer that there was nothing for the to do but to release him. year after that occurrence, ing to the charges made here day after day and not denobody, Mr. Vandiver, then a Congress, received from scription of $500 to aid in n of Folk's gubernatorial campaign. Murray Carleton contributed $3000 for the same purpose and Alexander G. Cochrane $1500.

"The opponents of the Governor ask why should the representatives of the public-service corporations get into the band wagon of a reform movement, and why should they curry favor or accept favors from the very legislative agent who had been the subject of grand jury investigation?

"It can be safely stated that these revelations have encouraged the railroad lobbyists who are now here. With a voice they are saying: 'We are not worse than Carroll, and he is the Governor's friend.' In reply to which this question is heard: 'What is Folk going to do about it?'"

MISSING $61,500 PUZZLES CONGRESS

Committee on Claims Asks Record Before Advising Reimbursement of Akins.

The mystery of the disappearance of $61,500 from the Subtreasury in St. Louis has aroused the House of Representatives Committee on Claims, dispatches from Washington say, and the committee will make an investigation of the shortage. The records of the trial of David P. Dyer Jr., former receiving teller of the Subtreasury, acquitted on a charge of embezzlement, will be examined by the committee, as will the official bonds of Dyer and Thomas J. Akins.

The mystery of the disappearance of so large a sum was called forcibly to the committee by the bill, now in its hands, to reimburse Akins. Dyer's acquittal without the disappearance of the money being accounted for has complicated the Akins relief bills in the minds of the committee. The bills introduced in both houses by Congressman Barchfeldt and Senator Stone for Akins' relief are identical.

Members of the committee argue that if a fund is authorized to reimburse Akins the bonding company would be released from paying the $18,000 bond they signed for Dyer. Since a jury had agreed that Dyer did not get the money, Chairman Miller says he does not see why Akins should be held liable.

Akins' statement of his official acts since his appointment in December, 1903, has been given to the committee. In it he recites how he forbade the employes to drink to excess, gamble, live beyond their means or visit gambling or drinking resorts.

CLAIMS AS WIFE WOMAN ACCUSER

Harry Clayton, Charged With Shooting Affray, Tells Tale of Misfortune.

The woman he claims is his wife will be arrayed as an important witness against Harry Clayton of 915 North Ninth street, when he is tried on the charge of shooting and seriously wounding William Pickett of 3403 Morgan street. The woman is Mamie Mannion of 3011 Dickson street. The shooting occurred at Compton avenue and Locust street, at 2 a. m. Tuesday. Clayton is in the Four Courts holdover.

According to Miss Mannion's statement, she alighted from an Olive street car at Compton avenue and was followed by Clayton. She walked south on Compton avenue, and at Locust street Pickett started from the opposite side of the street to meet her. Just as Pickett reached the middle of the street, Clayton, who was a short distance behind Miss Mannion, fired four shots at him. One of the bullets entered the small of the back and passed out through the stomach. Pickett dragged himself to his home. Clayton escaped. Miss Mannion was arrested and taken to the Manchester Avenue Station, where, after being questioned by the police, she was allowed to go home. She told the police that Clayton had been annoying her with his attentions for some time and that he shot Pickett without provocation.

To Chief of Detectives Desmond Wednesday morning Clayton told a different story. He said he was legally married to Mamie Mannion three years ago by Justice Robert Campbell and that he lived with her at her mother's home on Dickson street. Since his marriage he has served two years in the Penitentiary for theft. When he was released from prison about six months ago, he says, he took her to live at 915 North Ninth street. Then his troubles began. He says his "wife" spent a good deal of her time away from home. Several months ago, he says, he was attacked by a crowd of men who were trying to get his "wife" to leave him.

Later he was shot at, he claims. He then purchased a pistol to carry for protection. He heard, he claims, that his "wife" had an appointment with Pickett Tuesday morning. He says he walked for her and found her and that while in conversation with her Pickett approached them and began shooting at him.

TIDAL WAVE KILLS 1800.

Islands of Tana and Simalu Are Devastated.

THE HAGUE, Jan. 23.—According to a telegram received from the Dutch East Indies yesterday, 300 lives were lost on the Island of Tavia and the southern coast of Simalu was destroyed by a tidal wave on Jan. 11. Simalu has been practically engulfed.

It is estimated that the loss of life on both islands will number 1800. There have been daily earthquake shocks. The civil government has departed for the scene with medical aid.

Samalu is situated at the extreme northern part of the Sumatra Islands. The natives are of divers origin, but most of them arrived from the mainland of Sumatra over 200 years ago.

Curtis Formally Chosen.

TOPEKA, Kan., Jan. 23.—The Legislature today in joint session ratified the election of Charles Curtis as United States Senator for the long term, also for the unexpired term of ex-Senator Joseph R. Burton, which latter closes on March 4 next, and to fill which A. W. Benson was appointed by Gov. Hoch. The strict party vote of the Republicans was given Mr. Curtis while ex-United States Senator William A. Harris received the full vote of the Democrats.

BAILEY TO FACE NEW ACCUSATIONS

Re-Election of Senator Does Not Dampen His Opponents' Ardor.

AUSTIN, Tex., Jan. 23.—The two houses of the Legislature met in joint session today and ratified the votes cast yesterday and formally declared the re-election of J. W. Bailey to the United States Senate.

Mr. Bailey received 89 votes in the House and 19 in the Senate. Fifteen representatives and senators, belonging to the anti-Bailey faction, went on record as present and not voting.

Besides that of Mr. Bailey, 21 other nominations were made in the House. Two other nominations were made in the Senate. The opposition was for the purpose of scattering the votes, so that an election might be prevented until the Investigation Committee had completed its report.

Mr. Bailey and his friends are in high spirits over the result of yesterday's ballot. He still says he will resign from the Senate if the charges against him are sustained. It was announced last night that additional charges would be filed against him today.

The leaders of the anti-Bailey faction stated last night that they still believed Mr. Bailey to be unfit for the Senate, and that they would continue to use every effort to investigate and throw light upon every charge made, or which may be made against him.

Three Democrats and two Republicans in the House, and for the first time in many years there was a Republican candidate placed in nomination for the United States Senate in the Texas Legislature. C. C. Pierce, the Republican member from Laredo, placed in nomination the name of Col. Cecil Lyon of Sherman, chairman of the Republican State Executive Committee and Texas member of the Republican National Committee. Mr. Pierce made the first Republican speech ever heard upon the floor of the House. Mr. Lyon got two votes.

Negro Troopers Arrested.

VALENTINE, Neb., Jan. 23.—Two of the negro troopers of the Twenty-fifth Infantry, who were discharged from the army by President Roosevelt after the Brownsville affair, are under arrest here for introducing whisky into the Rosebud Reservation, and for selling it to the Indians. The negroes give their names as Long and Williams. Both were stationed here before the Twenty-fifth was sent South.

GOULD RAILROADS FILE DEMURRER

Companies Sued by Hadley Deny They Have Violated Missouri Law.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Jan. 23.—The Gould railroad interests, against which Attorney-General Hadley filed a quo warranto suit to dissolve the merger of railroads and to oust several coal companies from the State, filed a demurrer in the Supreme Court this morning, asking that the suit be dismissed.

In behalf of the Missouri Pacific, the Iron Mountain, the Wabash, the Pacific Express Co. and the American Refrigerator Transit Co., the demurrer denies that the companies have committed any act not authorized by their charters, or that they have violated their charters, the Constitution or laws of Missouri.

The demurrer further alleges that the Attorney-General has misjoined the parties to the suit, and that his petition on file does not allege facts charging the defendants conspired to fail to keep offices in this State, nor does it charge facts showing a conspiracy among the defendants to control the elections and Board of Directors of the Wabash.

The Court is asked to determine whether the defendants shall make other answer to the Attorney-General's petition. This is because of a question of law which may be decided to hold that, after filing a demurrer, the defendants refuse an answer, and if the opinion of the Court in the demurrer should be against them. If such should be the case, the Attorney-General could make judgment against the defendants.

A demurrer merely denying the allegations of the petition was filed in the suit against the Missouri Pacific, the Rich Hill Coal Co., the Western Coal and Mining Co. and the Kansas-Missouri Elevator Co.

In the suit against the railroad and the express companies, the Attorney-General asked that the merger of the interests be dissolved. In the case against the coal and elevator companies, he asked that they be ousted from the State. The allegations in both suits were that the Gould interests hold a majority of the stock in the various companies against the provisions of the Constitution, the laws and public policy of the State.

BABE RECONCILES DIVORCE SEEKERS

Ten Months' Old Frank McCready Bridges Gap Between His Parents.

COURT SUIT IS NOW OFF

Infant Crows With Glee as Reunited Father and Mother Depart.

Little Frank McGinn's McCready, 10 months old, with all his pretty cunning and crowing, has stopped the machinery of the divorce court, which was about to separate his father and mother and put an end to a marriage that had a happy beginning and a smooth course until a trivial misunderstanding threatened it. All this Baby McCready did in just one appearance in court, and without any plea except such as his bright little face and hearty smile made to the love of his father.

Now, with their baby, the father and mother are back in their little flat, at 5600A Easton avenue, reconciled and ready to undertake again and with more strength of resolution the task of living their married lives.

Walter C. McCready and Mamie E. McCready were married in Clayton July 25, 1903, after an acquaintance of only two months. Their marriage was regarded by their friends as a pretty romance and one sure to be happy. It was for the first year, but after that came misunderstandings, quarrels and periods of indifference. Then, in July, 1905, McCready became sick and went away. Mrs. McCready went back to her mother, Mrs. E. Hams of 1523 Arlington avenue. Three months ago, after friends and relatives had made ineffectual attempts to bring about a reconciliation between her and her husband, Mrs. McCready entered suit for divorce, alleging desertion and nonsupport. Her husband replied in a cross-bill charging that he had been compelled to wash dishes, cook and submit to unkind treatment when visitors came to see him.

Baby Crows in Court.

Baby McCready was born last March and until a month ago his father had never seen him. December 18 Mrs. McCready had to go to Judge Hough's Court to attend a hearing on her petition. She took Frankie with her. Her husband was in the courtroom and saw his child. The little fellow was in an excessively good humor and crowed and smiled throughout the proceedings, wholly indifferent to the decorum of a Court.

McCready was very proud of his boy and told a friend to solicit his wife's permission to call on her. Mrs. McCready was willing and her husband went to her mother's home. The more he saw of the baby, the more McCready became convinced that a divorce was simply a other mistake. He told his wife that he was ready and anxious to forget the past for their baby's sake. Mrs. McCready was just as willing to make another trial at happiness.

Test of Love Successful.

Not to be too hasty, they decided to see each other frequently and to test their new resolution. When a month of companionship had taught them that they could do many things for the baby they couldn't do for each other, they told their attorneys to withdraw the petition and cross-bill. Attorney J. T. Davis, acting for McCready, and Attorney Frank A. McManus, for Mrs. McCready, had a formal entry of the withdrawal made in the court records Monday.

Little Frankie isn't conscious of his triumph over the courts and the lawyers. He just continues crowing and laughing, as if he thought the practice highly beneficial to himself and the general public. In the month that he has had the acquaintance of his father they have become much attached to each other.

Mrs. McCready told a Post-Dispatch reporter that she didn't have any fears of misunderstandings in the future.

Sympathizes With Husband.

"My husband is just as proud and as happy as he can be now, and we don't seem to have to try to please each other," she said. "The baby has done more for us than we or any of our relatives were able to do. I had no idea that Frankie could bring us together again, or I might have let his father see him sooner. It was all a misunderstanding, anyway. Walter is a good man and the fault perhaps was not all his. He was sick and couldn't do everything he wanted to do, and I suppose I didn't make proper allowances. In any case, I think we shall be better able to understand and appreciate each other now. The baby has been a great blessing to us without knowing it."

Then she hugged and kissed Frankie a great many times.

Harvard Scholar Lectures.

Dr. Eugene Kuehnemann, incumbent for the present scholastic year of the Kaiser Wilhelm professorship at Harvard University, will deliver a course of four lectures in German at Memorial Hall, beginning Feb. 4. Dr. Kuehnemann was brought to St. Louis by the Prectorius Memorial Library Committee, of which Dr. Otto Heller of Washington University is secretary. The program of his lectures is as follows: Monday, Feb. 4, and Tuesday, Feb. 5, at 8 p. m., "Goethe's Faust;" Wednesday, Feb. 6, 4 p. m., "Ibsen;" Thursday, Feb. 7, at 4 p. m., "Tolstoi." A reception will follow the first lecture.

Nurse Demands $1000.

For her services in nursing her mother and stepfather, Mr. and Mrs. George D. Willson, for a year previous to their deaths last December, Mrs. Clara Cable asks $1000. She filed a claim against the Willson estate in the Probate Court at Clayton Tuesday. Willson was a wealthy farmer, living at Des Peres, St. Louis County. Mrs. Cable at the time was accused of taking $150 from the household, but was exonerated by Judge Freiss. Hearing of her claim is set for Feb. 11.

Tillman and Simmons Win.

COLUMBIA, S. C., Jan. 23.—Both houses of the Legislature re-elected B. R. Tillman to the United States Senate. The election will be ratified in joint session. The North Carolina Legislature at Raleigh re-elected F. M. Simmons as United States Senator.

Salt Puts Out Flames.

Salt was used to extinguish a blaze in a flue in Edward Bartold's saloon at Clayton, after the town had been thrown into a state of excitement by the ringing of the Courthouse bell and volunteers had hastened to the scene of the fire. The idea was that of William Thomas.

College Head Recovering.

Brother Justin, president of Christian Brothers' College, whose life a week ago was despaired of, is rapidly recovering from a pneumonia attack. Brother Constantious, who attended his superior, says that the patient will be able to sit up within a few days.

BEAT MULE WITH CLUB.

Negro Driver Fined $20 After Women Testify.

Mrs. J. A. Regensburg of 1483 Hamilton avenue and Mrs. G. W. Perry of 1424 Sulphur street, officers of the Humane Society, appeared in the City Hall Police Court Wednesday as witnesses against John Foster, a negro, of 1227 Chestnut street, charged with cruelty to animals.

Both testified that they saw the negro beating a mule attached to a sand wagon on Fourth street, between Market and Chestnut streets, Jan. 19. The negro was using a long, heavy stick, with a nail in the end, which was introduced in evidence.

Mrs. Regensburg said that she ran out into the street and remonstrated with the negro, telling him to give her the stick. Instead, she testified, the driver threw it to the ground at her feet, apparently with the intention of hitting her.

Foster denied that he struck the animal violently. Judge Tracy fined him $20 and costs and he appealed. At the time of the arrest he was driving for J. J. Fletcher.

Reception to Miss Beeson.

Miss Susan V. Beeson of 3404 Morgan street, for 50 years a teacher in the St. Louis Public Schools, will be the guest of honor at a reception by the Wednesday Club Saturday from 4 to 6 p. m. in the Club's rooms at the Y. M. C. A. building. An invitation is extended to all Miss Beeson's former associates and pupils. Miss Beeson has been identified with every progressive and humanitarian movement the Club has made.

Policy Writers Appeal.

Three policy writers appealed from fines of $100 and costs each in the City Hall Police Court, Wednesday. Aubrey Lamothe, white, confessed to Detectives Wells and McMullen that he wrote for the "New York" at 2630 North Tenth street. He was arrested Jan. 15. Charles Goldstein, a negro, arrested at the same time, also had policy sheets in his pockets; Calvin Bowdry, a negro, was fined for running a game at 31 South Sixteenth street for the "New Orleans" company.

FOR ALL KINDS OF FLOORS

The St. Louis Machine Floor Surfacing Co. is designed to meet any contingency arising upon the surfacing, cleaning and polishing of floors, new or old, hard or soft, big or little. It does the work with dispatch and with absolute evenness, making an old floor as good as new by equalizing the worn places and making the whole level and even.

In private residences, hotels and all places where carpets and linoleum are used, surfaced floors are a matter of sanitation, economy and, when partly exposed, appearance. Linoleum when laid over a smooth surface will not wrinkle or crack and will last five times as long as if laid over a rough one. It is economical to have your floors surfaced for the saving on your carpets and linoleum.

If a portion of the surfaced floor be exposed, for instance, if rugs are used, the bare portion may be stained to represent hard wood, and only the closest scrutiny will reveal the difference. The friction caused by the operation of the machine draws all the sap in the wood to the surface and leaves the floor in perfect condition to be stained. Another reason why floors of dwelling houses should be surfaced is, that when the plasterers and painters are through with their work, there is a vast amount of lime and paint stains scattered about. Scrubbing will not take these out, since they have entered into the fiber of the wood in liquid form. We remove this coating and make the floor as slick and clean as the surface of an oak table.

SIDEWALK HIT SERGEANT.

Discharged Soldier Tells Judge How It Happened.

Michael Ridgeway, natty in his uniform of a sergeant of cavalry in the United States Army, told Judge Tracy in the City Hall Police Court Wednesday how he had celebrated his discharge from the army. He said that he was on his way to his home in Clarksburg, W. Va., from Fort Assiniboine, Mont. In St. Louis he started out to "do the town," with the result that he fell and severely cut his head Monday night at Compton and Washington avenue. A policeman picked him and sent him to the City Hospital, where he recovered.

Ridgeway had brushed his clothes before he came into court and walked with a soldierly bearing. He said he had been in the army three years. Judge Tracy fined him $3 and stayed the execution to allow him to continue his journey home. The Judge advised him to buy a through ticket from St. Louis.

Colored Pastor Fined.

Rev. Frank Thornton, colored, of 923 Gratiot street, pastor of the Galilee Baptist Church, was fined $5 in the City Hall Police Court Wednesday. He said he would have to wait for some of his friends to pay his fine and was put in the "cage." He was charged with driving a buggy without a light on It Jan. 1.

ROOSEVELT WOULD CREATE NEW MULE

Menelik's Zebra Used in Experiment—New Species Named for President.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—Experiments conducted for the purpose of breeding the Roosevelt "Zeborse," a new species of animal of the horse kind, are now being conducted by the Agricultural Department at the experiment station at Bethesda, Md. Efforts are being made to produce a superior type of mules from the large male Abyssinian zebra, presented to President Roosevelt by King Menelik, and several fine mare donkeys and horses. It is believed an animal of much strenuosity, strength, endurance and speed will be produced.

The Abyssinian zebra has been quartered at the Zoological Park, but was recently sent to the experiment station at Bethesda and turned loose in an enclosure with a number of fine breeding mares. The zebra did not take kindly to the mares, but showed a preference for some donkey mares in an adjoining enclosure, and it was transferred there. The scientists conducting the experiments hope to produce a fine type of mule. Similar experiments were made in Europe several years ago, in which a gazelle zebra of the Burchell variety was used, and were successful, and a sort of hybrid animal, known as the Zebrula, was the outcome, but its birth and attempted rearing were not under such favorable conditions as exist in Bethesda.

President Roosevelt is very much interested in the test that is being made, and it is proposed to give the new member of the horse family, should the experiment prove successful, the name of the Roosevelt Zeborse.

An attache of one of the scientific bureaus of the Government explained that the President's zebra is known as Grevy's Zebra. It is much larger than the other variety known as Burchell's Zebra, and possesses the hardihood found in animals from the mountains. He also said that the animals that had been produced by the smaller zebras and mares or female donkeys had been given the name of Zebrulas.

FOUR COMPLAIN OF THEFT.

Suspended Police Officer Loses $35 Silverware.

Silverware valued at $35, an overcoat and a bank deposit book were stolen from the home of Special Officer Joseph Wilson, 205 Center street, a negro. The house was entered through a rear window. Wilson is now in the City Hospital, having been shot by his wife in a quarrel two weeks ago. He is under suspension from the Police Department, following an indictment by the grand jury for assault.

Three other robberies were reported Tuesday. George Bratton, an employe of the National Fireproofing Co., Eighteenth street and Washington avenue, told the police that $450 was stolen from an overcoat pocket. While shopping in a downtown store Mrs. Hugo Jacobson of 5138 Fairmount avenue, was robbed of a $250 muff. Two diamond rings, valued at $400, were stolen from a dresser drawer in the home of Mrs. Edward L. Toof, 4164 Morgan street.

Prescription No. 2851, by Elmer & Amend, will not cure all complaints, but it will cure rheumatism.

SURVEY FOR BELT LINE.

Plans and preliminary surveys for the construction of the proposed St. Louis & Illinois Belt Railway around the Illinois shore are under way, according to E. C. Donk, one of the men interested in the enterprise. The road is intended to connect with every road in East St. Louis and to relieve the congestion of freight there. It is also expected to reach the Alton bridge on the north and the Thebes bridge on the south.

E. C. Conrades is president of the company. Otto Stifel is interested in the line.

NO DECISION ON M'KINLEY TROLLEY

Council Railroad Committee Studied Franchise Half Year in Vain.

COUNCIL TO INQUIRE

Committeemen Say They Could Not Agree on Amendments to Control Express.

The City Council, as a whole, will, either in open session or in committee of the whole, next Tuesday consider the bill granting a passenger and express transportation franchise to the McKinley system. The Railroad Committee reported the bill without any recommendation, either favorable or adverse. An effort was made at Tuesday's meeting to have the bill referred to a new committee of three, which would render an opinion on the merits of the measure.

"I know nothing of the measure," said Councilman Hitchcock, pleading for a special committee. "It is the function of a Council committee to say whether a bill should be adopted or rejected. As the Railroad Committee has reported the bill without giving any opinion as to its merits and seems anxious to be excused from the burden of further considering the bill, we should refer it to a new committee, which would pass upon it. To compel all the members of the Council to sit as a committee on the bill is an unwarranted tax on the members."

Chairman Cramer of the Railroad Committee opposed the reference to a special committee. Councilman Ewing moved that the Council meet "informally" at 3 p. m. next Tuesday to consider the bill. Davis pointed out that the Council had to meet formally or not at all. The entire consideration of the measure was then postponed until next Tuesday.

Protests From Ninth Street.

A delegation of property owners, headed by Attorney J. R. Kinealy, was present at Tuesday's meeting to protest against the road running on Ninth street, near Salisbury. R. D. Smith, manager of the McKinley system, was also present to listen to the debate on the bill.

The bill was introduced into the Council by Hitchcock, by request, early last spring. The Railroad Committee, to which it was referred, held a public hearing on the measure and after holding it for over half a year, reported it without any opinion that would guide the other members of the Council, who had not attended the hearing or digested the bill.

"We could not agree as to amendments," said a member of the committee, so we decided to leave it to the whole Council."

The bill as a whole has been strongly indorsed by the West End Business Men's Association, which at the same time suggested amendments to limit the weight of the express matter carried to 500 pounds to increase the compensation to the city for the franchise grant.

The McKinley system proposes to use the road for which it asks a franchise to connect with the interurban trolley system which gridirons Illinois. Wholesalers in St. Louis, especially those in the Cupples Block, pleaded strongly in favor of the franchise grant at the public hearing.

OWED BOARD BILL, WEDDED LANDLADY

Woman Tells Court Father of Six Refused to Work or Pay.

Mrs. Ann Matthews, to whom a divorce from John Matthews was granted in Clayton Wednesday, testified that, in her belief, her husband married her to escape paying her a board bill. He was not in court, and, according to his wife, had not been seen by her since the day he left her, Sept. 19, 1905.

Mrs. Matthews testified that she married Matthews, a widower, Aug. 17, 1905, after he and two of his younger children had boarded at her home in Highland for several weeks. She said that after their marriage her husband refused to work or contribute anything toward her support.

When she demanded that he help her, she testified, he left, taking his six children. Mrs. Matthews was a widow with three sons. Several persons were in court to corroborate her testimony and testify to her good character.

FOLK ANTI-PASS BILL IS KILLED BY COMMITTEE

Measure Seeking to Bar Legislative Clerks Gets Two Votes.

"JIM CROW" IS FAVORED

House Committee Recommends Separate Car Compartments.

LOBBY INVOKES UNIONS

Railroads Threaten to Reduce Wages if Two-Cent Fare Wins.

From a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Jan. 23.—The railroad lobby is gleeful today as a result of the action of the House Committee on Railroads in vetoing by a vote of 14 to 2, Gov. Folk's bill to prohibit railroad companies from giving passes to any save railroad employes. Under present law, it is a misdemeanor for a railroad company to furnish free transportation to any public official or member of the Legislature. It was proposed to extend this provision so as to reach legislative clerks and others obtaining passes through official influences.

It is well-known that in the past 75 per cent of the free transportation issued by the railroads was for the use of the families and clerks of members. The reform bill was introduced by Representative Sherman of St. Joseph, who is also sponsor for the administration's home rule police measures.

Representatives Huck of St. Genevieve and Barry of Ralls were the only members of the Committee who urged the adoption of the anti-pass bill. At the same time the committee voted to report it unfavorably, a "Jim Crow" bill to provide separate coaches or apartments on street and steam railroads for white and colored passengers was approved.

Corporation agents now in Jefferson City were re-enforced last night by the arrival of former Lieutenant-Governor Bolte, attorney for the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railroad; Linton Reber, secretary of the Kinloch Telephone Co.; former Representative Newlin Conklin, attorney for the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railroad; former State Senator Buel Matthews, representing the Burlington Railroad, and John H. (Fire Alarm) Flanigan of the Missouri Pacific-Iron Mountain staff.

Col. Seibert Active.

Col. Phelps, also representing the Gould railroad interests, left for St. Louis last night, but his valuable colaborer, Col. "Jim" Seibert, is still on the ground. Col. Seibert is probably the most influential corporation man in Jefferson City now. He is far more active and much more prominent about the hotel corridors than Col. Phelps.

His knowledge of the legislative situation is made formidable by his previous experience as a Democratic leader. Unlike Col. Seibert, Col. Phelps has never held public office. When General Solicitor Cochrane of the Missouri Pacific was picking out his legislative lieutenants, it is said he decided to keep Col. Seibert "in the field" and have Phelps attend mostly to the committee hearings.

The real fight between the people and the lobby will come tonight when the Railroad Committees of the House and Senate hold a joint public hearing to consider the bill to reduce passenger fares on railroads from 3 to 2 cents a mile. If the argument of the lobby is swallowed, one may readily presume that the railroads are going out of business if a 2-cent fare bill should be adopted.

An ingenious effort has been made to draw organized labor into the fight by the threat that if passenger rates are lowered there will be a corresponding reduction in the wages of railroad employes. It will be up to the Board of Railroad and Warehouse Commissioners to offset this argument, if they furnish the information requested by the House and Senate, showing the effect of the 2-cent fare law in Ohio and other states.

At last accounts the railroads of the Buckeye State were still doing business and legislators argue that if the Ohio roads didn't cut wages and the train service was not impaired there, why should not Missouri railroads continue to prosper under an equitable passenger rate law?

When the representatives of the railroad companies appeared before the State Board of Equalization to obtain a reduction of or prevent an increase of taxes they sought to underestimate the value of their securities. Subsequently, when Attorney-General Hadley took up the fight in behalf of the maximum freight rate law, the railroads offered the plea that if enforced the law would deprive them of their net earnings on freight business. At the same time they held out the argument that, contrary to popular impression, the passenger business was a source of profitable revenue to them. Now they are claiming that the passenger business doesn't pay at all.

Dividends Have Soared.

Gen. Hadley, in the course of his inquiry, is said to have gathered figures which show that the railroad companies can well afford to stand a cut in passenger rates. It will be pointed out that railroad dividends have gone up instead of down during the past two years.

The activity of the railroad lobby in Jefferson City has been such, however, as to lead to the very general impression that the railroads expect to beat the 2-cent fare bill in the House of Representatives. Some of the House members are talking of compromising by making the rate 2½ cents.

It can be stated positively that the railroads are willing to compromise on a 2½-cent fare rate. If this is true, then the argument is advanced that the railroads can stand a 2-cent fare law. The legislators say it will be interesting to vote how far organized labor will go in this fight to help the railroad companies and how far the power of Gould, Morgan, Harriman and Rockefeller is to be felt in the Missouri Legislature.

These Two Clever Young Women Have Leading Roles in "The Social Whirl"

ELIZABETH BRICE

ADA LEWIS

ELIZABETH BRICE, who has the principal female part in "The Social Whirl," the musical comedy from the New York Casino, to be seen at the Garrick Theater next week, came very suddenly into prominence. She was the understudy last season for Grace Van Studdiford, who was starring in "Lady Teazle." The opening night of the Pittsburg engagement at the Belasco Theater Miss Van Studdiford decided she would not appear, and no amount of persuasion could make her change her mind. The part was a most exacting one, both as to singing and acting and it was with much misgiving on the part of the management that Miss Brice was allowed to go on. She had her opportunity, and it was for her a triumph. She sang and acted the part of Lady Teazle in a manner which won her many admirers, and the Messrs. Shuberts, appreciating that she was a "find," kept her at the head of the company for the balance of the season, and are rapidly advancing her.

Miss Brice is an Ohio girl, and before she went on the stage did newspaper work in Toledo, O. She has been on the stage but two seasons, and it would seem that she was in line for still greater dramatic honors than she has been accorded, as she has talent, a fine stage presence and an excellent voice.

Ada Lewis' fame as a "tough girl" has spread to London, and this comedienne of "The Social Whirl" company has been offered a ten-week's contract to appear at the Palace, one of the foremost music halls in the British metropolis.

Miss Lewis has been asked to arrange a vaudeville act, either for herself alone, or as a playlet in which she will have several assistants, the New York agents of the London playhouse being certain that either would prove successful on the other side.

On account of her contract with the Messrs. Shubert, Miss Lewis has been compelled to forego acceptance of the offer for the present, but it is likely that an appearance for her at the Palace will be arranged for late next spring, after the close of her season with "The Social Whirl."

Midweek Dramatic News.

"The audience made the roof ring with applause at the nerve-tingling climaxes that mark the close of the prologue and each of the five acts of 'The Prince of India.'" Such was the New York verdict on the magnificent production which comes to the Olympic Theater next Monday night for one week, direct from the Broadway Theater, New York.

Like "Ben Hur," the theme and locale of scenes of this play require a vast equipment of scenery, costumes, armor, properties and mechanical effects, and again like "Ben Hur," notwithstanding this demand, the wonderfully powerful love tale and religious theme are not subordinated to the spectacular side. The feature in this play which takes the place of the chariot race in "Ben Hur" is the battle scene in the last act, where the Islam horde storm the walls of Constantinople. Another scene which has attracted great attention is the finale of the third act, where the Wandering Jew defies Constantine and his court to inflict upon him the death that has been denied him for a thousand years. Individual hits have been made by Emmett Corrigan as the Prince of India, William Farnum as Prince Mohammed, Julies McVicker as Emir Mirza, Boyd Putnam as Emperor Constantine and Adelaide Keim as Princess Irene.

"The Grand Mogul," with Frank Moulan in the leading comedy role, is at the Olympic now.

At the Garrick Theater on Sunday night next, Sam S. and Lee Shubert will offer what they consider to be the biggest musical production which they have made. It is "The Social Whirl," which had such a long and prosperous engagement at the New York Casino, being seen there for over six months. The story of the piece is based on the publication in "The Social Whirl" of an item concerning a hilarious automobile ride, in which some very prominent society people were involved. The type of society publications which thrive on the purses of wealthy and prominent people is said to be keenly burlesqued. The story leaves plenty of room for the introduction of 15 musical numbers, which, it is claimed, are of a very high order and will cause those hearing them to start singing and whistling the airs. The production is a very elaborate one and the company numbers over eighty, which includes a chorus of 60.

"Mrs. Temple's Telegram" is this week's Garrick attraction.

At the Century Theater Sunday night, Henry B. Harris will present for the first time here "The Daughters of Men," by Charles Klein, author of "The Lion and the Mouse," "The Music Master" and other famous successes. This drama had a long, successful engagement at the Astor Theater, New York, and comes here direct from the metropolis. The play takes for its theme the question of capital and labor, portraying the widening gulf between plutocracy and the people, with class hatred as its keynote. The story involves the fortunes of John Stedman, a labor leader, whose sole idea in life is to bring about a millennium, but his love for the daughter of one of the capitalists whom he is fighting brings him a number of complications. Dorothy Donnelly will head the notable cast that will present the play here.

Amelia Bingham, in the "Lilac Room," is at the Century this week.

There is no less than a round dozen musical numbers of exceptional quality, contained in "Patsy in Politics," the musical comedy production with Billy B. Van, starring under the management of the P. H. Sullivan Amusement Co. They are full of snap and go and have the right ring with which to inspire whistling. There are other features connected with this musical comedy innovation, which cannot fail to find hearty appreciation, notably the color schemes utilized in the beautiful costume creations. "Patsy in Politics" will be at the Grand next week.

"Me, Him and I" is this week's Grand offering.

Harry D. Carey's new play of Western life entitled "Montana" will be the attraction at Havlin's Theater next Sunday afternoon and week. The scenic effects in this new play of the West are said to be the most beautiful and realistic ever placed upon the stage. Mr. Carey, who lived on his own ranch in Montana, which contains over 500 acres, drew the sketches for the scenery himself. Mr. Carey is an artist of no mean ability, being graduated from one of the largest schools of art and design in New York City. The general atmosphere of the play is that of a cowboy's life in the far West. The company presenting the piece is said to be a very capable one and contains the names of 30 talented players.

Howard Hall in "The Millionaire Detective" is at Havlin's now.

Bob Manchester's famous Cracker Jacks come to the Gayety next week, beginning with Sunday matinee. Two burlesques entitled, "A Society Whirl" and "Nature in Marble Hall" will be presented, and the company includes Bob Van Osten, Warner and Eckel, Ruby Leoni, Welsh and Mitland, Della Fayteile, the Millard Brothers and Cloto, the great French artiste.

The Boston Belles are now at the Gayety.

Beginning with Sunday matinee, the Star Show Girls will be the Standard's attraction next week. The entertainment includes burlesque, musical comedy and an olio of bright vaudeville features.

The Eutopian Burlesquers are this week's Standard offering.

Anna Eva Fay, the sensational mystic and mind reader, will head the Columbia bill next week. Other features will be Davis and Macauley, playing "The Unexpected," by Edmund Day; Charles Mack and company in "Come Back to Erin;" Gus Edwards' schoolboys and girls, singers, dancers and comedians; marvelous Frank and Bob, novelty comedy gymnasts; Sears, illusionist; Bryant and Saville, in their latest creation, "Start Me;" Lizzie Wilson, comedienne, and the kinodrome.

HEART OF THE TREE

Is Cut into Small Blocks

This is the method pursued by a prominent physician in his process of obtaining what is known to druggists and doctors as Concentrated oil of pine. After the heart of the tree has been sawed into small blocks, the vital juices are extracted by hydraulic pressure, and yield this wonderful curative oil of which a great deal has recently been written. It has proven a most certain remedy for lumbago and uric rheumatism. It also makes a splendid salve to be applied externally by mixing it with lard or vaseline. But for the quick cure of coughs and colds it has no equal.

For this purpose one-half ounce of the Concentrated oil of pine is mixed with two ounces of glycerine and half pint of good whiskey. Must be well shaken and used in tablespoon doses every four hours.

It should be borne in mind that the real Concentrated oil of pine comes put up in small half-ounce bottles, each enclosed in a round screwtop case and sealed. This case is intended to protect the contents from the atmospheric changes. There are numerous preparations called oil of pine also sold in bulk, but owing to their impurities usually produce vomiting and kidney disorders. The "Concentrated Oil of Pine" is found in the prescription department of every druggist.

Next Sunday Child Labor Day.

A letter received by several St. Louis pastors from the National Child Labor Committee of New York asks that Saturday and Sunday next be observed in the churches as "Child-Labor Day" and that on those days pastors lay the question of child labor before their congregations. The letter recommends the bill pending in the Senate to obtain a model child labor law, together with Senator Beveridge's amendment, which prohibits the employment of children under 14 years of age.

WOMEN FURNISHED ESCORTS

New York Theater Gives Free Uniformed Service.

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—The latest innovation by a local theater is a corps of uniformed escorts for the protection of women who come unattended to the evening performances. The professional escorts are stationed in the lobby in full regalia. Any woman who desires an escort will simply be required to notify the box office between acts and the man detailed to her service will be in evidence at the close of the performance. These escorts are to be furnished by the management free of charge.

$50,000 FOR CATHEDRAL.

New York Bank President Appropriates Sum for Arch.

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—At the meeting yesterday of the trustees of the Cathedral of St. John, the Divine, a gift of $50,000 from H. C. Fahnestock of the First National Bank was announced. This is to be applied to building the west arch of what is called the "crossing" of the cathedral.

At the present rate of progress it will take about one hundred years to complete the cathedral, which, however, would be a short time, considering the history of the really great cathedrals of Europe.

Doyle Asks for Receiver.

John J. Doyle of the firm of Doyle & Watson, process servers, has filed suit in the Circuit Court, asking the appointment of a receiver for the firm, and that Andrew H. The suit was filed after Watson had caused to be published a notice of dissolution of partnership. Mr. Watson says it is only a little misunderstanding and that the difference will be patched up.

DIES AS RECLUSE TO KEEP HIS VOW

Martyr to Mother's Wish Lives Loveless for 24 Long Years.

A recluse since his mother's objections had caused him to break his engagement with his sweetheart 24 years ago, E. Louis Dufendack, 45 years old, died as he lived, without human companionship.

He was found dead in his room in the rear of 1214 Benton street Tuesday by policemen. He had not been seen for a week by his neighbors. It is not known when he died, but he is not thought to have been dead long. If he were ill no one knew it. Only the rats, scampering over the floor, were present when the man met death. He had no relatives.

Richard Gallinat of 1222 Benton street said Dufendack's mother once told him that Dufendack had been demented at times ever since he gave up his prospective bride at his mother's request.

Rebuild Big Bridge Span.

An ordinance for the complete reconstruction of the south span of the Eighteenth street bridge was approved by the Board of Public Improvements and introduced into the Council Tuesday. The cost of the work will be $100,000 and the bill carries an appropriation for that amount. A total length of 470 feet of the bridge is to be reconstructed. Traffic on the bridge will be entirely stopped for more than a month during reconstruction. Street cars will be routed over the Twelfth and Fourteenth street bridges.

DIGGING INTO OLD MOUNDS.

Scientist Looks Into Nebraska Discovery.

OMAHA, Jan. 23.—Dr. A. Hrdlicka of Washington reached Omaha this morning to make a thorough investigation of the mounds in which the remains of a number of prehistoric men were recently discovered by Robert F. Gilder, an Omaha newspaper man. The investigation is being made in the interest of the Smithsonian Institution. The recent report of Dr. Osborne of Columbia University, placed the Nebraska man as being the lowest order of thinking man ever discovered. Dr. Hrdlicka and party are today digging into the ancient mounds.

PATRICIAN Shoe for Women

Do they fit you?

"The wearer best knows where the shoe pinches," is trite from constant and varied use. But it has a point that keeps it alive.

Only the wearer can tell whether the shoes she tries pinch or displease her. The salesman may suggest and present styles and sizes for her approval, but she alone knows when a style pleases her, and when it fits her.

PATRICIAN Styles are greatly varied. Every type and size of foot are provided for, so that it is unnecessary for any woman to leave a PATRICIAN shop with an unsatisfactory pair of boots.

If one style does not suit you, or a size does not fit ask for others until the right one is presented. It is an assured fact that there is a perfect fit and a satisfactory style for you among the many PATRICIAN styles.

ST. LOUIS WOMAN, WHO WON TEACHING HONORS IN ARGENTINE

NEW WOMAN WELCOME IN ARGENTINE LAND; TEACHER WINS FAME

Everything American Except the Divorce Habit Adopted by Southern Nation, Which Has Profited by Ideas of Many Northern Instructors.

A NATION basing much of its progress and culture on America as a model, yet possessed of a keen and virile individuality all its own. Such is the description of the Argentine Republic, South America's most advanced Government, by Mrs. Clara Bischoff, now visiting her sister, Mrs. W. J. Garvey, 4211 Russell avenue, given to a Post-Dispatch reporter. Twenty-three years ago Mrs. Bischoff paid her first visit to Argentine, and she has remained, with Miss Jennie Howard of Boston, long enough to found numerous normal schools and to receive the generous pension provided by the Government for her 20 years' faithful service.

Mrs. Bischoff is an interesting woman, with an intellectual face, kindly eyes, and a retiring manner. She is a St. Louis woman, having graduated from St. Louis schools, and afterward taught here. She says:

"I have traveled a great deal in the past years, and have visited the principal cities in the United States and Europe, but nowhere have I found a city so progressive as Buenos Ayres; in fact, all the Argentine Republic has done wonders in the past 20 years in the way of progress; most of which this Republic owes to her 'schoolmaster president,' Domingo Faustine Sarmiento, chosen while he was at Washington acting as Secretary to the Minister of his country. He was a man of powerful intellect, and was enthusiastically interested in American public institutions. He traveled all over the country, making a study of public education through the normal school system, and became thoroughly imbued with the American idea of educating the masses.

Copy American Methods.

"American methods in general are much copied in Argentine Republic, which still sends to the United States for teachers. While I was in London a few months ago, I received a letter from the Argentine Government, asking me to recommend an American teacher to take charge of the school at Carrientes, and on my recommendation, Miss Rosa Dark of Indianapolis was appointed.

"Among those women who particularly distinguished themselves was Clara J. Armstrong of New York and Mary O. Graham of St. Louis, who founded two schools, which are still looked upon as models of excellence. Then there was Miss Amy E. Wales, who established the first graded school under American plans in Asuncion, Paraguay, and introduced manual training."

When asked regarding the new woman in Argentina, Mrs. Bischoff enthusiastically replied that she had everything before her.

Welcome the "New Woman."

"Especially of late, the country has taken such great strides forward," she said, "that the ambitious woman may hope for any degree of advancement and recognition."

Two years after arriving in Argentina, Mrs. Bischoff became principal of the Normal School in Rosario in the province of Santa Fe, a place which she held for 20 years. This is the largest school in South America.

"When I became principal," Mrs. Bischoff said, "there were 230 scholars; when I resigned there were 800, and the children of my first scholars were starting in the kindergarten.

"The standard of education is just as high as that in the United States. The Argentine girl is very ambitious and studious, having an excellent memory and excelling in languages and history. Only science and mathematics come hard.

"Courtesy is an inborn instinct with these people, and the poorest street Arab has finer manners than any American boy I ever met. The girls are sweet and tractable, and invariably beautiful, although they generally grow stout when older.

"They lack the independence and the self confidence of the American girl, which is the result of association with men. The Argentine girl is brought up without masculine society; she is not even allowed to speak alone with the man whom she is to marry.

"I have been asked if happy marriages are possible under this system, and I think they are. In fact, my residence in Argentina has convinced me that the freedom which the American enjoys with men is an evil.

Divorces Are Rare.

"Divorce is not found necessary in Argentina. Although a divorce law exists, as remarriage is not permitted, it is practically useless.

"The greatest ambition of the Argentine girl is to marry. After marriage a woman's ideal is to have a large family. One woman, who has 14 sons, all of whom are serving in the army, has been given a life pension by her country.

"The Woman's Federation of Clubs meets once a week, and I have often been surprised at the merit of papers read at its sessions and the advanced thought displayed in them.

"Teaching is the profession which offers most to the ambitious woman in Argentina, however. Such a thing as a female stenographer or typist is unknown; a native girl could not go into a business office and be well thought of. Of late years, however, girls of the lower class have been employed in the shops.

"We have introduced gymnastics into the schools, but have not met with much success. The Argentine girl is not fond of athletic sports.

Birth Marks Class Lines.

"Class distinction is very strictly drawn. No matter how poor a family may become they are always welcomed in the best social circles if they are of honorable descent. The daughter of a rich man finds it a most difficult thing to gain recognition.

Before leaving the Argentine Republic Mrs. Bischoff not only received public recognition and thanks from the Government for her services, but was given two interesting gifts from the school over which she presided so long. One is an album of Russian calf leather, upon the cover of which is a design wrought in gold and silver, representing learning, enlightening the world. The second gift, presented by the faculty of the school, is a locket, set with diamonds in the form of a large star.

DALZELL THREATENES FIGHT

He Wants Pension Agency at Pittsburg Retained.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—Representative Dalzell threatens to lead a fight against the Committee on Appropriations because of its decision to abolish nine of the 18 pension agencies, one of them being in Pittsburg, which is Mr. Dalzell's district. Mr. Dalzell says that unless the Pittsburg agency is retained he will work on the floor of the House to abolish all the agencies and have pensions paid direct by the Pension Bureau here.

Pension Commissioner Warner has said that this would perhaps be the best thing to do, and the committee is inclined to agree with him. The abolition of the nine agencies will save about $100,000 a year.

League May Draw Bill to Curb Misleading Ones.

The Legislative Committee of the Ad Men's League is considering introducing into the Legislature a bill proposing that all persons producing false or misleading advertisements should be punished by law. A rough draft of this bill was introduced by President Aubuchon of the league, at a luncheon Tuesday at the Planters Hotel. The bill was objected to by several members, but was referred to the Legislative Committee for consideration.

About 125 members of the league and a number of merchants from Arkansas, Texas and Oklahoma were at the luncheon.

Four Years Ahead of the Pure Drug Law!

There is one line of medicines in which no change in formulas is necessary in order to conform with Uncle Sam's new Pure Food and Drug Law.

Rexall Remedies were made to conform with this law in every particular four years ago—long before this law was thought of!

At that time one thousand leading druggists of the country, owing to the unsatisfactory way in which they had to sell patent medicines, decided to form a co-operative company and manufacture a line of remedies for which they could stand absolutely responsible from their knowledge and control of ingredients in these cures.

The plan of Rexall Remedies was the result.

Could these thousand druggists then have foreseen the new Pure Food Law, and known every clause of it, they could not have made the Rexall plan conform to it more closely.

There is nothing secret about Rexall Remedies, and there never was!

For years Rexall ads have told the public that each Rexall druggist had the formula of every Rexall Remedy on file, and would willingly give any formula to whoever asked for it.

Moreover, Rexall Remedies protect you more than the Pure Food Law does. You now only know the dangerous drugs in patent medicines—we know and have always known everything in Rexall Remedies—and have always been glad to show you the printed complete formulas.

No Rexall Remedy is a "cure-all." Each of the 300 remedies has a formula which years of experience have shown to be the most reliable cure for a certain human ill.

The proof of our confidence in Rexall Remedies is the Rexall guarantee. Every Rexall sale we make is with the understanding that if the purchaser is dissatisfied he or she can get back the money paid, by simply returning the empty package or bottle. For four years the sincerity of this offer has never been challenged!

A few of the 300 famous REXALL Remedies, one for each human ill, are:

FOR CATARRH—MUCU-TONE

The chief ingredients of Mucu-Tone are Gentian, Cubebs, Cascara Sagrada, Glycerine and Sarsaparilla.

Gentian is recognized in medicine as one of the greatest tonics ever discovered. It combines the tonic powers of all known "bitters," with none of the disadvantages applying to any.

Cubebs have long been recognized as a specific in the treatment of all catarrhal conditions. Its action is prompt and its benefit almost invariable.

Cascara Sagrada is especially introduced for its unapproachable laxative properties.

The combination of these with Glycerine and Sarsaparilla makes Mucu-Tone a remedy that attacks catarrh from every point and gradually restores the diseased tissues. Bottle, 50c.

FOR NERVES — AMERICANITIS ELIXIR

The Rexall Americanitis Elixir is a tonic nerve food composed chiefly of free Phosphorus, Glycerophosphates, Iron Pyrophosphate and Calisaya.

The wonderful results of this remedy are due to the fact that it supplies Phosphorous to the nerve cells in a condition in which it can be immediately and easily taken up by them.

The Glycerophosphates, actual nerve-tissue builders, are one of the most recent and valuable additions to this branch of medicine and unquestionably a more efficient remedy than the well-known Hypophosphites.

The Iron Pyrophosphates are the most easily assimilated form of iron which give tone and color, and the combined alkaloids of Calisaya Bark have a tonic effect on almost all the functions of the body. 75c. and $1.00 a bottle.

REXALL "93" HAIR TONIC

The famous Rexall "93" Hair Tonic is composed in chief of Resorcin, Beta Naphthol and Pilocarpin.

Resorcin is one of the latest and most effective germ-killers discovered by science, and in connection with Beta Naphthol, which is both germicidal and antiseptic, a combination is formed which not only destroys the germs which rob the hair of its nutriment, but creates a clean and healthy condition of the scalp, which prevents the development of new germs.

Pilocarpin is a well known agent for restoring the hair to its natural color, when the loss of color has been due to a disease of the scalp. It is not a coloring matter or dye.

This combination of curatives mixed with alcohol as a stimulant, perfects the most effective remedy for hair and scalp troubles known today. Per bottle, 50c.

"REXALL" ORDERLIES
The New Laxative

If you suffer from constipation or a sluggish liver, we want you to try this newest member of the Rexall family. It has never failed.

"Rexall" Orderlies have all the virtues and none of the defects of those laxatives and cathartics already known. They are harmless vanilla-flavored tablets that effect a re-adjustment of Nature's functions—no griping, no nausea, no purging.

Pleasant to the taste—they give immediate relief.

A trial will prove to you that they are the best laxative and cathartic ever prescribed.

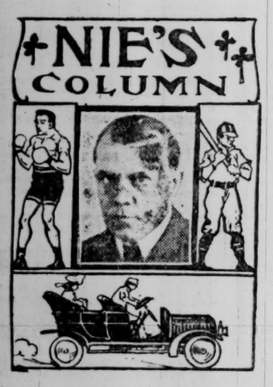
WHY NOT SETTLE POOL CHAMPIONSHIP HERE IN ST. LOUIS

'Kid' Hueston's Effort to Carry Match to New York Not Sportsmanlike and Will Be Resented by Local Followers of the Game.

GANS TELLS ABOUT FAKE FIGHT



WHY is it that St. Louis is not to have the match for the pool championship?

"Kid" Hueston, a St. Louis man, holder of the title, has been challenged by Edwin Dawson, another St. Louisan, and under his rights governing such matches Hueston picks New York or Brooklyn as the place for the games to be played.

Hueston, in St. Louis, makes his headquarters at one billiard academy. Dawson plays around another place. Why wouldn't it be possible to play games first at one hall and then at the other? Is Hueston afraid that if Dawson should win or make a good showing he would attract too much attention to the rival billiard hall?

Hueston's stand in the matter has been censured in the various pool and billiard rooms of the city and by all lovers of fair play and sportsmanlike methods.

St. Louis has stood pre-eminent in all the cities of this country for its generous support of the game. It has not only patronized liberally all championship matches, but has also supported the two billiard academies where these two contestants for championship have made their living.

Under these circumstances it must be conceded that the public here is entitled to this match, which has already awakened a keen interest, owing not only to the popularity and skill of the players, but to the feeling existing between the two rival academies which they represent.

I saw Dawson yesterday afternoon and asked him why New York was selected and he responded: "I don't know. For my part I'd much rather play in St. Louis, where we each have ten friends for every one we have in New York. I'm not financially able to go to New York and Hueston knows that, but money or no money, I'll be on hand any place he finally names, if I have to walk to get there.

"The winner won't make his railroad fare and expenses, as pool is very quiet on East."

In George Slosson's and Maurice Daly's big rooms in New York pool is almost a dead issue and the pool tables are being replaced with billiard tables. In the last metropolitan championship played there not enough money was taken in to pay for the officials and guarantees.

The recent American championship at balk-line billiards was another evidence of the lack of public support, as the receipts were not enough to cover the cost of the hall and advertising.

The final game to determine the championship between Harr P. Cline and Albert Cutler was played in Maurice Daly's private room, in order to reduce the expense and leave something for the billiard players.

Then, with Willie Hoppe and Champion George Sutton as the great attractions, the last game at the Grand Central Palace was such a financial frost that it cost Sutton the winner, more than $300 of the $500 stake money to make expenses.

The last pool championship game played in New York was played at Clarence Green's Montauk rooms in Brooklyn, between Clearwater and Eby. In three nights' play the receipts were less than $125.

Arguing from this, it would seem evident that the sooner Hueston recedes from his position not to play in St. Louis the sooner he will right himself in the eyes of the men who now censure him for his unsportsmanlike tactics, so detrimental to the pool and billiard interests of the city in which he resides and makes his living.

GANS TELLS HOW HE FAKED FIGHT.

Joe Gans has told Bob Edgren all about the fake fight with Jimmy Britt.

"I'll settle all questions between Britt and myself by beating him next time we meet," said Gans. "I'll go out to Nevada by March 1, which my contract demands, and do my regular training there.

"My other fight with Britt was a fake. It was even rehearsed beforehand to make sure it would go off all right. They say Patti nor Irving, nor none of them actors, ever had anything on Britt and me the way we did it.

"That was when I was under Herford, before I made up my mind to fight for myself, and fight on the level, and try to get right with the people.

"At first the plan was for Britt to win. Herford fixed it up that way. I was to get 67 1-2 per cent of the purse for losing. But I wouldn't stand for that. I told Herford that I'd go out and win any way. So he had to change it, and fix it for me to win from Britt on a foul. Britt got the 67½ per cent for losing. He was to make a great fight for five rounds, and then lose his head and foul me. Graney was to give the decision. It all went off the way we rehearsed it. We got 32½ per cent for our end, and we made something on the betting. It wasn't very much—about $5000.

I didn't get anthing worth mentioning out of my fake fights. It was just like there was four or five sieves above me and all the money had to be poured down through them. Each sieve held some of it, and the dump at the bottom that I got was mighty small.

"When I got free from Herford I made up my mind to be straight—the way I wanted to be—and cut loose from everything crooked. It feels mighty good to hear people all over the country talk to me like they have confidence in me. It makes a big difference. And it pays to be straight, too. In the last year I have fought for purses aggregating $72,000 and my share has been enough to make me independent.

THE PUGILISTIC CENTURY PLANT BLOOMING AGAIN.

The fight fans of San Francisco are not prepared to believe that Robert Ruby Fitzsimmons is going to battle again. Perhaps the memory of Bob's last fight in that city a little over a year ago when he was well-trimmed by Jack O'Brien, is too fresh in their minds.

According to a Frisco paper the day that the news was handed out by the New York World that Fitz would fight again two men were seen on Broadway in New York locked in each other's arms and weeping bitterly. "We have been handed a lemon," sobbed one under his pink whiskers. "Alas, too true," moaned the other as he shitted his shovel from one shoulder to the other.

They were the undertaker and the grave digger. They were bewailing the cruel throwdown that Robert Fitzsimmons gave them when he announced, contrary to all scientific deduction, that he was about to return to the ring. He has buffaloed the world of science. He is dead and still lives. Allah be praised.

It is reported that the petrified speckled beauty is matched to fight six rounds with Tommy Burns on the 16th of March at Philadelphia. Possibly the operator who sent the message over the wire was drunk or perhaps the old red kangaroo is looking for a little notoriety before he is gathered to his father for good. But, nevertheless, the telgram states that he will go six rounds in March. It is not for us to seek for "ulterior motives." We must take the facts as they stand.

The only thing that removes the farcial elements from the match is the comparative sizes of Fitz and Burns. Tommy, standing on tiptoe, will reach to the apex of Robert's knee. If Burns can negotiate a knockout with a punch the ankle, he can win the fight. He could not reach Fitz's jaw with an air-rom the way Burns and O'Brien are floating around making matches it ot look as though they are bound very closely by their alleged match, have been made by McCarey in Los Angeles.

Fitz may be able to flounder around for six rounds. If the Philadelphians illing to witness a good ghost scene, they will enjoy the fight. There is a in a certain part of Pennsylvania called Lemon avenue.

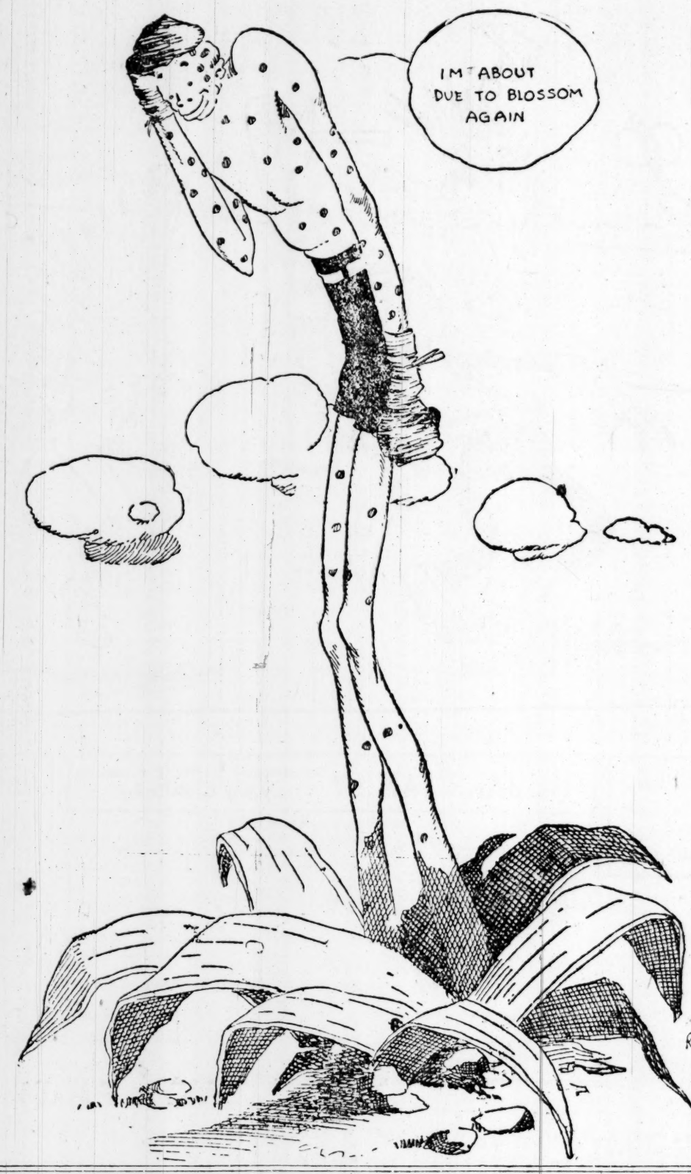
THE FISTIC CENTURY PLANT



CHICAGO WOMEN IN BOXING BOUT

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Jan. 23.—A burlesque "ring battle" between Miss Marion Talbor, dean of women and head of the household administration at the University of Chicago, and Miss Vesta Jameson has come to light. It was a feature of an entertainment given for the faculty at Green Hall by the women students. The dean was "awarded the decision in the third round."

Miss Talbot bore her new title of "champion Midway pugilist" modestly today.

"There is little that I care to say about our so-called 'circus,'" said Miss Talbot. "There were several amusing 'stunts' in the entertainment and I took part in one of them."

Large green posters advertised the "go" as "Little Mike and Big Pat" in three rounds.

A. A. U. WILL INVESTIGATE THE "AMATEUR" BOXERS THURSDAY

John J. O'Connor, president of the Western Division of the A. A. U., has called a meeting of the registration committee to be held at the Missouri A. C. Thursday evening for the purpose of investigating the amateur standing of several boxers who were recently granted amateur cards.

Leo Jacobson, who competed in the Olympic A. C. tournament last week and won out in the 115 pound class, will be one of the men on whose case the Registration Committee will act. Jacobson fought a professional fight on the River for the West End Club. Nevertheless after being suspended he secured an amateur card from J. Arthur Corbitt, chairman of the Registration Committee of the W. A. A. U., which made it possible for him to compete in the Olympic Club bouts.

Mr. Corbitt is not well acquainted with the boxing situation as he has held the position of chairman for only a short time. It is very probable, however, that if it is proved to the satisfaction of the committee that Jacobson did fight on the River that he will be expelled from the W. A. A. U.

Owen Pickett, a 135-pound boxer, has also been granted an amateur card. Pickett went on in a try-out bout at the West End Club several years ago with a number of other boys who have been unable to box as amateurs since. Professionals boxed the same evening but the amateurs declared that they received no money. They were indefinitely suspended. Pickett's case will be taken up and it will be considered whether he shall be allowed to retain his card or not.

President O'Connor declared Tuesday that at Thursday night's meeting he would try to influence the committee to appoint a representative who would attend all of the amateur and professional boxing shows about St. Louis for the purpose of keeping track of the amateurs. The members of the registration committee are: John C. O'Brien, Florance Curran and J. Arthur Corbitt.

SPORTING NOTES

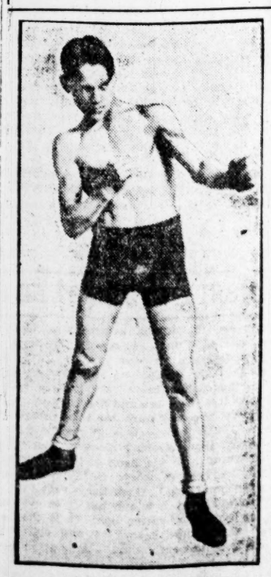
AFTER EIGHT rounds of good fighting, Harry Lewis of Philadelphia delivered a knockout blow to Rube Smith of Denver before a large crowd at the Coliseum in Denver last night. At no time during the bout was Smith a match for the lad from the East. The knock-out blow was delivered after Lewis had nearly knocked out his man twice before. Twice the gong came to the rescue of Smith, his wonderful recuperative powers enabling him to get back into the fight. Throughout the battle Lewis showed his superiority. Smith was ineffective throughout. In the second and third rounds Smith was saved from a knock-out by the gong, but each time he got up and made a game fight.

A SPECIAL 6 o'clock billiard match between Alfredo de Oro and Charles Peterson has been arranged for the Lindell Academy, 712 Washington avenue, for business men on their way home. The game will be "red ball," and as Peterson won the last match at this style of game, de Oro will try hard to turn the tables. This style of game has become very popular of late, and the skill and brilliancy of these two players insure an interesting contest. The game will last about one hour, and admission will be complimentary.

"WELL, JIMMY BRITT has gone and done it! We knew all along that it would have to happen, but to think that Jimmy—and Ned Wayburn is one of the sorest parties! O-o-h, you just ought to hear him rave!" Thus spoke a brown-eyed maid who belongs to the camp of Mr. Wayburn's chorus girls. And here's what it's all about. Neva Aymar, the violet-eyed soloist of Mr. Wayburn's prize act, the Rain Bears, has eloped with James Edward Britt, prize fighter. Or, else Britt has eloped with her. No matter which it is, she has gone away, and Britt cannot be found. So what is one going to think? Huh?

JAKE SCHAEFER, the Wizard, father of balk-line billiards, has challenged George Sutton of Chicago, holder of the 18.1 and 18.2 balk-line championships, for the 18.1 emblem, and Sutton has accepted the Wizard's defi. Sutton defended the 18.2 title successfully against Ora Morningstar on Monday night in Chicago. Sutton's score was 500 points to 472 for Morningstar. The winner's high run was 71 and the loser's 72. Sutton's average was 17. 24. 28. and Morningstar's 17. 13. 27. The Wizard wants to play at least 3000 points. He claims that a game of 500 points is too short for a world's championship contest.

SHELTON MAY BECOME STAR FIGHTER



JOHN SHELTON of the Missouri A. C. is considered one of the best amateur boxers ever developed in St. Louis, in spite of the fact that he has fought but twice in public. Shelton weighs 115 pounds. Saturday night he will meet Marshall Eaton of the Crescent A. C. in a special bout of the boxing tournament between the New Illinois A. C. and M. A. C. amateurs in the club gymnasium.

The 115-pound class is considered one of the hardest in the list about St. Louis. Maurice Schneider of the M. A. C., who suffered a broken jaw some time ago, has recovered and expects to box again next month. Marshall Eaton, too, is clever, fast and a hard puncher. Shelton, however, has a style that no other amateur in St. Louis has yet displayed. He is frail and weak looking but has a fine pair of shoulders.

When boxing he steps in with short jolts for the chin that when they land drop their man every time. He knocked out Eaton in the third round at the M. A. C. not long ago. In his first bout he met a boy named Inge. Inge was from the Crescent A. C. and was expected to simply smother Shelton. Inge rushed in at Shelton in the first round. He kept rushing. Suddenly Shelton's left shot out after about 30 seconds of work. Back went Inge's head and over came Shelton's right. Inge was knocked out and he could not be revived for almost 15 minutes, and had to be carried out of the ring.

John Kelly of the Crescent A. C. is also after Shelton's scalp. Eaton is sure he will defeat Shelton Saturday, while Maurice Schneider also declares that he will trim Shelton as soon as he gets the chance. Meanwhile Shelton works out with Joe Lydon and the other heavier M. A. C. boxers each afternoon. The other men do not fancy boxing with Shelton, for the reason that he seems to be unable to slip over his hooks unless he puts his force behind them. When he does Shelton's opponents drop to their knees, in spite of the fact that some of the men he boxes with outweigh him more than 40 pounds.

Tommy Sullivan, boxing instructor of the Missouri A. C., not only predicts a bright future for Shelton in the amateur ranks, but also declares that if Shelton enters the professional ranks, he has an excellent chance to become a champion. Other good judges of boxing who have noted Shelton's stamina, perfect complexion, youth, strength, skill, speed and most of all his terrific and natural short wallops, coupled with the fact that the harder he is stung the more aggressively will he come back, agree with Sullivan.

ST. LOUIS U. AND C. B. C. MAY MEET

Track Athletic Events Between Juniors Likely to Bring Senior Teams Together.

WASHINGTON MAY TRY

With the dual track meet between the C. B. C. and St. Louis University juniors, scheduled to be held in the gymnasium of St. Louis University tomorrow afternoon, it is expected that in a short time the senior track teams of the two institutions will meet in a dual meet.

Track athletics at C. B. C. have been practically dead for a number of years. Not so many years ago C. B. C. had the best runners, jumpers and sprinters in the city. The annual field days of the college were usually productive of a new local record or two. That, however, was when Tom Cox, the veteran pedestrian, was at the college. After Cox was killed by a highwayman, nobody was hired to take his place. From that time on athletics went to the bad.

Efforts are now being made at the college to revive track athletics. Last year, for the first time in many years, the big Easton avenue institution was not represented by a rugby football team. That was because of the fact that the game was opposed by the faculty.

The boys at the college are encouraged more than ever to take up baseball and track athletics. Soccer football is still the most popular sport at the college, and the C. B. C. youngsters are the cleverest lot of players in the city. Baseball also seems to come natural to the college boys.

St. Louis University and the Central Y. M. C. A. will meet in an indoor track meet in the near future. The Central Y. M. C. A. track team defeated the C. B. C. boys in a dual track meet some time ago. Last year the Central Y. M. C. A. also defeated the St. Louis U. athletes in a dual meet at the Central Y. M. C. A., but the varsity team this year is much stronger than last.

At Washington University a number of athletes are using the gymnasium under the directions of Athletic Director Ewerhardt and it is possible that the wearers of the myrtle and maroon will engage in a number of dual contests, both indoors and on the cinder path.

Athletic Director Bassett started his big track squad to work in the M. A. C. gymnasium this week and the local champions expect to make a clean sweep in all the meets in which they take part. Last year the St. Louis University team won the trophy for the greatest number of points scored in the handicap events at the annual St. Louis U. meet.

This year Bassett expects his men to do better, even if they are placed on scratch in almost every event, as was the case last year.

TO AMEND RULES AT MEETING HERE

Milwaukee Wants a Number of Changes and Shorter Period of Competition.

A resolution will be introduced at the American Bowling Congress in St. Louis in March, which, if adopted, will revolutionize the political side of the national bowling organization.

Charles F. Moll of Milwaukee is father of the resolution and the important candidates for offices in the American Bowling Congress by the delegates upon the convention floor.

By direct nomination of candidates in open convention it is believed that much of the odious gang rule that has prevailed for years can be broken up.

The main point of the resolution as drawn up by Mr. Moll, who is known all over the country as one of the best posted bowling authorities in the United States, follows:

"Strike out section 7 on page 11 of the bylaws of the A. B. C., which reads as follows:

"The Executive Committee shall be a Nominating Committee for the purpose of placing in nomination at each annual meeting of the congress such persons for the respective offices to be filled as they may by vote decide, and the report of the Committee on Nominations shall be made under the order of 'election of officers.' After such report is read, any delegate or set of delegates may make other nominations for any or all of the said offices.

"And substitute the following:

"The delegates present shall nominate from the floor of the congress such persons for the respective offices to be filled as they by vote may decide and the results of their nominations shall be made under the order of 'election of officers.'"

TERRY'S BENEFIT ON FOR TONIGHT

Is Expected That Great Sum Will Be Raised for Stricken Fighter.

RECALLS PALMER BOUT

Tonight at Madison Square Garden, New York, there will be a great gathering of sporting men from all America. The occasion will be the benefit tendered to Terry McGovern. There will never be another one for Terry. John L. Sullivan has had a dozen or more at different times since he hit the downward trail. There may be other benefits for the great John L. sometime, but McGovern will not need another. Terry may not live long. The doctors say that he will never recover; will linger for a while, perhaps, and then at last the greatest little champion of them all will become only a memory in the minds of those who saw him battle his way to the highest honors of the pugilistic world. It is to make these last years—or months—of Terry McGovern's easy and to provide for his family that Sam Harris got up the benefit.

Terry's victory over Pedlar Palmer made him in a moment the most famous of all fighters, paved the way for future championships, brought him popularity and fortune.

Pedlar Palmer, champion of England, and one of the most clever little fighters that ever trod a resined canvas, was brought to this country to fight George Dixon, world's featherweight champion.

Sam Harris, Terry's manager, persuaded Palmer to take Terry on just as a preliminary to his battle for the championship that was to come off a month or so later.

At the wharf Harris and McGovern and a great crowd of sporting men gathered to welcome the English fighter. No invader ever met with such a welcome before. On the night of his arrival Palmer was banqueted and cheered and made much of. In the fight Terry knocked him out in a round.

The history of the famous fight at Tuckahoe will never be forgotten. What a fight that was. Terry, the little smiling Terry, who had met Palmer and looked him over at the wharf, rushed from his corner like a little savage bulldog. All the smiling friendliness for a worthy foeman had disappeared. In an instant Palmer, boxing with the cleverness of a master, was forced back in helter-skelter flight. His cleverness discounted, his guard beaten down, his footwork made slow in comparison to the lightning fast Brooklyn lad, Palmer found his championship aspirations dissappearing in a swirling cloud of stars. Try as he would, it was impossible to block McGovern's blows or to retaliate.

Before the spectators had time to settle in their seats Palmer was down. The bell clanged. The handle was down slipped from the time-keeper's hand. Palmer was hustled to his corner before the mistake could be rectified. Lucky that it was not McGovern who was down. The Englishman would have been shrieking "robbery!" to this day.

But the mistake gave Palmer a much needed rest. He came up full of fight again. A hurried clash—a swift series of plunges by McGovern, a flurry of blows, and the Englishman, struck over the heart with a pile-driver blow that would have dropped a middleweight, crumpled down to stay until the fatal count was finished.

After that Terry's career up through the championships was clear sailing. He whipped George Dixon thoroughly—little Chocolate's first defeat in many a year—and went straight through the ranks of the featherweights and lightweights until that fatal day in Hartford, when Young Corbett at last lowered Terry's colors and started him on the downward slide that has brought him to his end.

SOME GOOD ONES DOWN WEDNESDAY

Consistent Work Was Done in Tuesday Night's Session of City Tourney

INTEREST IS UNABATED

While the work of the entrants in Tuesday's session of the city tourney at the De Soto alleys fell far short of being a pyrotechnical exhibition of it, the interest was not one whit abated, and afternoon and evening found the spectators' gallery crowded to its limit.

Dr. F. P. Graves made the best score of the evening, his average being 191 1-3. Zimmerman and E. Bloom lead the two-man teams last night with 1110. F. P. Graves and J. B. Graves fell but three pins short of the leaders, getting a score of 1107.

The high score of 595 was clipped off by M. Henson in the individual events. M. J. Marshal was second with 580, and H. Schatl was third with 574.

Wednesday night's program is one of the best of this, the concluding week, of the tourney. Some of the best two-man teams and individual bowlers in St. Louis are listed and a rare treat is promised.

"FIRST IN EVERYTHING."

Swettenham is probably in a perspiration by this time.

The Tillman "spiel" was too strong for the freaks of the senatorial show.

The Tubbs anti-tipping bill has passed the House at Jefferson City and the waiters will pass the House members—pass them lemons when they ask for food.

PARTY DISLOYALTY

Excise Commissioner Mulvihill did not hurt himself in popular estimation when he confessed to the Senate Committee on Municipal Corporations that he voted in the recent election "against certain Democratic candidates for the Legislature and minor officers, whose records were odious."

The Democratic Senator who rebuked Mr. Mulvihill by remarking that up in his country a Democrat is measured by his devotion to his party—"We take the ballot and vote her straight from top to bottom"—only reflected discredit on himself. The breed of mossbacks and yellow dog partisans to which this Senator belongs, is rapidly disappearing in civilized communities.

No honest citizen could have voted in the November election for some of the Democratic candidates whoses nomination was a disgrace of the party, and whose election would have been a menace to the people. Party devotion measured by a vote for these bad candidates would have been disloyalty to the public. It would have been, in reality, disloyalty to the best interests of the party.

Something besides repudiation of unfit Democratic candidates must be discovered in Mr. Mulvihill's record, to convince the people of St. Louis that he is not fit for his office.

The New York Society for the Suppression of Noise should have an active branch in every other city.

MR. BEGGS' FAVORITE PLAY.

A Milwaukee analyst of John I. Beggs tells us that our St. Louis Colossus of Roads seldom goes to the theater, but that when he does go he wants to see something very light and amusing.

It is with such personal analysis that we throw light upon the acts of men, and we believe that this simple observation by a Milwaukee man who knows him enables us finally to understand some of the things Mr. Beggs has done since he became the master of the St. Louis street car system. Mr. Beggs is probably very impressionable at the play. Many persons are. A St. Louis youth confessed a few days ago that he got his suggestion to be a hold-up man at Havlin's Theater. Chicago had a similar and striking case in Banker Stensland, who fled to Morocco after witnessing a musical play in which that African shore was pictured as the international refuge for big thieves. Lombroso relates an exceptional case in which a man went from a theater and committed the very crime he had seen committed upon the stage.

Knowing the force of suggestion by the play, and being now fully acquainted with Mr. Beggs' method of running a great street railroad system, we think we can name his favorite play in "Nickel, Nickel, or Car 23," in which Neil O'Brien has been touring the country several years with the Dockstader Minstrels. Seemingly, Mr. Beggs has adopted about all the suggestions in this piece, which would argue that he has often seen O'Brien in it and perhaps knows the text by heart. When the Dockstader troupe next comes to the city it will give us a great deal of encouragement in our psychological work to discover Mr. Beggs in a box.

There is an effort to enact the Pennypacker libel law in Colorado. Is it possible that little Colorado has as many rascals as big Pennsylvania?

ART AND THE BOSS SYSTEM.

As a representative of the high art of Japan, Mr. Sadakichi Hartmann tells us in St. Louis that the high art we get from Europe is manufactured in carload lots to meet the demand. He reveals the mournful fact that he has been in Parisian "ateliers," which are really factories, where the "master" is the "boss" and the pupils, supposed to be his loving disciples in art, are really the factory operatives.

When we want a carload of high art, the operative manufactures it, the boss "assembles" it, signs his name in the lower corner and ships it to us for all the traffic will bear.

This is sad indeed. But it is not the artistic habit of Paris alone. We voted our United States Senators a secretary apiece to begin with and as a result, except when some Senator or Congressman is insulting some other extemporaneously, we never know whether the high art in the eloquence of the Congressional Record is the product of the Boss or the operative. Literary factories grind out literary art in the same way. It takes operatives who know the business to do the work. It takes the name of a distinguished Literary Boss to sell it.

What ought to be the misery of it for Mr. Hartmann is that this is what we taught the Japs in teaching them our higher civilization. Where once they worked, one by one, for months or for years, to make something finer and more beautiful than was ever made before, they have learned now to manufacture Japanese high art on rush orders for immediate shipment. They turn it out by the carload lots and then proceed to swagger under the stimulation of the uplifting idea that they are just as civilized as anybody in Europe or America.

Senator Stone accepted Senator Tillman's reference to his feats with eggshells with philosophical good humor; the Senator is used to little flings of that kind.

THE LAW'S DELAY.

It is well known to lawyers and litigants that the Supreme Court of Missouri is some three years behind its docket; that is, a case appealed today to that court would not be called for hearing before 1910. The members of the present court are not responsible for this unfortunate condition, as it existed before they became members of that court, and similar complaint is heard as to the condition of the dockets of appellate courts in other states. The law's delays were recounted by Hamlet as among the necessary evils of life. But however ancient and general in this condition, its evils are accentuated at the present time. The requirements of business do not admit of these delays. Business men oftentimes prefer to submit to injustice and to ruinous settlements because of the prospect of the inevitable delay in securing their rights by litigation. That delay is sometimes ruinous.

Under the conditions of our modern civilization the delay of justice is often the denial of justice. It is obvious also that it is the plain people and not the great corporate combinations who are the greatest sufferers from the law's delays. The latter, with their organized legal staffs and large dockets, have come to treat the delays of litigation as a matter of course and as an effective means of enforcing settlements. The small business man cannot afford to wait. One result of this state of things is the organization of committees of arbitration in our different trade organizations for the adjustment of business controversies.

We publish in another column the plans suggested by Mr. E. A. Krauthoff, one of the leading members of the bar of Kansas City, which, in its general features, has received the indorsement of the bar associations of both Kansas City and St. Louis. It has the great merit of simplifying our appellate procedure by providing one Supreme Court with a court in banc and separate divisions at St. Louis, Kansas City, Springfield and Jefferson City, taking the place of our present Supreme Court and Courts of Appeal. There would be no displacement of the individual judges, as the present judges of the Courts of Appeal would be continued as judges of the Supreme Court.

It is urged that this plan would enable the appellate business of the State to be so distributed that all cases could be reached and disposed of without delay.

An excellent feature is the provision for supplying the vacancy caused by the illness or other disability of a Judge by summoning one of the Circuit Court judges of the State. This is the plan which has proved so effective in enabling the United States Courts of Appeals to keep up with their dockets.

Without assuming to discuss the details of this plan of Mr. Krauthoff, we are satisfied that its general features, and especially its object, will commend themselves to the thoughtful citizens of the State, both lawyer and layman.

This time Tillman pitchforked himself.

A GREAT AND PRESSING ISSUE.

Cheers greeted the passage of a resolution passed by a Maplewood indignation meeting, demanding State control of interurban trolley lines. They are cheers for the inevitable. They came at the right time and no doubt in the right way. The inevitable will certainly come. It ought to come at the right time and in the right way.

Unfortunately, it is by no means certain that it will do either. The question involved is most important for the development of the State. It is a great question, even if we do not go beyond the future of the interurban trolley in the State. It extends also to the use of the present highways of the State and to all hereafter to be opened, by all modern motor vehicles as well as by electric cars.

The State needs as soon as possible a thousand miles of electric interurban track for every hundred it has now. It needs a hundred better automobiles than it has now for every one now in use, and it needs to have them all run at a safe rate of speed with all the rights as well as all the duties of the State highways respected. If these rights and duties are not respected, they need to be enforced, at once and effectively.

Under existing conditions, every county, town or village through which a highway runs, can block it. The least possible interference by the State has been the Missouri rule and ought to be still. But in such a case as this, a general system under State control is inevitable.

The rights of the public must be protected against abuse by privilege by holders of franchises and by owners of motor vehicles of all kinds. There must be protection also for the right of the public to use these modern methods for development. They have in them opportunities for development for Missouri, for every city, county, town and village in it, greater than it is now possible to realize in imagination. That the opportunity may be realized in fact, the State must act, promptly and wisely, before abuses become a privileged custom, asserting itself as "higher law."

Secretary Root refuses to talk of Swettenham. Swettenham is unspeakable.

MISSISSIPPI VALLEY'S FUTURE.

From the Chicago Journal.

If this waterway is not built in our time, it will surely come, sooner or later. Men today do not dream in their wildest fantasies of what destiny has in store for the Mississippi Valley, which before many centuries have passed will be the richest and most densely populated part of the world. Belgium now supports the greatest population to the square mile on earth, but Belgium does not compare in richness with the Mississippi Valley, whose economic wealth in possibility staggers imagination.

OVER THE COFFEE

Little Tales Told to a Post-Dispatch Reporter During the Lunch Hour.

W. C. McCarty, secretary to the Chief of Police, told a good story about himself and a reporter, and in which a certain physician, Dr. R——, figured. The three men were "over the way" taking a little "medicine" to ward off colds. The doctor is known as a practical joker.

After the "medicine" had been downed, Dr. R—— pushed his "chaser" glass over to the dispenser.

"Say, Julius, fill that up with"— he halted, as though for a word, and snapped his fingers impatiently. "Fill that up with"— and again he made signs.

Thinking that he had forgotten the name of the desired beverage, Mac suggested seltzer.

"No, that's not the stuff," said the doctor.

The reporter named a mineral water. That was rejected.

Suddenly the physician's face shone, his fingers ceased their movements and with a happy sigh he said rapidly, as though he did not want to forget, "Water, water, water; that's it! I never can think of the name of that stuff!"

After they had left the "dispensary" the secretary and the reporter wondered whether the doctor really knew what water was, or whether he was joking again.

BEYOND THE CITY LINE.

'Tis pleasant, when our work is done,
To run and catch a car,
That soon we know will carry us
To rural scenes afar.

'Tis very, very pleasant sport
When summer zephyrs swing,
But when the snow is on the ground,
Ah, that's a diff'rent thing!

'Tis pleasant, when the car's delayed,
To scan the landscape 'round;
And muse on all the bliss it holds—
That place for which we're bound.
Full seems the road down which our steps
Will soon go wandering—
But when the snow is on the ground,
Ah, that's a diff'rent thing!

'Tis pleasant when a silence falls,
Replacing city noise,
And good to feel one's self secure
From noisy, restless boys;
And when an errand's to be done,
We take the road and sing—
But when the snow is on the ground,
Ah, that's a diff'rent thing!

HOW TO BE A CHAUFFEUR.

If you have a low front veranda to your home or boarding housee, crawl under it, after first saturating the floor above with gasoline and other greasy and ill-smelling substances that will leak through onto your face. Lie on your back under the floor where it leaks and try to trim your finger nails with a dull monkey wrench, swearing loudly all the while. When you get out go to the police station and pay a fine. This procedure, accompanied by the wearing of a pair of fierce goggles, will make you feel like the real thing.—Pittsburg Leader.

BEST OF THREE REASONS.

From the Atchison Globe.

Once an Atchison politician offered a turkey to the negro who could give the best reason for being a Republican. One old colored man said: "I'se a 'publican kase the 'publican party sot us niggers free;" and the man thought that would get him the turkey, but the next man said: "De reason I'se a Republican is because it's de party dat gives us pertective tariff;' and the politician thought: "That's an intelligent man; I will give him the turkey;" and the third man walked up and said: "De reason I'se a Republican is because I wants dat turkey;" and he got it.

THE JARR FAMILY

Eavesdropping for the Post-Dispatch
By Roy L. McCardell.

THEY DISCUSS EXTRA MONEY.

"I'VE made some extra money this week," said Mr. Jarr, with a smile, when he came home the other evening. "Here's fifty for you. Get something for yourself."

Mrs. Jarr looked at it dubiously.

"Oh, it's all right," said Mr. Jarr. "I got it honestly. Don't worry."

"I didn't say you didn't get it honestly," said Mrs. Jarr, "although goodness knows honesty doesn't seem to pay these days. There's the Migginses. Look at all the money they have. And all they tell people is that Mr. Miggins struck it rich in Goldfields. Why don't you do something like that?"

"I'm glad enough to have my job, and glad enough to make a little extra money, even if you do not seem glad to get it," replied Mr. Jarr.

"Oh, I'm glad enough to get it, for goodness knows I've a hundred places for it," said Mrs. Jarr; "but what I do say is that we would be better off if you'd be a little more generous other times."

"What other times?" asked Mr. Jarr.

"Oh, there's lots of other times you make money and never say a word. I don't know what makes you come and give this to me now. What have you been doing?"

"What have I been doing?" repeated Mr. Jarr.

"Yes," said his good lady. "I can always tell when you've been doing something, or when you are going to do something. Then you are always so suspiciously nice."

"I suppose you are perfectly happy, then, and feel sure I'm just lovely if I come home with a scowl and start to row with you?" asked Mr. Jarr.

"Well, it is more natural and more like you," replied his wife.

"And my coming home and giving you $50 and a smile is suspicious in your eyes?" asked Mr. Jarr, indignantly.

"Don't raise your voice, please," said Mrs. Jarr, raising hers; "I'm not deaf. I can hear only too well what you are saying, Mr. Jarr. I suppose you'll be swearing next!"

"Isn't it enough to make a man swear?" cried Mr. Jarr. "What do you want me to do? What do you want me to say? If I come home and give you any little extra money I get, it only makes you suspicious. You are like all the other silly married women! You don't appreciate a good man!"

"If you are angry because you do not keep out half your wages, don't let me prevent you," interrupted Mrs. Jarr. "Never mind me, never mind the children. We can get along some way. I don't ask you to give us a penny. Spend it all on yourself, if that is what you want!"

"By George! If I had a dollar I'd go out and play pinochle. But, like a fool, I gave you all the money I had," said Mr. Jarr, plaintively.

"I think you are pretty cool to ask me for a dollar to stay out all night buying liquor and cigars for your loafer friends, and gambling!" snapped Mrs. Jarr. "No, indeed; not my money! Go, if you want to, but I have no money to be wasted like that!"

"All right!" said Mr. Jarr; "I'll go. I'll walk around the block and give you time to think over how you've driven me out of the house!"

And out he went.

"There, that was all he wanted—just an excuse to get out," said Mrs. Jarr, as the door closed. "I often wonder how I keep my patience with him!"

THOUGHTS ON BUSINESS

Written for the Post-Dispatch
By WALDO PONDRAY WARREN.

(Copyright, 1907, by Waldo Pondray Warren. Copyright in Great Britain.)

THERE are two principal ways for a manager and his assistant to work together. One kind of manager works very hard himself and does not leave much of importance, for his assistant to do. The other kind lets his assistant do all he can, while he reserves his own time and thought chiefly for things the assistant cannot do—at least, cannot do so well. He puts responsibility on his assistant just as fast as the assistant shows his ability to take it.

The first manager retards his own growth and that of his assistant. He is always overworked and has little or no time to think of new things. He is often doing work that should have been done two days before. His assistant either chafes under the restraint, or admits that he is incompetent, and settles into a dull mediocrity.

The second manager has time and opportunity to grow, and gives his assistant room to grow. The assistant feels his own strength, and loves his work. He shoulders the responsibility with eagerness, and the work goes merrily on.

Ask yourself, which is best?

HOW MONEY IS BORROWED IN MONTENEGRO

AMUSING are the scenes witnessed in the National Bank of Montenegro. Spiro, son of Tsuisa, seizes his "yatagan" and rushes like a dragon upon Cettinje and its bank.

"Hail, sons of the bank!" he thunders, as he enters. "Welcome, and good luck," replies the cashier behind the grating.

"It was bad luck that brought me to ye," answers Spiro. "I need money, and want thee to give me some for this yatagan." "Very well, Spiro, if you leave it here I can give you a florin for it."

"What sayest thou, wretch? Knowest not, thou black-cheeked one, the worth of this yatagan in the hand of Spiro?" "Who does not know it, Spiro?" "And if thou knowest it, where is thy reason and where thy soul when thou darest to offer one florin? Dost know that this yatagan has cut off 16 Turkish heads?" "Yes, Spiro, I know; but it is old—see, it's quite rusty."

"That's no rust, thou rotten one! It is the blood of the Turks. Give me two florins." "Impossible, Spiro." "It will either be possible or this yatagan will cut off a seventeenth head." And Spiro gets his two florins.—Pall Mall Gazette.

Sunday Hunting.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Why does not Missouri allow hunting on Sunday? Illinois does. I cannot afford to pay $15 for an Illinois license, because I must work every day to support my mother. Would it not be a better law to close up the poolrooms and other bad resorts than to stop Sunday hunting? Would not the lawmakers rather see their children go hunting on Sunday than to frequent poolrooms and other evil resorts?

ONE WHO LOVES HUNTING.

Education a Drug.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

The wail of "A Deserted Wife" ought to be heeded. But it reveals a mistaken belief, viz., that education is necessary to enable one to get to the top, where money making is the end. Her children may curse her because of their belief that education would have helped them, but if she and they knew that tens of thousands of university graduates get less than hodcarriers do and that but very few educated men rise to the money making circles, she and they would know that until justice prevails, instead of greed and avarice, life will be miserable for the poor, and education an impossibility. Education should serve to give happiness, not money making chances. JOHN WILLIAMS.

Wonderful Growth.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I notice a good many statements made by John I. Beggs to the effect that the conditions existing at the present time are due entirely to the rapid growth of the city, and in this connection would like to have Mr. Beggs answer the following questions:

Has the city grown very materially since Dec. 31, 1906?

Were the people as much inconvenienced prior to Dec. 31, 1906, as since? How many cars were there prior to Jan. 1, 1907, all told, on the Easton, Page, Suburban, Delmar and Wellston lines?

How many are there, all told, on those lines since Jan. 1, 1907?

We admit that St. Louis is growing and are proud of it, but the growth has not been phenomenal enough since Jan. 1 to account for present conditions, as compared with those existing prior to Jan. 1st.

VON VERSEN AVENUE.

Defends Dental Law.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Allow me to reply to the "Poor Student" who is so bitterly opposed to the new law which provides for the dental student to go through an examination practically and theoretically prior to his actual practice. If the law manufacturers ever enacted a law for the welfare of all people alike, it is just the law that the "Poor Student" is kicking about. The public should be protected from any individual who calls himself "doctor" simply because he spends a few years in a college or university. The health and life of the public is too precious, and to intrust ourselves to a doctor who did not have a thorough examination because he was not financially able to do so is really ridiculous. PHILIP SILVERSTEIN.

As to the Wilson Bill.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

In about 35 days the present Congress will have passed into history. The Postoffice clerks have reason to be interested in these few remaining days. Our classification bill, known generally as the Wilson bill, was introduced in the House Dec. 20, 1905, by Mr. Wilson of Illinois. A favorable sentiment has been created all over the country in behalf of this measure. If it became a law we have no doubt that the department, as well as the clerks, will be benefited.

The press of the country has been very kind, urging the passage of the bill, and I trust all who can will aid us in further urging its passage. A few words in the right place will do much good. P. O. CLERKS.

The Bible and Critics.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Hearing so much about "Higher Criticism," and knowing that so many of our learned divines are picking the Bible to pieces, I am moved to say a word in its behalf. The Bible is our only guide. We have absolutely nothing to lean on if this prop is taken away. If this book is not true and reliable, then God is not.

What sort of a God would it be who would give us an imperfect, misleading guide? If it is true in one part then it is true in all. And it is because we lack understanding that we criticise it. As it says in Holy Scripture, "Thou shalt not know now, but thou shalt know hereafter." CHRISTIANA.

ANSWERS TO POST-DISPATCH READERS

Look in Sunday edition for answers requiring more than a few lines. Write but one question. Sign but one initial. Legal questions must be simple. No bets decided. Business addresses not given. Address "Answers," Post-Dispatch; postal cards, if convenient.

C. H. B.—See Answers Dec. 6.

D. R.—Kathleen is from Catherine.

PALMER.—New Madrid earthquake, 1811.

H. F.—Leave card if you attend reception.

C. S. C.—Call up Street Department, City Hall.

E. J. W.—"Coming Through the Rye," Century.

A. R.—Write County Clerk, Clayton, St. Louis County.

AUSTIN.—Shakspeare's vocabulary was about 15,000 words.

MAX.—It would be dangerous to drink vinegar to reduce flesh.

B. F.—To limber the muscles there is nothing better than exercise.

S.—William and Marshall Farnum are brothers to Dustin Farnum.

S. S.—Child who has lost one parent is sometimes called an orphan.

H. O.—For name for baby girl born on New Year's, E. W. N. suggests Era.

KINGSHIGHWAY.—Send your stories to magazines or short-story syndicates.

J. S.—No President except Mr. Roosevelt dined with Booker Washington.

V.—Cost of building a street car, $2100; more if very large and fitted expensively.

JOHN.—Alice Roosevelt was married Feb. 17, 1906—not 1905, as printed last week.

QUICK.—Proof of payments is necessary when they are disputed. Consult a lawyer.

E. N. S.—Write land office, Springfield, for information in regard to Missouri public lands.

N.—For heads of churches see World Almanac, pages 346, 347, Public Library, 911 Locust.

B.—To, too and two are correct spellings of three words that do not have the same meaning.

PRIMO.—Only nurses of the Civil War, unable to earn support, are pensioned by the Government.

FRED.—Ethical lectures are given every Sunday in Memorial Hall and are always open to the public.

EMMA.—If it is a rust spot, try a paste of starch and water pressed upon it. Leave all day and renew.

LOO.—Born June 20 to July 21, positive disposition, domestic tastes, animal feelings, sanguine temperament.

GEORGE.—You should have stated location. Call up Street Department, City Hall, and get full information.

VIVIAN.—By joining a church or lodge a worthy young man might become acquainted with worthy young women.

MINNIE.—A little girl may start to learn piano at 6 or 7; short practice time; avoid fatiguing. To other question, no.

L. T.—An astringent wash, to be obtained at the drug store, may be used to give firmness to teeth. Salt hardens gums.

E. W. W.—To clean gray felt hat, go all over it with best quality block magnesia. Rub in well, leave on 24 hours and brush.

NATIVE.—Subtreasury manager appointment comes through civil service; headquarters, Old Postoffice, Third and Olive streets.

J. M. J.—John T. Hunt is still a Representative in Congress. Address, 520 Third street, Washington, D. C. Term expires March 4.

C. E. B.—For small buildings concrete is considered good material. As to frost and moisture it is about as good as other material.

W.—Send return postage with your poem, to a magazine, and if it is not acceptable it may be returned. Keep a copy yourself.

B. K.—In itself it is not unlucky for two sisters to be married at the same time. The bad luck would be in a poor choice of husbands.

T. B. H.—In a few exceptional cases we may answer questions by mail if stamped addressed envelope is inclosed. A stamp is a nuisance.

XXX.—Hydrocyanic acid is slightly corrosive. Whether it is instantly fatal depends upon the quantity. It affects man and beast alike.

W. F. B.—Beginners in art are paid small salaries. Some of the best of American artists have incomes ranging from $20,000 to $60,000 a year.

S. D. G.—Frozen feet: Mash enough raw onions, with two large handfuls of pure salt, to cover the feet. Keep this on half a day or longer.

W.—"Virginia" writes that Secretary of Jamestown Exposition should not be addressed at Jamestown, but at Norfolk. And "Virginia" is right.

CARTER.—"U. S. Army Physical Exercises," 50 cents, published by Street & Smith, 156 Fifth avenue, New York, might have the information you want.

Z.—All "letters from the people" are not published. They must be brief, to the point, written in moderation and accompanied by the address of the writer.

OPIE.—At Public Library you can get list of books on massage, with price and publisher's address. A 15-cent book is published by the Banner of Light, Boston.

ENQUIRER.—Tenants occupying third floor should do some of the cleaning of halls and steps used by them; how much should be agreed upon by all the tenants.

CONSTANCE.—Money can hardly be considered paid unless it has been received. A court might ask why you did not take the precaution to send draft or money order.

P.—Assayer in charge is a presidential appointment; other appointments, civil service. Try sending your other question to Secretary of State W. G. Douglas, Carson City, Nev.

L. M.—Shiny nose: Plenty of warm water and soap first; then a good rubbing with a soft towel; then a very little camphor water dabbed on; lastly a dusting with a face powder.

WORRIED.—A louse may come into a house with anybody, as it may be acquired in public conveyances. It will not inhabit walls when it can reach a head. Don't worry.

ANNA.—We are now in what is called the 20th century because it has been more than nineteen centuries since the birth of Christ. Of course there were centuries before the Christian era.

M. W. G.—To prevent sweating of windows, liberal ventilation. Ventilator several inches in diameter, or larger, should be placed in top of bulkhead of the front, and holes may be bored in the frame.

B. B.—A small bag of salt, dampened, is kept on the throat for goitre. One woman says that she found wearing a string of amber beads night and day a remedy. "Sometimes they got so hot they fairly burned."

DAILY.—Pralines: Equal quantities nuts and sugar. Use brown sugar, not too light or too dark. Moisten the sugar with cream and boil; then add one tablespoon vinegar and boil a few minutes. Add the nuts and beat till it sugars.

D. O.—Enlarged pores: Dissolve one dram boric acid in four ounces witch hazel; apply with a bit of absorbent cotton at night. Always soften skin with warm wet cloths first; then apply lotion; let it dry on and rub a little skin food in.

C.—The disc of his ouija board is simply magnetized; this magnetism, with proper magnetism of the person using it, will move the disc to the letters which spell out words. The ouija board has been condemned by some Spiritualist lecturers as attracting earthbound spirits.

GUY.—The livestock exhibits chapters in the history of the Chicago Fair give no record of the weight of any "big beef." The heaviest at St. Louis was 2300. The heaviest horse at St. Louis was Morocco, 2355 pounds; next was the Percheron Snyder, 2700 pounds. In Worcester, Mass., there is a Percheron weighing 2300. In France there is a horse 20 inches high; weight not given.

PIPE.—The nicotine which is absorbed into the bowl of a meerschaum pipe cannot be removed without ruining the pipe. The coating which forms inside the bowl should carefully be cut away. Alcohol forced through the bowl and stem with a pipe pump or with the tip of a feather, will leave the pipe clean and sweet. If the bowl be burned, it should be boiled in beeswax or linseed oil.

NITS OR LICE.—"One Who Knows" writes: "Get 5 cents worth of fishberries (from druggist), crush them and put them in a pint bottle; fill the bottle with common whisky, let stand for a few days, then saturate the hair well with the whisky. This remedy is perfectly harmless and never fails, and should be kept in every home where there are children going to school. It will keep any length of time without losing its strength."

C. B. F.—No government license to make wine out of native grown grapes. The wine must be pure grape juice. No other ingredient can be with it. License is necessary to one buying of manufacturer to sell. One can without license make wine out of absolutely pure American grape juice and dispose of it at place of manufacture, or can establish one principal office for disposition of his product.

M. H.—If applicant for books is a property owner he goes to Public Library and obtains application card. If not a property owner he must get property owner's card and this must be signed by some property owner. When this is presented, properly signed, he must sign applicant's card in person. This entitles him to a library card on which he may draw books. Regular books may be kept 14 days and renewed for two weeks longer. New books may be kept out 14 days without renewal. Seven-day books may be kept seven days without renewal.

MME. MELBA
Gives Post-Dispatch Readers SIX TALKS ON VOICE CULTURE

TALK NO. 1— Advice to the Girl Who Cannot Afford to Study Abroad.

IN giving advice to embryo signers or to young women who are fostering the fond hope of one day beccoming great prima donnas, it must be emphasized at the beginning that it would a great mistake to lay down a hard and fast set of rules.

Prima donnas are not made by rule, and a great voice cannot be produced by a set of advisory regulations. What is suitable for one would be entirely unsuitable for another, although their musical knowledge might be the same. This is because of temperament. No chance should be lost to encourage the temperamental side of an artist. If there were a set of rules for all, temperament would be absolutely destroyed.

In giving advice through the Post-Dispatch, I will start out with the girl who cannot afford to study abroad. As to recommending her to teachers I can only advise her in a general way, as I have had no experience with teachers in this country. A young singer cannot be too careful in the selection of a teacher, and in this matter she can only be guided by pupils who have obtained good results until she has taken lessons herself. If at the end of a lesson a pupil feels that her voice is tired she will know at once that she is receiving improper instruction and she should cease taking lessons from that teacher at once.

The girl who cannot go abroad must take every possible opportunity to become, I might say, permeated with music. The greatest disadvantage against receiving musical instruction in a comparatively new country is the fact that while in America they have the appreciation of good music, in the old countries there are the traditions and the genuine musical atmosphere, which only come with the centuries and creations of music-loving people and culture.

If talent is really genuine, it is sure to defy conditions and come to the front, no matter where it is cultivated. Of course, I am speaking of exceptional talent, not ordinary vocal accomplishments. As I am a great believer in the individuality of singers being developed, I think the greatest latitude should be given to students in bringing out their personality.

A great disadvantage with which the girl who cannot study abroad has to struvgle is the problem of learning languages. A thorough knowledge of Italian, German and French is necessary and we all know the greater possibilities at hand in studying a language in its own country.

For the American girl who cannot go abroad my strongest advice on the subject would be to conquer these languages as nearly as possible among the people themselves. The thing to do is to live with an Italian family while studying this language, and in turn with a French and German family. Never study a language with anyone but native-speaking people. The knowledge of a language is the only way to give a comprehensive interpolation of a role.

More advice to the girl studying at home is—educate the mind. Read omnivorously. Broaden the intellect. The greatest voice can never reach perfection unless there is intelligence and intellect back of it. The student should realize this and broaden her mind by reading not only musical subjects, such as the lives of great musicians, but by becoming thoroughly acquainted with the greatest works of literature and art in every field.

Chilblains.

H. H. B.—Here is a cure for chilblains: Camphor, 1 dram; beta-naphthol, 10 grains; cocaine, 5 grains; diachylon ointment, 1 ounce. After bathing the part in hot water, balsam of copaiba is painted over the surface.

A Safe Remedy.

W. B.—The following is a good cure for parasites: Get a cake of bichloride of mercury soap (the imported is the best) and cut it into halves and shave one-half into fine bits. Dissolve it in boiling water. You may set the mixture on the stove over a gentle heat if you choose. You should have water to form a jelly-like mixture when cold. To use, first wet the hair thoroughly with clear, warm water, then rub the soap mixture into the hair, taking care that every particle of the scalp is thoroughly saturated with the soap mixture. Give the head a good shampoo with this mixture and rinse several times. If you follow these directions correctly the result will be successful.

Nail Powder.

J. F. M.—Here is a good powder for polishing nails: Talcum powder, half ounce; pulverize pumice stone, two ounces. Mix thoroughly, add fifteen grains of carmine and a few drops of oil of rose, if a perfume is desirable. Sift through silk bolting cloth.

Wants a Deep Voice.

Afflicted.—You had better take a course of lessons from a first-class elocutionist, who will teach you how to use your voice properly and how to give chest tones instead of head tones. These vocal chords may be developed by exercise, and the most surprising results obtained if the right exercises are given.

THE IRISH OF IT

BEFORE Mme. Kalich became a celebrated English-speaking "star," she was for years the idol of thousands of Yiddish theater goers of New York. Down at the Thalia Theater on the Bowery she drew admiring throngs, who fairly raved about this remarkable woman. Indeed, so great was her reputation many uptown people made pilgrimages to lower Third avenue to see her and, though they did not understand a word of the language which she then spoke, they were held by the greatness of her art.

One of the stories which Mme. Kalich likes best to tell of those times is how one day when she was entering the theater for rehearsal she saw two Irishmen, evidently recent arrivals from the old country, standing and gazing in open-eyed wonder at the poster in front of the playhouse.

This poster was printed entirely in Hebrew and Mme. Kalich's name even appeared in Hebrew characters.

"Can ye read that, Mike?" asked one.

"Sure, an' I cannot, Pat," answered the other, "but if I had a fiddle I could play it."—From "Here and There," in the Bohemian.

What Children Swallow.

From the London Mail.

In the London Hospital there is at present a tiny patient, one year and three weeks old, who is suffering from the effects of swallowing a hair curler.

Seven weeks ago, following every baby's instinct of putting anything and everything into its mouth, she seized upon a fascinating object used by ladies to induce a becoming wave in the hair, and promptly swallowed it. The baby is kept under close observation with the X-rays, and it is hoped that, as there is no inflammation or high temperature, an operation will not be necessary.

A Daily Mail reporter was informed that the case was by no means exceptional. Recently a child was under treatment who had swallowed a toy bicycle, and another was brought in with a brass monkey in his interior. Coins and boot buttons were very frequently swallowed, while thimbles, pins, and even knife blades have been removed from tiny children. Owing to the X-ray the treatment of such cases has been much simplified.

Suited for Something.

Philadelphia Bulletin.

"Your little boy may become President some day."

"I hardly think so. Archibold is too modest and retiring."

"Oh, well, he may get to be Vice-President."

Monotonous.

Washington Star.

"A woman should always depend on her husband for advice," said the devoted wife.

"Yes," answered the visitor, "but it does grow monotonous not to get any advice except to economize."

MEN AND WOMEN

Stewart Edward White, the author, has left his bungalow, in California, where he has lived for the last two years, and has joined the authors' colony in New York.

Prof. William Lyon Phelps of Yale, in a lecture at Bridgeton, Conn., last Friday evening, among other things said: "Mark Twain is easily the greatest American novelist in the history of this country's literature."

Miss Etta H. Daley of La Grange County, Ind., has announced her intention of running for the office of County Superintendent of Instruction, being the first woman in Indiana to announce her candidacy for an elective office.

The record for pastoral calls seems to have been made by Rev. William R. Burrill, a Baptist clergyman of Orange, N. J., who on New Year's Day determined to visit every family in his congregation, and before night had made 140 calls.

Joseph M. Dixon, who has been chosen Senator from Montana to succeed W. A. Clark, is only 39 years of age. He is of Quaker parentage, and largely owes his conspicuous success in life to his amiability, unassuming manners, sterling honesty and knack of seeing and seizing opportunities.

SWETTENHAM

The tyrant's heel is on thy shore,
Swettenham!
His help is at thy ruined door,
Swettenham!
Avenge the earthquake's awful gore,
Command his Yanks to leave thy shore
And never come back any more,
Swettenham! O, Swettenham!

Thou wilt not cower in the dust,
Swettenham!
And take the Yankee's help, we trust,
Swettenham!
Jamaica's cracked and trembling crust,
The dead in burning buildings thrust
The looters and the looters' lust
Are scarcely things to be discussed,
Swettenham! O, Swettenham!

Thou will not yield the Yankee toll,
Swettenham!
Thou wilt not crook to his control,
Swettenham!
Better the earthquake be thy goal,
Better the fire upon thee roll
Than softening of the British soul,
Swettenham! O, Swettenham!

The killed in Kingston are now dead,
Swettenham!
The injured's blood has all been shed,
Swettenham!
The hungry ones need not be fed,
The leaderless need not be led,
The houseless, homeless need no bed,
The British standard, flying red,
Floats proudly o'er Jamaica's head,
Swettenham! O, Swettenham!

Woman's Wiles.

FFrom the Ladies' Home Journal.

As a married couple were walking down one of the main thoroughfares of a city the husband noted the attention which other women obtained from passers-by and remarked to his better half:

"Folks never look at you. I wish I had married someone better looking."

The woman tartly replied: "It's your fault. Do you think a man will stare at me when you're walking with me? You step behind and see whether men don't look at me."

The husband hung back about a dozen yards, and for the length of the street was surprised to see every man his wife passed stare hard at her and even turn around and look after her.

"Sure, lassie!" he exclaimed as he rejoined her. "I was wrong and take it back. I'll never say aught about your looks again."

The wife had made a face at every man she met.

"So her engagement is off?"

"Yes. She told him to be more economical, and he started by buying her an imitation diamond ring."—Butterfly.

NERVOUS ENERGY AND STRENGTH

(C. B. Fry in Lloyd's Weekly.)

GIVEN two men of equal muscular development and one may be twice as effectively strong as the other—if one has twice the nervous energy of the other.

When a man who has led a sedentary, inactive, unwholesome life, takes up some systematic course of physical culture, he finds after a few weeks that he is much fitter and much stronger. He looks at his increased biceps, and may fancy that its increased size is the cause alike of his greater strength and greater fitness. He is off the mark. Regular exercise has improved his general health, and therewith much strengthened his nervous system. He is "twice the man he was," and feels it, mainly because of the increase in his nervous energy, and the better poise of his nervous balance.

I do not pretend that my terms are all quite accurate, physiologically; but what I write here is the truth. In athletics, and all else, nervous force is the generator of power.

When a man in training grows stale and jaded it is often because he has overworked, and is suffering from slight nervous exhaustion. But the same effect is produced physically by so different a cause as purely mental worry or anxiety. A cricketer is put off his game when his nervous order is upset exactly in the same way, either from having played too much cricket or from being badly in debt. I have seen the same man at different times in two precisely similar "off" states from these two separate and very distinct causes. I could name him.

People start with unequal equipments of muscular and of nervous force; but both may be increased by exercise, by systematic practice, and by concentration of mind.

They talk of the strength of a madman, meaning that the man is stronger in his frenzy than when sane and normal. Why so? Because frenzy is a kind of demoniacal unconscious effort of concentration of will. The madman's mind is loosed fromr all ideas but the one of his frenzy—he is concentrated.

Fear lends wings. I have a friend who has always wanted to take me out tiger shooting on the chance of my being chased; he says he wants to see how fast I can really run and how far I can really jump—as he puts it—even now. He proposes that I have never had an occasion sufficiently stimulating to make my nervous force act to full effect in sprinting or jumping. I daresay he is right.

But the point is that nervous energy is a very great part of strength.

The mind, the will, has a most wonderful power of developing and of applying nervous energy. By much trying on right lines a man can, I believe teach himself so to concentrate and so to project his nervous force into his muscles for a desired action that he gains from himself by pure, sane, quiet will-effort the same effective strength as comes like an unbidden storm to the madman.

Just consider this idea of the sane man who can produce the effective strength of a wild frenzy.

It is a true picture. Attainable—with patience and the taking of trouble.

The "Strongest Man on Earth" would not agree; he would point an arm-like finger at a pair of 12-pound dumb-bells. He is a humbug.

Not such is the modern and reliable professor of physique, who mainly teaches sense and advises wisdom.

Better Place.

From the Chicago News.

Guest (in restaurant): What became of the cook you had last winter?

Proprietor: Oh, he quit in the spring to take a job uptown.

Guest: Wasn't he satisfied with the wages you paid him?

Proprietor: Oh, it wasn't the wages. He gets $2 a week less where he is now, but he is called a chef."

Women, it is reported, are returning to small waists. There are one or two of our acquaintance who are going to have trouble in getting back.

PARIS THE MALIGNED.

From the Travel Magazine.

Paris is no doubt wonderfully cosmopolitan, writes Mrs. John Van Vorst, and the danger for strangers consists in seeing a variety of performances proposed by the over-zealous courier as "awfully French" and "quite shocking," but which as a matter of fact are patronized chiefly by a clientele of Germans, Americans and above all, English sight-seers. In this category of show can be included all the Montmartre cafes in the Bohemian quarter (but which no Bohemians frequent), the Folies Bergeres in a bourgeois center (but shunned by the respectable middle class) the Marigny, Jardin de Paris, Ambassadors, in the strictly rich, American region, and a number of others which, if located would be subject to an official invasion by the executors of the law.

Humor From Australia

"WHY are you here, my poor man?" asked the prison visitor.

"Through no fault of mine, sir," replied the convict.

"No?"

"No, I ain't had a single chance to break out."—Sydney Town and Country Journal

She (visiting the grave of her first husband): Ah, if it wasn't for the war you wouldn't now be my husband, Jim.

Jim: What a curse is war!—Melbourne Weekly Times.

Mrs. Jones (at the seaside): Isn't it wonderful, John, how the waves roll in one after another?

Jones: Yes; they remind me of the bills at Christmas time.—Melbourne Weekly Times.

PLANS A MODEL TENEMENT.

Home Association Idea Will Be a Boon to Poor.

A model tenement house will be erected at the southwest corner of Garrison and Washington avenues by the St. Louis Tenement House Association, if all the stockholders approve the option which has been taken on the property by certain members. Dr. William Taussig, president of the association, says that work on the new tenement, which will provide sanitary homes for workingmen and their families at a small rental, will probably be begun in the spring.

Enough money to build the proposed tenement was pledged Monday at a dinner given by Dr. Taussig to a number of business men. The association now has $70,000 in the building fund. R. T. Muggey, professor of sociology at Columbia University, New York, a guest, told of the model tenement houses in New York. Besides Dr. Taussig, Festus J. Wade and J. H. Lynch are the officers of the association.

TWENTY REPORTED KILLED IN MINE

Windy Shot Causes Explosion in Working at Primero, Colo.

TRINIDAD, Colo., Jan. 23.—An explosion occurred in a Colorado Fuel and Iron Co. mine at Primero early this morning. Twenty miners are reported killed, and the death list may even exceed that number.

Division Superintendent Robert O'Neil, with several physicians, left here on a special train at 8 o'clock today for Primero, where great excitement prevails. The explosion occurred in the main entry and is supposed to have been caused by a windy shot.

The body of Frank Hobat, timberman, has been recovered.

Wolves Worrying Spain.

STATE CONTROL FOR ELECTRIC ROADS

Bill Is Being Drawn Giving Commissioners Power Over Car Systems.

The draft of a bill putting electric urban and interurban railways under control of the State Railroad and Warehouse Commissioners is made by a special committee named at a meeting of residents of St. Louis County Tuesday night. The meeting was held in the office of H. W. Belding at Webster Groves and was attended by fifteen representatives appointed from Webster, Kirkwood and Maplewood. Professor F. Kean of the Kirkwood High School was chairman and Justice J. Will Barron, secretary.

H. W. Warren, H. W. Belding, R. A. McCurdy and John A. Parker are the committee which will write the bill. They will present a draft of the proposed measure at a meeting of the committee of fifteen, in Webster Groves, Friday evening. It will then be sent to Jefferson City for introduction into the Legislature by Senator Gardiner and another Representative from St. Louis County. It is designed to cover conditions throughout the State and the promoters believe that it will receive enough votes to make it law.

Meantime a special committee has been delegated to obtain the consent of General Manager McCulloch of the United Railways Co. to a conference with the fifteen representatives of the various suburbs touched by the Meramec and Maplewood cars. Captain McCulloch will be asked to change the route of the cars from Chouteau to Manchester avenue so as to avoid crossing the Missouri Pacific tracks at grade on Chouteau avenue, and to supply better service between 6 and 9 a. m. and 4 and 7 p. m.

The committee claims to represent 18,000 people who use the Meramec and Maplewood cars.

Kaiser Playing Skat.

BERLIN, Jan. 23.—Card parties are much in vogue now at the palace because of the Kaiser's fondness for skat. The players are chiefly veteran generals and ministers. The points are half a pfennig, equal to about one-eighth of a cent. Light lunch is served during the sittings.

ICE TRUST FOE WANTS NO JURY

Hinton G. Lee Hires Two Lawyers and Criminal Trial Is Continued.

Hinton G. Lee, the "Ice Trust Buster," was in the Court of Criminal Correction Wednesday to answer a charge of obtaining money under false pretenses. When he was first arraigned a week ago he asked for a jury and said that he would conduct his own defense.

Since then he has changed his mind. When court opened Wednesday Judge Thomas B. Harvey and Former Prosecuting Attorney Dalton were there to represent Lee.

When the case was reached on the docket Lee sat silent while Attorney Dalton advanced to the bar and said:

"Your Honor, my client desires to waive a jury and ask for a continuance."

Judge Taylor set the case for Feb. 1. The charge against Lee is that he failed to redeem a draft for $10 which he gave to Dr. J. W. Brown, a physician in the Century Building.

Attorney Dalton said to a Post-Dispatch reporter:

"My client is more sinned against than sinning. The only reason he did not redeem the draft at the time agreed upon when he obtained the money from Dr. Brown was that he was locked up here at the Four Courts on a charge of which he has since been proven innocent.

"He was accused of having obtained labor under false pretenses. It was charged that he had obtained the services of ice wagon drivers and had failed to pay them. There was absolutely no evidence that Lee intended to defraud his employes, and the case against him was dismissed.

"But for the fact that Lee was held a prisoner, he would have paid his obligation to Dr. Brown. He has since attempted to do so.

"Lee at first intended to defend himself and he thought he would have a better chance if the case should be tried before a jury. We think differently, and we advised him to let Judge Taylor pass upon the evidence. We are sure that he will be acquitted when the facts come out."

Two Years for Bocklage.

To escape prosecution involving two women, Frank K. Bocklage, after three days of indecision, pleaded guilty Wednesday to a charge of embezzling $51 from an implement manufacturing concern and was sentenced to two years in the penitentiary. Mrs. Joseph Huppert Bocklage, whom he married in Washington, Mo., in 1900, and Mrs. Clara Frohberger Bocklage, who says he married her in Little Rock, Ark., last year, were both in court, the former in the cage with Bocklage.

"ICE TRUST BUSTER" ACCUSED OF GETTING MONEY BY FALSE PRETENSE

H. G. LEE.

FOUGHT 23 YEARS OVER BULL

Farmer Finally Wins Judgment From Railroad.

After 23 years of litigation Thompson E. Sublette of Adair County, Mo., is to be compensated by the Iron Mountain Railroad Co. for the death of a bull owned by him, which was struck by a train and killed in 1883. The St. Louis Court of Appeals has handed down a decision that the railroad company must pay the judgment obtained at that time in a Justice of the Peace Court, with interest, aggregating $276.85.

The case has been through every possible phase of litigation permitted under the practice in Missouri. Starting in a Justice Court it has been through the Circuit Court, the Court of Appeals of St. Louis and of Kansas City and the Supreme Court. It went to the Court of Appeals the last time on a plea of the attorneys of the railroad company that recovery was barred by the statute of limitations and that the Justice who rendered the original judgment lacked jurisdiction. On both of these points the Court of Appeals decided against the railroad company.

DR. DYKE PERFECTS AIRSHIP'S ENGINE

Says His Machine Solves Problem of Power Without Great Weight.

Dr. A. L. Dyke, one of the first builders of gasoline engines in this country, who built and operated one of the first gasoline automobiles seen on St. Louis streets, is at work on a balloon airship in which he hopes to enter the elimination trials for the selection of the American team in the international balloon race to be held here next October. The question of whether airships will be admitted in the race has not been decided.

Dr. Dyke has some new ideas about the engine he is going to put in the basket attached to his gas balloon. He told a Post-Dispatch reporter about his plans with much enthusiasm.

"The thing that troubles Santos-Dumont and the rest," he said, "is the difficulty experienced in building an engine that is light enough and yet that has power. So far, none of them has used more than a two-cylinder gasoline engine. Now the engine I am building will have four cylinders and I think I see my way to making it almost as light as the two-cylinder airship engines constructed thus far.

"I have been building gasoline engines all my life. And I think I ought to know as much about their construction as any man in the country. And moreover, there is a young French mechanic working with me who was for several years in the Mercedes factory, which means that he knows a great deal about what is perhaps the most perfect gasoline engine built.

"We have several ideas for making the walls of the cylinders very thin and light and for reducing the weight in several ways. The four cylinders will be very small and won't even take up the room of the four cylinders of a Franklin runabout. The engine, with its connections, will weigh about 95 pounds.

"Prof. Carl Meyer is building the gas bag for me. Its shape will depend on what is required by the rules of the race. But I favor the shape of the Baldwin airship and will probably have it made along those lines.

"I expect to have the whole airship ready for an ascent in three or four months."

Weds His Cousin in Texas.

Milton Loewen of Enid, O. T., son of David Loewen, president of the Loewen Broom Corn and Investment Co., and a former resident of St. Louis, and Miss Selma Viereck of Alta Dena, Cal., his cousin, were married in Fort Worth, Tex. The courtship began at the World's Fair when Miss Viereck was a visitor here. Recently they met again at Enid, O. T. As the laws of Oklahoma prohibit marriage between first cousins, they were obliged to go to Texas for their wedding.

IN SOCIETY

Notices of social events intended for publication in the Sunday Post-Dispatch should reach the Post-Dispatch office not later than noon of the Friday preceding.

The Westminster place home of Mrs. George M. Wright was the scene of a large and fashionable reception Tuesday afternoon between 3 and 5 o'clock, when she introduced her daughter, Miss Mary Wright, one of the season's debutantes, to several hundred friends. Mrs. Wright received her guests, wearing a gown of black lace over white chiffon. Miss Jessie Wright, who assisted, was in pale blue chiffon cloth, and the debutante wore a white hand-embroidered batiste.

In the dining room, where the decorations were elaborate, white lilacs and ferns being used in profusion, Misses Frances Jones, Mary Prince, Angeline Davis and Lucy Gerrett served frappe and chocolate. Some of the guests present were: Mmes. J. H. McCluney, Edward Gould, D. M. Houser, George Tower, J. D. Perry Francis, George H. Shields, Will Barnett, Rolla Wells, Ashley Scott, Louis T. Maguire, Ashley Cabell; Misses Virginia Van Ness, May Foster, Marguerite Tower, Margaret Cabell.

The mask and domino party, given by Mrs. William Scudder at the home of Samuel C. Cupples in West Pine boulevard for her daughter, Miss Martha Cupples Scudder, Tuesday evening, proved one of the most enjoyable functions of the winter. The girls who made their debut last season when Miss Scudder was a debutante, and a few of this year's buds were invited. Mrs. Scudder and Miss Scudder received alone, the hostess wearing white lace and Miss Scudder a girlish gown of white tulle. The guests danced until 11 o'clock, when supper was served and the signal given for unmasking. The dining room was made bright by the use of yellow tulips and trailing Southern smilax. The debutantes invited were: Misses Louise Nugent, Marguerite Tower and her guest, Miss Webb of Baltimore, Md.; Louise Thayer, Miss Cabell. Among the guests were: Misses Marjorie Thornburgh, Margaret Lee, Lois Kilpatrick, Elizabeth Prewitt, Bessie Elliot, Louise Simpkins, Ethel Simpkins, Olive Simpkins, Ada Davis, Marguerite Tower, Irene Catlin, Nellie Wickham, Violet Kauffman, Hermine Gratz, Emma Drew, May Filley, Margaret Cabell, Louise Nugent, Alice Morton, Marguerite Mellier, Angelene Davis; Messrs. George Reynolds, Ephron Catlin, Ray Prewitt, Oliver Richards, Ralph Simpkins, E. Lansing Ray, Will Haartstick, Fred Allen, Jim Wear, Arthur Wear, John Overall, Tom McPheeters, Boyle Rhodes, Carl Langenberg, Harry Langenberg, Edward Mallinckrodt; Messrs. and Mesdames Daniel Catlin, David R. Francis Jr., Edward Mallinckrodt, L. Laurance Mauran, Charles Scudder, Cliff Scudder, Walter Cerre Taylor, Joseph Wear, William C. Stribling, Sam Davis.

Among those who will occupy boxes at the St. Louis University play at the Odeon Wednesday night are the following: Mmes. Dan C. Nugent, Elizabeth Clarke, Jane Lindsay, F. A. Drew, Festus J. Wade, Paul Bakewell, E. McMenamy, Geo. Wilson, Miss Mary Boyce, Archbishop Glennon, Mayor Wells, Judge Shepard Barclay, H. T. Griesedick, Dr. J. J. Broderick, Rev. J. J. Tannrath, Commandante J. C. Ghio, Howard Benoist, Theophile Papin, J. C. Tobin and Jermias Schotten.

The Carondelet Woman's Club met Monday evening at the residence of Mrs. Evans. The evening was given up to discussion of plans for the entertainment to be given by the club Feb. 11 for the benefit of the Gospel Rest Rooms. The play, "A Modern Cinderella," will be presented with a cast composed of prominent men and women of Carondelet. The play is an amusing satire on the old fairy tale.

Mrs. Charles Espenschied and her daughter, Miss Ruth Espenschied, will be hostesses at the Country Club Jan. 30 at a bridge party.

The marriage of Miss Bertha Beckman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Beckman of North St. Louis, and D. Grant Allen will be celebrated Feb. 6.

Mrs. James Daniels received Tuesday afternoon, assisted by Mrs. Charles Bramble Gibson and Miss Daniels, at her home in West Belle place. Assisting in serving were: Misses Isabel Moyle, Mildred Kupperle, Lulu Apler and Christine Williams. Assisting throughout the rooms were several young matrons who came without hats. They were: Mrs. Christine Kenney, William Finney Williamson, A. G. Wichman, Clarence Brenizer, Charles Niehaus, Olin Daniels; Miss Clara Pybus, Miss Frances Boyle of Reading, Pa.

Miss Daniels wore pale primrose silk with lace. Mrs. Daniels was in black lace over white chiffon. The house was attractively decorated with pink roses in the drawing room, where the receiving line stood. The library displayed spring blossoms and the dining room was in pink. The reception hours were from 3 to 5 o'clock. Among the guests who called were: Misses Ethel Bacon, Betty Donaldson, Alice Devoy, Florence Kramer, Hazel Kramer, the Misses Meissner, Miriam Florsheim, Una Florsheim, Anita Parker, Maud Walker, Daisy Walker, Violet Nichols; Mmes. John S. Blake, J. C. Blake, W. W. Henderson, J. B. Widen, Preston Burnett, Frederick C. Bacon, Western Bascome, Berenice Ballard Clark, W. E. Ingalls, Wallace Montague, John McKinney, Edwin S. Puller, Arthur Reton, George Willard Teasdale, A. W. Southworth, James McCausland, Clinton Udell.

Miss Eva J. Kendall and John L. Porter were married at the Lee Avenue Presbyterian Church Tuesday evening. Rev. L. Richmond officiated. Miss Kendall was formerly a resident of Carthage, Mo. Dr. and Mrs. Doddsley attended as best man and matron of honor. Mr. and Mrs. Porter will make their home in Columbia, Mo.

A luncheon was given at the Country Club Tuesday afternoon by Mrs. Frank Crunden for Miss Webb of Baltimore, who is the guest of Miss Marguerite Tower. Covers were laid for 14 guests. The decorations were spring flowers. Mrs. John D. Filley and Mrs. George Tower and Mrs. Crunden chaperoned. The young girls present were: Misses May Filley, Eleanor Glasgow, Berenice Morrison-Fuller, Hildegarde Nagle, Helen Treadway, Mary Prince, Irene Love, Marjorie Thornburgh, Bessie Elliot, Marguerite Tower.

Miss Regina M. Carlin has as her guest Mrs. C. J. Doyle of Greenfield, Ill.

Feb. 12 has been selected by Miss Adele Hart, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Augustus Hart of Portland place, and Arthur B. Barrett as their wedding day. The wedding will be at home and only near relatives and intimate friends will be invited.

FLOOD'S CREST AT 28 FOOT STAGE

Rivermen Do Not Expect Further Trouble Here With High Water.

Down on the levee the old rivermen were of the opinion Wednesday that the river would not make a dangerous rise this time and that the crest would come when a 28-foot stage was reached. The river has now reached a height of nearly 26¾ feet.

The forecast given out by Washington predicts a 28-foot stage for St. Louis Wednesday. Rivermen are of the opinion that this stage will not be reached before Thursday afternoon if reached at all.

"You see there is not water enough in sight," said Capt. Garrison of the Mark Twain, "and we don't look for any more rain at this time of the year. It is beginning to ease up down at Cape Girardeau, where the Ohio is flooding into the Mississippi and the water that is piling up here will get a chance to run through. Not over 28 feet, I say, and the outside certainly not over 29."

In East St. Louis no apprehension is felt at all. Mayor Cook laughed when a Post-Dispatch reporter asked him about the situation.

"Why, in the first place," said he, "there is no possibility of a flood at this time, in my opinion, and even if there should be one we can stand a 40-foot rise."

CAISSON NOT CHRISTENED.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NORFOLK, Va., Jan. 23.—The big caisson for the naval station at Charleston, S. C., was launched Tuesday at the Norfolk Navy Yard, but it was not christened. No sparkling wine trickled down its bow. Miss Lucile Martin, the designated sponsor for the occasion, was there with the goods in her hand, but when the caisson commenced to slip into the water she became so much absorbed in the event that she forgot her official duties.

She was surprised after the splash to find the bottle still in her hand. The caisson was in the water, unnamed and unhonored. The caisson was built at a cost of $100,000.

SMOKE PROBLEM PUZZLES EXPERTS

Kirkwood Man Tells Committee the Nuisance Cannot Be Abated.

HEAR MAN BEHIND SMOKE

Investigators Assured That "Brains Behind the Shovel" Will Be Help.

Neither Smoke Inspector Jones nor the members of the Wednesday Club put in an appearance at the hearing on the smoke-abatement bill Tuesday afternoon before the Committee on Legislation. The only break in the continuity of the argument in favor of the bill was caused by Carl Kaufmann of Kirkwood, who declared he had for years been interested in "this smoking business," and had reached the conclusion that smoke could not be abated.

"Not even by the use of anthracite coal?" Gustav Cramer, a member of the Civic League Smoke-Abatement Committee, asked him.

"Oh, maybe that way," he answered.

"Have you ever seen a down-draft furnace properly fired with soft coal?" William Chauvenet, another member of the Civic League Committee, asked him.

"I don't know anything about down-draft furnaces," answered the objector. "I mean the furnaces in apartment houses. I followed all the points mentioned by the Smoke Inspector in the printed slips he sends around, but the smoke comes anyway."

"I wish to say," said Chauvenet, addressing the committee, "that this committee has not come here with this bill without the knowledge that smoke can by proper devices and proper firing be prevented entirely."

"Smoke Maker" Talks.

J. B. Conroy, business agent of the Firemen's Union, a member of the Civic League's Smoke-Abatement Committee, addressed the committee from the point of view of "man who makes the smoke."

"Brains behind the shovel is the best smoke-abatement device in existence," he said. "The root of the trouble is in front of the doors of the boiler. The Smoke Inspector's deputies are not practical men. A fireman who makes smoke can tell them any sort of a story and they have not the technical knowledge to prove its falsity."

"I believe the present Smoke Inspector is doing all that can be done under the present law," said W. H. Bryan, a mechanical engineer on the Smoke-Abatement Committee of the Civic League. "The new law provides that plants installed or repaired after the passage of the law shall be scanned and supervised with an eye to smoke prevention, by competent city officials. One attractive feature of the bill is that in every new plant there shall be proper provision for light and air in the boiler room. Men working under attractive surroundings will get out of a plant the best that is in it."

The Committee on Legislation took the arguments under advisement and will probably report at a meeting in the near future.

LAWSON ALLIED WITH OIL MEN

Boston Man Believed to Have Been Employed to Engineer Amalgamated.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—Thomas W. Lawson of Boston has astonished and amazed Wall street by turning a rampant bull on Amalgamated Copper stock and joining forces with Henry H. Rogers, William Rockefeller and others of "The System" which he lambasted so unmercifully two years ago in his "Frenzied Finance." At that time Mr. Lawson spent several hundred thousand dollars in newspaper advertising, trying to convince the public that Amalgamated Copper was not worth over $36 a share. He is now flooding Wall street with dispatches to buy, buy, buy.

There is some ground for the belief that Mr. Lawson and the Standard Oil interests have had some sort of a reconciliation and that he has been employed to engineer a bull movement in Amalgamated Copper. The Standard Oil crowd have always admitted that Mr. Lawson is one of the most brilliant stock market operators the country has ever known, and it has recently been reported in Wall street that James R. Keene has been employed by Mr. Rogers to conduct a bull movement in Amalgamated.

The opinion was expressed in Wall street that the top operators might be working in common. Before the recent break in the market it was reported that the market was to be shaken down in order to enable the Amalgamated interests to get hold of certain Michigan properties controlled in Boston. It was said today that these interests had finally capitulated Monday and that the market had now turned.

BOSTON LECTURER TELLS OF FAITH

Rev. Arthur R. Vosburg Explains Some Aspects of Christian Science.

RABBI SPITZ IS PRESENT

Jewish Leader Introduces the Speaker in Warm Eulogy of His Viewpoint.

Rev. Arthur R. Vosburgh, C. S. B., member of the Board of Lectureship of the First Church of Christ, Scientist, of Boston, Mass., delivered a lecture on "The Idealism of Jesus" at Strassburger Hall, Grand and Shenandoah avenues, Tuesday evening. The lecture was given under the auspices of Third Church of Christ, Scientist, St. Louis, which was but recently organized. The lecturer was introduced by Rabbi Spitz of the B'nai El Congregation.

In introducing the speaker, Rabbi Spitz alluded to the fact that at the recent Thanksgiving service, the reader of the Christian Science Church occupied a place on the platform with five Jewish rabbis and made no apology for his presence there. In the same way, he declared, he had no apology to make for his presence at a Christian Science lecture or for introducing a Christian Science lecturer. He said that he was there to learn, and referred to the lecture as the candle in the synagogue, which throws its light upon the altar, typical of the church, and the table typical of the home.

Accepts Exalted Idealism.

In the course of his lecture, Mr. Vosburgh said:

"We read of a man who once healed the sick and raised the dead; who who turned water into wine, walked the wave, out of a handful of loaves and fishes fed the assembled thousands; who finally came and went through closed doors, appeared and disappeared, and at last passed hence, not through the gateway of death, but through the unfolding portals of eternal life. What would God's universe seem to us to be, could we gain his insight and secure his point of view?

"Jesus' teachings and works, set before us an idealism that excludes matter and evil, and includes all good. The Christian Scientist frankly, squarely adopts this idealism, and he meets every manifestation of evil, whether of sickness, sin, poverty, sorrow, disaster, with a positive denial of its power or reality, and an affirmation of the allness and goodness of God; and just in the degree of his spiritual clearness and understanding, he supports these statements by demonstration.

Evil Is Eliminated.

"This brings us to the basic point of view of Christian Science, which is that of a radical and consistent idealism. Its position, to put it a little differently, is that to find the true explanation, the real nature, meaning and substance of things, we must look to Mind, and not to matter. One of the fundamental propositions of the Christian Science text-book is, 'There is no life, truth, intelligence nor substance in matter. All is infinite Mind and its infinite manifestation, for God is All in all.' This position is certainly radical and revolutionary; but any system that will interpret and demonstrate the ideal of Jesus can be nothing less. The Kingdom of God cannot admit either matter of evil; and Christian Science eliminates both as either power or reality."

$4500 for Two Fingers.

Arthur Ritte, suing for $10,000, was awarded $4500 damages in his suit against the E. E. Souther Iron Co. Wednesday. While he was working for the company, July 27 last, his hand was caught under a trip hammer and his thumb and forefinger were so injured that they were amputated.

THE POST-DISPATCH'S DAILY RECORD OF MARKETS AND FINANCE

PRICES ARE LOW; TRANSACTIONS FEW

Wednesday Forenoon Session on Stock Exchange Is Dull as to Transactions, the Result of Efforts to Create a Cheaper Market—Close Is Firm.

Holders of St. Louis securities exhibited their dislike for prevailing low prices at the forenoon session of the Stock Exchange Wednesday. A number of the best securities were given bids of 1 to 2 points under what the market has been for many months, and as a consequence the transactions were not numerous at the forenoon session.

The market opened with selling of Third National Bank shares unchanged at 304¼. There was considerable bidding and ask quotations on St. Louis Union Trust, which resulted only in the sale of one small lot of the stock at 395, unchanged from the last sales. There was none of the security in the market at subsequent bids of 393.

St. Louis Portland Cement came into the market again in a small way, sales of blocks of 10 or more shares being made at 35 for the common issue.

The traction market resisted the low prices with the exception of the 4-per-cent bonds, which sold unchanged at 85. The bid and ask for the preferred was about the same as on the opening days of the week—76¾ to 77. These prices current Wednesday brought no transactions.

Laclede Gas 5-per-cent bonds sold fractionally lower and after the sales the bid and ask price advanced to 105⅛ bid and 105½ asked, with no further transactions.

There was a very determined attempt to bid down further the stock of the Missouri-Lincoln Trust Co., and the efforts resulted in the sale of only one small block of the security at 129¾, fractionally higher than the last sales.

Bank of Commerce shares were not active in the earlier part of the session, but the close marked the sale of two small lots at 322¼, ex-rights.

For Mississippi Valley Trust 309@310 was bid and 312 asked. No Commonwealth Trust shares were purchasable at 320 bid.

The session close was firm, the general tendency to lower prices having been checked.

POPE APPEALS FOR KAISER.

Advises Against German Electoral Warfare.

LONDON, Jan. 23.—According to the Berlin correspondent of the Daily Mail, the Pope has intervened in the German electoral struggle, pointing out to the Centerists that it is unwise to inaugurate warfare in Germany at the moment the church is engaged in a deadly struggle in France.

LIVESTOCK.

Receipts—Today's estimate called for 4000 cattle, 10,500 hogs, 3000 sheep, and 900 horses and mules.

CATTLE—While some of the trains were late today a large proportion reached the yards on time and for several days past, causing a larger selection to be on sale during the early hours, the supply consisted of about 3000 natives and 1000 Southern cattle, mostly fair to good kinds, with a few choice steers also included. The market was fairly active, steers selling a shade lower, but cows, heifers, stockers and feeders and Southern cattle of all kinds brought steady values.

WHEAT MARKET VERY STRONG

Gain of Full Cent Made, Chiefly on Bullish Foreign Advices.

OTHER GRAINS QUIET

Cash Demand Somewhat Slower—Movements Continue Light—Local Session Lively.

Local wheat was very strong Wednesday, chiefly on the bullish foreign advices, and advanced steadily, closing ⅞@1c higher for the day. Corn closed ⅛@⅜c higher and oats ⅛@¼c higher for the active option.

May wheat opened ⅛c higher at 77c and advanced steadily to 77⅞c, closing with offerings at the latter price. July option opened ⅛c higher at 76¼c, and advanced to 77c bid, where it closed.

May corn opened 1-16c higher at 43⅝c, went as low as 43⅝c, advanced to 44c, where it closed with offerings. July corn opened 1-16c lower at 44c and closed at 44¼c bid.

January oats was unchanged at 36¾c nominal. May oats, in which the bulk of the business was transacted, opened unchanged at 37⅝c and closed at 37¾@37⅞c. July oats was offered first ⅛c lower at 35c and later ⅛c lower at 34⅞c, with no sales.

Liverpool spot wheat closed ⅛d to ¾d higher, with future wheat ⅛d to ⅝d higher. Paris closed ¼c to ½c higher on wheat and ½c to 1¼c higher on flour. Berlin wheat closed ⅛c higher, Budapest ⅛c lower and Antwerp wheat unchanged for the day.

The local market was strong all day, though rather quiet in the early trading. The sharp advance in cables, and the reasons given therefor, namely, the strength in La Plata wheat, apprehension over the winter wheat crop and unfavorable weather conditions in most European wheat regions was the strengthening influences, coupled with the light movement locally and in the Northwest and strength in other domestic markets.

At the opening there was a fair demand among the commission houses and from pit traders and offerings were quite light, prices advancing ⅛@⅜c. After the early advance the market turned very dull and prices rested easy, with an extremely light trade, although the tone of the market was good and the light offerings well taken. Towards the last there was another good spurt in buying, caused by the posting of the improved seaboard clearances and numerous reports of an improved demand from abroad, with a good export business being transacted.

The late market was very firm, with prices advancing steadily, the close being at the high point, with a gain of a full cent for the day. The cash demand slackened considerably today, the shippers and millers appearing disinclined to buy wheat at the high prices asked. The business was light and prices somewhat easier. Seaboard clearances of wheat and flour for the day were 556,000 bu.

The futures and news in corn were decidedly bullish, but the trading was unresponsive, and the tone of the market dull and lifeless during most of the session. Cables were ¼d to ½d higher on spot corn and ⅜d to ⅝d higher on the futures.

The statement by Broomhall that the European requirements of corn for the next two months would come almost entirely from America caused some firmness in other domestic markets, but prices in the local market were sluggish and slightly lower during the forenoon. Towards the last there was some fair buying among the pit traders, which resulted in a slight advance in prices, the close being ⅛@¼c to ⅛@⅜c higher for the day. The cash corn market was easier. Seaboard clearances of corn for the day were 453,000 bu.

The oats market was quiet. At the start the price of May option, which was the only one actively traded in, was dull and unchanged, but near the end there was some scattered buying, in response to the sharp advance in wheat and the close was ⅛@¼c higher for the day. January and July options were nominally unchanged to ⅛c lower. Cash oats was weak, with a poor demand. Oats clearances for the day were 20,000 bu.

Crop conditions in Europe are said to be very unfavorable. It is said to be 2 degrees below zero in the wheat regions of Germany, while Russia is having the coldest weather in 20 years. In France heavy rains were followed by freezing weather, and serious damage is feared. Today's advances in America were due largely to the unfavorable foreign crop outlook.

Minneapolis stocks remained unchanged today at a decrease of 90,000 bu for four days. Following are the Northwestern car lots: Minneapolis, 154, against 185 last year; Duluth, 7, against 31 last year; Winnipeg, 36, against 56 last year. Total, 197, against 272 last year.

Primary movement: Receipts—Wheat, 322,232 bu, against 507,821 bu last year; corn, 501,475 bu, against 612,334 bu last year; oats, 409,698 bu, against 620,369 bu last year. Shipments—Wheat, 253,267 bu, against 190,000 bu last year; corn, 465,230 bu, against 422,000 bu last year; oats, 380,135 bu, against 462,000 bu last year.

St. Louis receipts and shipments: Receipts—Wheat, 34,000 bu; corn, 119,900 bu; oats, 84,800 bu. Shipments—Wheat, 20,185 bu; corn, 103,240 bu; oats, 380,135 bu.

FLOUR—Receipts, 6790 barrels and shipments 10,130 barrels. Quote soft winter flour patents at $3.60@3.75; straight at $3.25@3.40 and extra fancy at $3.10@3.20 in wood; low to medium grades at $2.25@2.50 in jute; hard in jute sacks, patents at $3.30@3.50; straight at $2.90@3.10; clear at $2.50@2.75; low grades at $2.25@2.40; spring patents at $3.80@3.95 in bulk. Foregoing for lots from first hands, track or depot. Special known brands on orders higher.

HAY—Receipts 1020 tons local and 150 tons through; shipments 405 tons. Quote timothy hay, choice, $19; No. 1, $17.50@18; No. 2, $15.50@16.50; No. 3, $13@14.50. Clover hay, choice, $18@19; No. 1, $17; No. 2, $14@16. No. 1 clover mixed, $16@16.50; No. 2 clover mixed, $14@15. Prairie hay, choice, $12.50@13; No. 1, $11.50@12; No. 2, $10.50@11.

FINANCIAL.

Messrs. George H. Burr & Co., commercial paper brokers, 304-5-9 Security Building, report local money: Indorsed bills receivable, 4 to 6 months, 6 per cent; high grade and single-name paper, 4 to 6 months, 6 to 6½ per cent; other names, not so well known, 6½ per cent; call money on good security, 6 per cent. Market easier in tone, although demand for money continues good.

Local bank clearings and balances: Clearings for today, $10,711,193; last week, $12,443,292. Balance for today, $857,910; last week, $887,247. Decrease, clearings, $1,732,099; decrease, balances, $29,337.

Further gains of cash were reported today from the interior, local bankers staing that the receipts of currency at this point were certainly as satisfactory as could be anticipated. The local institutions are now indulging in what is technically termed window dressing in expectation of a call for a statement for the Comptroller of the Currency. This should come between the present and the 29th of the month, according to the predictions of St. Louis bankers.

A. O. Slaughter Sr., founder of the financial establishment in Chicago, now conducted by a son, died at San Antonio, Tex., Wednesday morning. A. O. Slaughter was a large holder of the underlying securities of the Chicago Union Traction Co.

Ex-Governor D. R. Francis has returned from Mexico and was in his office and at the banking houses with which he is connected during the day.

The Edwards Brokerage Co. is handling in St. Louis some of the Southern Railway 5 per cent three-year note issue at figures which yield investors 6 per cent. The notes come ahead of the preferred stock, which also pays 5 per cent. The notes are dated Feb. 1, 1907.

The sale of a small amount of Simmons Hardware first preferred stock calls attention to the unusual level of prices for these issues. The common stock on which 7 per cent was last paid and which will pay its annual profit-sharing in March, 1907, again sells at about 130. The first preferred Tuesday sold at 127¼ and pays 7 per cent also, while 126¼ is the last bid noted on the second preferred issue, which last year returned 8 per cent to its shareholders. Taken with the present money market conditions the fact that the first preferred sold on what is virtually a 5 per cent basis must certainly be considered a compliment to the credit of this company.

It is understood that earnings on the common stock during the past year, after allowing for depreciation, etc., were not far from 10 per cent. The conservative policy of this company will probably result in there being no immediate advance in the rate of dividends on the common stock.

Oil Quotations.

LINSEED OIL—In lots of from 1 to 5 bbls, at 41c per gallon for raw and 42c for boiled.

CASTOR OIL—In lots of 200 gallons or over, 12c per pound for No. 1 and 11½c for No. 3 in barrels; smaller quantities, 1c per pound more.

COTTONSEED OIL—Winter white, 52c; yellow, 51c; summer—white, 46c; yellow, 45c; salad, 52c; cooking—white at 52c; yellow at 48c.

MARKET CLOSING HIGH AND STRONG

With a Small Day for Transactions, Market Makes a Most Favorable Close, Fractionally Over the Finals of Tuesday and the Opening of Wednesday.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—The market Wednesday closed fairly active, strong and ⅛ to 1 point above the opening for the day, indicating a fractional betterment over the finals of Tuesday.

St. Paul, Northern Pacific, Great Northern and Southern Pacific all closed as good as a point over Tuesday's finals. Amalgamated Copper was better than ½ over the Tuesday close and Wednesday opening.

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—After midday the market was narrower than it has been at any time in a considerable period. It had become completely professional and traders were not so ready to operate against each other as they have been lately. The consequences were that moderate selling made some individual stocks look rather weak.

Canadian Pacific was under pressure with very inadequate support, the foreign houses seemed willing to let the stock take care of itself. Rumors of a new stock issue are improbable on the face of them and are authoritatively contradicted. The trouble seems to be a weak bull account which has overstayed its market. Later in the day it was reported that the pool that has been operating in Canadian Pacific has been demolished.

The announcement that the New York Central directors have concluded to discontinue improvements on the entire system until the money market rights itself will no doubt be followed by similar announcements from other big corporations—especially railroads—and will be another bull argument for the market.

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—The irregular opening of the market Wednesday was not significant of any particular condition bearing on the market. A market with slight fluctuation was expected and is looked for several days. The trading during the first hour of the marrket was not in large volume.

When the market was an hour old news came of the action of Judge Hallom at St. Paul in granting the petition of Minnesota's Attorney-General to restrain the proposed $60,000,000 stock issue of the Great Northern Railway. The news, it was expected, would cause a general decline in the stock market, especially those having new stock issues in contemplation. This, however, was not the case. Great Northern preferred stock declined 2¼ points and the movement was used by the bear element in an attempt to force down other stocks. The failure of the proposed issue of new stock, it is said, would not, in reality, injure the value of the stock already issued.

Up to 11 o'clock, the Harriman stocks, Northern Pacific, St. Paul, Reading, Pennsylvania, Missouri Pacific, the Coppers, Steels and fueling stocks held well above the openings.

Fears Four Courts Unsafe.

Comptroller Player has told the grand jury, which is investigating the condition of the Four Courts Building, that he will ask for an appropriation of $7000 for repairs to it, and will suggest that three architects be appointed by Mayor Wells to examine it. Building Commissioner Smith and President O'Reilly of the Board of Public Improvements differ as to whether the building is safe. Smith says it is dangerous. O'Reilly says it isn't.

Bill to License Plumbers.

A bill to license all plumbers in the city as stationary engineers are now licensed was introduced into the Council Tuesday by Councilman Ewing. Attorney Glendy Arnold drew the bill at the instance of Phil Horan of the Journeymen Plumbers' Association. An examining commission of four, at a salary of $25 a month, is provided for. The Supervisor of Plumbing is to be chairman of the Commission. Practicing without a license is made punishable by a fine of from $5 to $100, and for certain offenses the plumber's license may be revoked or suspended.

Parrot Thief Hypnotist.

John Clancy of 3408 Clark avenue thinks the thief who stole his poll parrot is a hypnotist, because he kept the bird from making an outcry. Clancy went into the saloon of James Boros, Rankin and Laclede avenues, and set the cage containing the bird on the floor. While his back was turned someone picked up the cage and disappeared.

SHOOTS TWO OVER CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

New Yorker Says Daughter Nagged Him a Year With Her Arguments.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Jan. 23.—Edwin Dabell, 80 years old, shot his daughter, Emma G. Dabell, 48 years old, during an argument over Christian Science, and when her friend and companion, Miss Minnie C. Taber, 35 years old, ran to a telephone and notified the police, he shot her through the breast. She will probably die. Miss Dabell received only a scalp wound.

"I have been nagged a year by Christian Science," said Dabell to the police. "I have had Christian Science served up to me every day and in all manner of shapes. There you can see what they did for me."

He pointed to a crippled leg, twisted so that it resembled the letter "S." Dabell's leg was broken and the Christian Scientists prevailed upon him to use their treatment.

"I have had so much of Christian Science that I'm sick of it," he exclaimed. "They have shoved their literature under my nose and tried to force me to believe in it. My daughter persecuted me until she drove me to the shooting. When I would come to the house she would do all she could to bother and annoy me. She would tell people that I was crazy. They would not let me go to the front door. All the time I was in the house they would bother and persecute me and try to get me to become a Christian Scientist. I am not crazy, but they treated me as if I was, and tried to get people to think I was."

Miss Taber, when pressed for a statement at the hospital in regard to the shooting, was reticent, but said as to the attempt to make her assailant believe in Christian Science:

"He was always opposed to it and opposed his daughter on it. He took a dislike to me because I sided with his daughter."

Notwithstanding her Christian Science views, Miss Taber did not refuse hospital treatment for the ugly wound.

Catarrh of the Stomach

A Pleasant, Simple, But Safe and Effectual Cure for It.

COSTS NOTHING TO TRY.

Catarrh of the stomach has long been considered the next thing to incurable. The usual symptoms are a full or bloating sensation after eating, accompanied sometimes with sour or watery risings, a formation of gases, causing pressure on the heart and lungs and difficult breathing, headaches, fickle appetite, nervousness and a general played out, languid feeling.

There is often a foul taste in the mouth, coated tongue, and if the interior of the stomach could be seen it would show a slimy, inflamed condition.

The cure for this common and obstinate trouble is found in a treatment which causes the food to be readily, thoroughly digested before it has time to ferment and irritate the delicate mucous surfaces of the stomach. To secure a prompt and healthy digestion is the one necessary thing to do, and when normal digestion is secured the catarrhal condition will have disappeared.

According to Dr. Hariansen, the safest and best treatment is to use after each meal a tablet, composed of Diastase, Aseptic Pepsin, a little Nux, Golden Seal and fruit acids. These tablets can now be found at all drug stores under the name of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, and, not being a patent medicine, can be used with a perfect safety and assurance that healthy appetite and thorough digestion will follow their regular use after meals.

Mr. R. S. Workman, Chicago, Ill., writes: "Catarrh is a local condition resulting from a neglected cold in the head, whereby the lining membrane of the nose becomes inflamed and the poisonous discharge therefrom passing backward into the throat reaches the stomach, thus producing catarrh of the stomach. Medical authorities prescribed for me for three years for catarrh of stomach without cure, but today I am the happiest of men after using only one box of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. I cannot find appropriate words to express my good feeling. I have found flesh, appetite and sound rest from their use."

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets is the safest preparation as well as the simplest and most convenient remedy for any form of indigestion, Catarrh of stomach, biliousness, sour stomach, heartburn and bloating after meals.

BILL TO ABOLISH COURT OF APPEALS

St. Louis Lawyers Favorable to Plan to Increase Size of Supreme Court.

TO HAVE FOUR DIVISIONS

They Would Have Different Places of Meeting in Four Sections of the State.

A plan for an amendment to the Missouri Constitution to abolish the Courts of Appeals in St. Louis and Kansas City and establish four divisions of the supreme Court was discussed by M. R. Krauthoff of Kansas City before the St. Louis Bar Association Monday night. The sentiment expressed by the auditors was very favorable to the measure. It is expected that the amendment bill will be introduced at the present Legislature.

The bill advanced by Krauthoff proposes to submit the question to the voters on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November, 1908, and to establish the four divisions Jan. 2, 1909, if the plan is approved.

The measure provides that the judges of the Court of Appeals be made Supreme Judges for terms expiring concurrently with their commissions as judges of the Court of Appeals.

The Supreme Court of Missouri in banc and the two divisions at present constituted are to be merged under the plan and the four divisions established.

The four divisions are to be known as the eastern division, to meet in St. Louis; western division, to meet in Kansas City; southern division, to meet in Springfield, and the central division, to meet in Jefferson City. No more than five judges will be required to sit in any cause.

Each division is to be composed of three judges who shall be assigned to such division by the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court, having regard to the individual wishes and preferences of such judges. The Governor shall appoint four judges of the Supreme Court for terms expiring, two Dec. 31, 1918, one Dec. 31, 1920, and one Dec. 31, 1922.

Judges to Be Elected.

Of the four judges whose offices are created by virtue of the amendment, and who are to be appointed by the Governor, no more than two shall belong to the same political party. As and when the terms of office created expire, there shall be elected at the general election to be held on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November, in the year 1910, and every two years thereafter, a sufficient number of judges of the Supreme Court to fill the terms expiring in the year in which the election is held, such judges to be elected by the voters of the State at large, and to hold their office for a term of 12 years, and until their successors are elected and qualified. The five judges whose terms expire in 1912 shall, before that year by lot select two of their number and the terms of the two so selected are extended until Dec. 31, 1914.

The judges shall each receive a salary of six thousand dollars per year, payable monthly in installments, and any vacancy which may occur with respect to any term of office hereby created shall be filled by appointment by the Governor, for the remainder of the unexpired term.

The court in banc and the respective divisions of the Supreme Court, except the Central Division, shall each have a clerk, a marshal and a reporter, to be appointed by such court or division. The officers of the court in banc shall ex-officio be respectively officers of the Central Division. All of such officers shall hold their terms during the pleasure of the court appointing them, and shall be paid such salary, at such times and in such manner, as may be provided by law.

YEARLY WEATHER FORECAST

Prof. Bigelow Hopes for Long-Range Prophecy.

CHICAGO, Jan. 23.—Prof. Frank H. Bigelow, who is taking Prof. Cox's place in the Chicago station of the United States Weather Bureau, has been working for 33 years in an effort to make long-range predictions, and he believes the time is near at hand when a yearly forecast will be made an assured fact.

His scientific investigations in part were disclosed at the University of Chicago yesterday in a lecture on "The Circulation of the Sun's Atmosphere as the First Cause of the Annual Changes in the Weather."

Prof. Bigelow's theory has largely to do with the number and size of the sun spots. Comparing the weather "curve," which he has made from the conditions of the last 30 years, with the sun spots "curve," he has found a remarkable similarity, and it is upon this similarity that he has been working to make his predictions a year in advance. He believes most of the weather changes are due to the sun's action. Prof. Bigelow is considered the leading meteorologist of the country and is the head of the division of records of the United States Weather Bureau at Washington.

BABY DEAD, WOMAN HURT.

Husband Returning Home Finds Razor Near Bed.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Jan. 23.—When Harry Fiscus returned to his home at 1307 Franklin avenue about 5:30 o'clock last evening he found his wife lying on the bed in a little back room with her throat cut from ear to ear, and their 7-months-old boy lying at her side, dead. The wife was unconscious and the baby had been dead 12 hours.

A neighbor, who was summoned, found Fiscus' razor lying on a table near the bed. Mrs. Fiscus had been ill for nearly eight months. Mrs. Fiscus was fully dressed, and the room was in disorder.

PRESIDENT IS VICTORIOUS.

Brownsville Inquiry Not to Question Power.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—The substitute resolution ordering an investigation into the Brownsville affair by the Military Affairs Committee was passed by the Senate yesterday afternoon. The debate, which began Jan. 3, was the longest of its kind in the history of either house.

The President had insisted that his constitutional and legal power in the case be not questioned. There were men in both parties who opposed such action, some of them probably prompted by a belief that it was unnecessary. Others were antagonistic to the President.

GOTHAM PUPILS LEARN TO SHOOT

Roosevelt Delighted With the Work in Schools.

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—President Roosevelt is enthusiastic over the good results obtained by schoolboys with the subtarget matches which the Public Schools Athletic League has installed in the 10 largest high schools here. The President, who is honorary vice-president of the Public Schools Athletic League, told Gen. Wingate, president of the league, Saturday that he regarded the movement to make the schoolboys good shots as one of national importance, and that he would be glad to do anything in his power to help it along.

Gen. Wingate suggested it would be a good idea if the President should consent to send a letter of commendation to the boy who should display the greatest skill with the rifle, and the President replied:

"I will do it. You go ahead, General, and arrange the matches as you think best and you have my authority to announce that I will write such a letter to the boy whom the league decides is the best shot, as soon as you send me his name."

JEALOUS HUSBAND SHOOTS; ARRESTED

Watch Saves Life of Man Wounded by Adam Klepper's Aim.

A mutilated watch, the property of Albert Kastlebaum of 822 South Tenth street, is being held as evidence by the police of the Soulard Street Station. It was smashed by a bullet fired at Kastlebaum Tuesday night at Broadway and Hickory street by Adam Klepper of 1722 South Thirteenth street. Klepper is under arrest.

Kastlebaum's alleged attention to Mrs. Klepper were the cause of the quarrel and the shooting. Klepper told the police when he was arrested. The bullet was deflected upward by the watch, and entered above Kastlebaum's heart, but did not penetrate deeply. It was taken out and the wounded man was taken home.

RELIABLE EVIDENCE

Of the Most Successful Treatment and Cure of Piles, Fistula, Fissure and All Diseases of the Rectum.

FISTULA—FISSURE
—PAY WHEN CURED—

It is undoubtedly more interesting to all readers who are afflicted than all I can say personally about my treatment, methods, ability, reliability, etc.; therefore, I publish these names of cured patients and urge the afflicted to investigate through these former patients and learn directly from them what I did for them, how they like my methods and treatment, both personally and professionally, they received while under my care. As I have said before, I have cured them, and many hundreds more, and can cure you.

It is important to you to know that I guarantee a cure in every case I accept. I give consultation and make examination free of charge; then if I take your case, you need not pay me one cent until you are cured, and you are the judge. All I want to know is that I will get my pay after the patient is cured.

Ladies Who Are Afflicted.

You should not allow false modesty to stand in the way of a cure. I have cured almost as many ladies as men, and have under treatment all the time many ladies. I have a separate reception rooms for ladies, and a lady attendant always present.

To Those Who Live Out of the City.

Because you live some distance from St. Louis should not stand in the way of a cure. Write to the parties whose names appear in the advertisement, and who live out of the city, and learn from them if they do not feel that the best spent money of their lives was what it cost them to come to me and be cured of their affliction. Many had suffered for years; had spent a great deal of money, etc., without getting a cure until they placed themselves under my treatment, when they were cured, the result of which was no more suffering, and no more spending money from month to month; but, instead, return of good health and happiness. Read the names in this advertisement carefully, then send for my free 100-page book for men and my free book for ladies. They contain much information of great value to the afflicted.

Remember, I am the only rectal specialist in St. Louis who gives his patients his personal attention. This feature, together with my methods of treatment, which are mild, not usually detaining the patients from their occupation, and not requiring hazardous operations, account for my wonderful success. It will cost you nothing to consult me at my office or by mail.
